Cotton Crop Output Fixed By Wallace

Nineteen States Granted 10,460,251 Bales Without Penalty.

Bankhead Act Governs 2,000,000 Farmers, 1,000 Counties.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Making effective the terms of the Bankhead cotton act, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace yesterday signed a proclamation allocating a 10,460,251-bale cotton crop among approximately 1,000 counties in 19 Southern and Western States.

Under the Wallace proclamation, not more than 10,460,251 bales, or 5,000,000,000 pounds, of lint cotton may be ginned during the 1934-35 crop year, without payment of a penalty tax of 50 per cent of the central market price and not less than 5 cents a pound.

Every pound ginned in excess of the quota allowed each of the 2,000,000 planters will be taxed at this rate. The AAA is now distributing tags to mark the cotton grown within the quota which will be tax exempt.

The hardest problem, however, still is ahead of AAA officials. That is allocation of quotas to each of the 2,000,000 planters of the Southland. Planters already have been warned to restrict their cotton production to 60 per cent of the five-year average for 1928-32, the basis on which the 10,000,000 bale crop under the Bankhead bill was figured.

Outcry Expected.

Despite warnings given several months ago, there is expected to be an outcry in the cotton belt when farmers finally learn what is their tax-exempt maximum. If the planters, on the whole, accept the quotas and undertake to live up to the Bankhead act, then success, for this year at least, is in prospect for this type of compulsory production control.

The operations under the Bankhead act are being closely watched, because it is the first attempt at forcing farmers, by an exhorbitant tax, to curtail their production. The legislation was assailed in Congress as "regimentation" and it was predicted that, if it worked successfully in cotton production control, similar machinery would be set up to compel observance of crop reduction plans in other major crops now resulting in a surplus.

Cully A. Cobb, chief of the AAA cotton production section, asserted that quotas were the result of "long and painstaking work on the part of the State and National representatives of the Department of Agriculture."

The bankhead bill sets the maximum tax-exempt cotton crop for this crop year at 10,000,000 bales of 500 pounds each. In making the allocation, the AAA calculated quotas in pounds, because the tax-exempt certificates will be issued on that basis, and translate these

Nazi Enemies Raid Harvard

Agitators Stage Scene Against Hitler Aid's Visit.

Cambridge, Mass., June 21 (AP).—Anti-Nazi agitators shattered the calm of Harvard University Alumni exercises late today in an attempted demonstration against Dr. Ernst Hanfstaengl, Hitler aid, here to attend his twenty-fifth reunion. Ten were arrested, two were women who had handcuffed themselves to the rail in front of their seats in Sever Quadrangle in the Harvard yard while screaming imprecations against the German envoy.

The demonstration was somewhat futile, for Dr. Hanfstaengl spent the day at Singing Beach, Manchester, avoiding the heat and the demonstrators by a dip in the ocean.

E. K. Rand, treasurer of the class of 1909, was just about to hand President James B. Conant a class gift of $100,000 during the alumni exercises when the two women launched an anti-Nazi demonstration.

Police had to tear down part of the bleacher seats before the women could be removed. The women gave their names as Sheila Shugru, 20, and Norma Burke, 20.

Mountains Are Sinking Near Honduran Capital

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, June 21 (AP).—The mountains of Berrinche and Miramesi, on the outskirts of this city, are sinking gradually, and the government today instructed a scientific commission to make a geological survey to determine the cause.

A popular impression is that the movement of the mountains is somehow associated with earthquakes. A delayed dispatch from the town of Ilama in the western zone told of a sharp earthquake Tuesday.

A Rain "Double-Crosses" Voliva.

Zion, Ill., June 21 (U.P.).—Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva thundered at his flock, "I'll not pray for rain until every seat in the tabernacle is filled and all back tithes paid up." Dejected, his flock left the church—to be caught in a downpour.

Roosevelt Signs Rail Labor, RFC Loan Bills

By Leon Dure, Jr.

New London, Conn., June 21.—Resting aboard the Sequoia among a hundred flag-draped yachts, President Roosevelt interrupted his vacation long enough today to sign the railroad labor act passed by Congress in its dying hours.

He perused and approved a batch of bills sent here from Washington,

Park Savings Directors Held Partly Liable

Justice Adkins Rules They Are Liquidating Trustees to August 30, 1929.

Directors of the closed Park Savings Bank were held liable as "liquidating trustees" for all deposits in the bank as of August 30, 1929, in an opinion rendered by Justice Jesse C. Adkins in the District Supreme Court yesterday.

Although Justice Adkins ruled that the directors were responsible for the bank's debts as of that date, when the Alabama charter expired, he ruled that they were not liable for deposits and debts incurred since. "The amount thus to be paid into the coffers of the bank for distribution by John F. Moran, receiver, is not subject to estimation, it was said. It will take considerable scrutiny of the bank's books to determine what persons now holding claims held them as of the 1929 date.

At the same time Justice Adkins held that another contention of creditors, namely, that the directors, in law, constituted a partnership for all debts of the bank, was dispelled. Under this theory, the directors would have been held liable individually and jointly for the entire shortage of the bank as of the date it was closed.

In his opinion, Justice Adkins went into detail to show the legal reasoning behind his decision that the directors were responsible only up to 1929. However, at that time, the bank had deposits exceeding $4,500,000, so that the amount to be forthcoming may be large.

Just how much money the directors will be called upon to pay is problematical. It will take an individual search of every depositor's account in the bank. If a de-

Illness Delays Divorce Suit.

Los Angeles, June 21 (AP).—Trial of the divorce action of Paul A. Lockwood, cameraman, and Marjorie De Haven Lockwood, actress and daughter of Carter De Haven, of the stage, was postponed today to July 6, owing to illness of the actress.

Senate Aid Pledged Pay Protesters

Walsh Warns Efforts to Suppress Proof Will Not Be Tolerated.

The full protective power of the United States Senate was thrown around protesting workers yesterday by Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, at the end of a long day of investigating violations of the Bacon-Davis prevailing wage law. The law requires contractors of Government projects to pay the prevailing wage in the locality of the project.

Senator Walsh is chairman of the special Senate Education and Labor Committee directed to investigate violations of the law.

During the 7½ hours of the inquiry yesterday it was developed there had been numerous complaints by workers on various District and Federal jobs they had been forced to return part of their wages; that Government officials had no ready answer why they had not prevented the wide-spread practice; that even in face of the threatened Senate investigation "kick-backs" had been forced as recently as last week; that there was a "blacklist" passed around among contractors which prevented "scandalizing" workmen from getting another job.

"I want," Senator Walsh said toward the conclusion of the first day of hearing, which was held in the caucus room on the Senate Office Building—"I want all contractors and others concerned to know that the committee will not tolerate any interference in its activities to get information as to exploitation of labor or violations of the wage laws.

"Any contractor who attempts to intimidate any workman into withholding evidence from this commit-

Savant Wants Hole in Earth To Tap Great Power Reserve

Berkeley, Calif., June 21 (AP).—The boring of a great hole into the earth, with all mankind lending a hand to the job, was suggested before the American Association for the advancement of science here today in a paper prepared by the late Dr. C. E. Grunsky, president of the California Academy of Sciences.

The paper was read by Dr. F. N. McFarland, vice president of the California Academy, who succeeded Grunsky upon the latter's death, June 9.

Dr. Grunsky's thesis said if mankind would sink the great shaft as far as human ingenuity would permit, the results would fully repay the effort.

The center of the earth is a great reservoir of power. If it could be tapped, gaseous pressures of 900,000 pounds a square inch would be the reward.

Dr. Grunsky did not conceive that man could burrow down very closely to the core of the globe, but suggested a great cooperative effort would result in penetrating the outer crusts to a vastly greater depth than ever before—depths he thinks could be reached which would tell science many valuable things.

The scientists's proposal was expressed in a paper on the stability of climate. He held to the belief the earth and other planets of the solar system originated by the disruptively close approach of another heavenly body to the sun. The earth then began merely as a whirling cloud of terrifically high temperature gas. Its gradual transformation to the present form must have been accompanied by a consistently gradual cooling, shrinking and solidification.

His thesis said Grunsky could find no evidence that this gradual process ever suffered any fundamental reverses and expressed the belief it has continued without interruption.

At present, the paper said, the earth is cooling at an insignificantly slow rate because of the insulating effect of its crust, which is perhaps 200 miles thick.

U. S. Given British Big Navy Plans

Stress Laid on Light Vessels; Ratios Are Not Discussed.

France and Japan Next to Enter Preliminary Conversations.

London, June 21 (AP).—Great Britain's claim for a bigger navy to protect her world-wide empire was presented to American negotiators today and proved to be so extensive that it was forwarded to Washington for consideration.

The plan was outlined at a session of experts of the two nations, meeting in connection with the conversations preparatory to the 1935 conference.

The British, it was understood, took the position that their plans are not inconsistent with the idea of a new agreement for limitation, since they are most interested in craft of the lighter, swifter type, ranging from cruisers down to the smaller destroyers.

Little or nothing was said on the subject of submarines, bringing out sharply the difference between the British and Japanese policies.

The Japanese, when their turn comes to enter the bilateral discussions, are expected to seek large increases in submarine strength and in all types of "defensive" surface ships.

Britain's growing responsibilities as a world power were emphasized by her negotiators.

Since France has accepted an invitation to discuss the 1935 conference program, the next series of talks will be between British and French diplomats. The Japanese may not enter the picture for another month.

Daughter of Marmon Wed to Georgia Prince

Ensenada, Lower California, June 21 (AP).—Carol Marmon, daughter of the Indianapolis automotive engineer, Howard Marmon, was married here today to Prince Nicholas Tchkotous, of Georgia and Hollywood, Calif. The wedding ceremony was performed by a civil judge.

While engaged in fostering the little theater movement in Hollywood, Miss Marmon met the descendant of one of the ancient families of the Caucasus.

Bandits Obtain $20,000 In Gems at N. Y. Store

New York, June 21 (AP).—Two men walked into a jewelry store on Fifty-seventh street today, bound the manager and then stripped the show window, in full view of passersby, of jewelry valued at between $20,000 and $25,000.

While a policeman was on duty two doors away, the pair walked in on Sampson Eisenberg, poked a gun at him and then tied him up. They put surgical tape over his mouth and put him in a small washroom. The bandits escaped.

Broker Breaks Up Trial By Admitting His Guilt

Los Angeles, June 21 (AP).—E. J. Curtin ended a three-weeks' trial today by leaping to his feet and announcing "I will concede my guilt."

Curtin, stock broker and former president of the first Great Western Corporation and the Columbia Holding Co., was charged with violating the corporate securities act. The State alleged he misapplied $250,000 of the corporation's funds. Judge Charles S. Burwell sentenced him to serve a term of 3 to 30 years.

Former Jersey Official Held in Police Shooting

New York, June 21 (AP).—William Allen Shepard, 34, former borough clerk of Matawan, N. J., was arrested today as a fugitive wanted in Matawan on a charge of being the masked man who shot Patrolman John Flood last Monday.

At Matawan, Chief of Police Edwin Sloat announced that he was preferring formal charges of assault with intent to kill against Shepard.

Nazi Thief Parades With Crime Placard

Bremen, Germany, June 21 (AP).—A Nazi official named Warnecke, who was chief of the public works office here, today was forced to march through the streets beating a kettledrum and carrying a placard reading "I am a scoundrel; I stole the workers' money."

The punishment was inflicted after he was found guilty of embezzlement.

3 Women Are Killed As Train Hits Auto

Benton, Ark., June 21 (AP).—Three women were killed in a grade-crossing accident near here today when the light delivery truck in which they were riding was struck by a railway motor car.

The dead were Mrs. Mattie Burton, 50, wife of W. H. Burton, farmer; Mrs. Sallie Murray, 55, widow, and Miss Clydie Busick, postmaster at Belfast, in Grant County, where the three women lived.

Son Seized For Slaying Of Father

Murder Charge Filed in Rockville in Iron Bar Attack.

Prisoner Says Parent Struck Him With Milk Stool.

Lowell Hash, 22, of Quince Orchard, Md., yesterday was arrested on charges of murder of his father, Edward J. Hash, 45, who died earlier in the day at Montgomery County General Hospital, Sandy Spring, Md. The youth was being held at the Rockville Jail without bond last night.

The murder charge was sworn out by Sergt. Roy Bodmer, commanding the Rockville police headquarters, after an investigation of the death was ordered by State's Attorney Stedman Prescott. Young Hash has been at liberty on $200 bond on a charge of assault since Monday night.

Lowell reported to police headquarters at Rockville Monday night after he had struck his father on the head with an iron bar, allegedly in self-defense. He told police the father had been drinking and had attacked him with a milking stool in the barn on their dairy farm when he asked whether to free the cows after milking.

The father was given first-aid by Dr. Yates Barber at Gaithersburg and then hurried to the hospital by another son, Danvil Hash, while Lowell journeyed to Rockville.

Relatives are attempting to have the charge altered in order that young Hash can be freed on bond, but failing this he will be given an early preliminary hearing.

Funeral services for the elder Hash will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. from the residence.

Record Heat Costs Life of Swimmer, 9

Baltimore, June 21 (Spl.).—Seeking relief from the heat, which reached a maximum of 97 degrees here today, Francis Strickling, 9, drowned in Jones Falls before other boys swimming with him could go to his aid.

Police were called and the body was recovered, but efforts to revive the boy were fruitless. He was pronounced dead at University Hospital.

The heat set a new record for this year. Two men were reported overcome and a boy was rescued from the Patapsco River.

Vanishing of Witness Delays Robbery Trial

Newark, N. J., June 21 (U.P.).—The reported disappearance of its key witness prevented the Government from proceeding today with trial of Dr. Leo W. Brandenberg, of Union City, charged with concealing and possessing $10,000 of the loot of a $105,000 mail robbery at Charlotte, N. C., last November 10.

The disappearance of the witness, Howard Edwards, assistant teller of the Rutherford, N. J., National Bank, was disclosed when the case was called for trial in Federal Court.

Vanderbilt's Sloop Defeats Weetamoe

Newport, R. I., June 21 (AP).—Rainbow, the sloop Harold S. Vanderbilt and his associates built in the hope of meeting the British challenger for the America's cup, Tom Sopwith's Endeavour, today defeated Weetamoe, owned by Frederick Prince and sailed by Dick Boardman, by 5 minutes and 7 seconds over a 30-mile course.

The victory was not too conclusive, but was partial revenge for the drubbing Weetamoe gave Rainbow yesterday, when she beat the Vanderbilt boat by more than 13 minutes.

Six Forest Fires Are Raging Over Colorado

Denver, Colo., June 21 (AP).—Six forest fires, two of them out of control, burned in Colorado tonight. The most serious one was on Archuleta Mountain, just outside the San Juan National Forest, 20 miles southwest of Pagosa Springs. CCC camp workers were being rushed in to fight it.

The other fire out of control is in Montezuma National Forest, on the western slope near Dolores.

$500,000 Legacy Fails To Excite Clark's Ward

Los Angeles, June 21 (AP).—Surprised, yet self-contained, 18-year-old George John Pale heard today he had inherited $500,000 from the estate of the late William A. Clark, jr., millionaire Montana industrialist, musician and art patron.

Beyond plans to enter an engineering school, Pale, who was a ward of the financier, was unwilling to offer further comment.

Man, 87, Kills Himself.

Martinsburg, Va., June 21 (Spl.). Samuel A. Lind, 87, a native of Austria, but resident of this city for two years and father of Mrs. Morris Prager, this city, ended his life today by taking poison in a local cafe. Bad health is believed responsible.

Army Officer Admits Manganese Firm Paid Him Fees for 'Services'

Heat Sets '34 Record At 96; Rain Promised

"Oh, but it's so nice and cool," Dorothy Mae Minter, left, and Geraldine Davis seem to be telling Park Policeman Stephen Badurski. But Mr. Brass Buttons made the kids get out of Columbus fountain, explaining that the water is not changed and the practice of romping in it may be cooling on a hot day but is very unsanitary. Dorothy, who lives at 411 Third street northwest, and Geraldine, of 308 E street northwest, weren't convinced, but they vacated.

Washington reverted to the (not so) gay nineties yesterday as summer arrived, bringing with it the hottest weather of the year to date. It was hot to a degree; to 96 degrees, in fact, at 2:15 p. m.

For today, the weather man promises "continued warm," with cooling thundershowers by afternoon or night.

The summer solstice occurred officially at 9:48 p. m., prior to which spring substituted a torch song for a swan song. Employes

Girl Kills Self After Failure Of Death Pact

Mother Died in Suicide Swim but Daughter Was Saved.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 21 (AP).—Miss Margaret Bott, 22, survivor of a strange suicide pact, today kept her delayed rendezvous with death.

One week from the day that she and her mother, Mrs. Alice King Bott, 63, of Highland Park, Ill., lashed themselves together, June 13, with ropes and swam out into Lake Michigan at Chicago to die together, Margaret shot herself here. She died this afternoon of a bullet wound in the chest.

The first suicide attempt resulted in the death of her mother, but the same waves in which the couple sought oblivion played an ironic trick—they washed the couple ashore before death claimed Margaret.

Distraught relatives from Iowa, Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Pearson, uncle and aunt of Margaret, brought her to their home here as soon as she recovered from the shock of her experience. But over them was the pall of fear—"I'm going to join mother," Margaret had said.

Yesterday she obtained a gun and between 3:45 and 4:10 p. m. shot herself in the Pearson home. She succumbed at 2:30 p. m. A physician and Coroner William Carpenter were notified at the time of the shooting, but announcement was withheld until after her death. Dr. Carpenter said it was not yet de-

Lynched Man Shot, Dragged By Mob's Auto

Colored Victim Is Taken From Texas Police; Women in Crowd.

Kirbyville, Tex., June 21 (AP).—A 30-year-old colored man charged with associating with a white woman was forcibly taken from officers by a crowd of 150 men and women, hanged, shot 17 times, then dragged behind an automobile for several hours before his body was dumped near a box factory commissary at Newton, Tex., early today.

Sheriff P. S. Hughes, of Newton, said he had not learned the identity of the lynch crowd, but that he planned a thorough investigation at once, assisted by officers from nearby cities.

The colored man, Son Griggs, was arrested Tuesday night on charges of associating with a white woman, vagrancy and keeping a disorderly house. The woman was arrested on vagrancy charges.

Sheriff Huges said he learned last night a mob was going to be formed to seize Griggs from the Newton jail. Two deputies, G. A. Smith and W. E. Davidson, left the jail at 10 p. m. with the prisoner to rush him to Orange for safekeeping.

About 25 miles from Newton, they said, the crowd of men and women accosted them, threw a rope around Griggs' neck and ordered the officers to drive one.

The Negro was pulled out of the officers' automobile, across the lap of Smith and quickly hanged. Seventeen shots were fired into the dangling body.

Synthetic Rubber Tire Made; Held Check on Excessive Price

By Howard W. Blakeslee.
Associated Press Science Editor.

Wilmington, Del., June 21 (AP).—The first American synthetic rubber automobile tires which look like real rubber and wear fully as well were announced here today.

They were described as a potential check against excessive rubber prices and a guarantee of American rubber independence in wartime. The synthetic rubber now costs about $1 a pound, against 15 cents for real foreign rubber, which has ranged from 5 cents to more than $1.

The announcement was made jointly by the Du Pont Co., makers of the synthetic rubber, and the Dayton Rubber Manufacturing Co., of Dayton, Ohio, making the tires.

The synthetic rubber is made of acetylene, salt and water. The acetylene comes from coal and limestone, so that all the ingredients are home products.

The Dayton announcement states that the synthetic tires were "built with the same machinery that is used to produce natural rubber tires." Both casings and inner tubes were made of the synthetic material.

The road tests have been under way secretly in Arizona, Ohio and Maryland. Describing them, J. A. MacMillan, president of the Dayton company, stated:

"These tires have been subjected to rigid laboratory and road tests, and have proved themselves fully the equal of tires built of natural rubber."

Du Pont representatives said the synthetic rubber is open to all manufacturers who wish to use it.

Col. McMullen Owns Up to Correspondence on Tariff.

Denies Being Hired To Aid Legislation

House Group Will Send Records to War and Justice Heads.

By Frank Getty.

Col. Joseph I. McMullen, of the Judge Advocate General's staff, admitted to the House military affairs investigating committee yesterday that he received a retaining fee of $1,000 and $250 a month from the Cuban-American Manganese Co. for legal services while on active duty in the Army.

While Col. McMullen maintained that the major part of his work was studying California placer mining law for a friend and official of the company, he admitted conducting correspondence with the New York firm regarding the duty on Cuban manganese, at a time when this subject was before Congress.

Committee members declared this in violation of Section 66 of the criminal code, for which penalties of two years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine is provided, and said the record would be turned over to the War Department and the Department of Justice for action.

In Pay of Radio Firm.

The witness, who occupied a law office in the Investment Building with the firm of Semmes & Semmes during leaves of absence in the spring of 1932, also admitted receipt of more than $5,000 from the Atwater Kent Co., two years before, and various sums from time to time for legal services, usually in connection with patents.

At one time, during pressing questioning by Chairman Rogers (Democrat), New Hampshire, and Representative James (Republican), Michigan, Col. McMullen insisted upon standing on his constitutional rights. He refused to answer a question by James regarding a meeting at his home last February, saying the testimony might tend to incriminate him.

"Mr. James has announced he is out to get me!" the sandy-haired, 60-year-old Army officer declared heatedly.

"You've been getting yourself for years," rumbled James.

Witness Is Warned.

Chairman Rogers warned the witness he could be forced to testify, "and I, for one, won't hesitate to make you."

Col. McMullen was given until today to think this over. The hearing will be resumed at 10 a. m.

Correspondence was introduced to show that the witness, while on duty at the judge advocate general's office, kept his clients apprised of the progress of legislation affecting duties on their product. He also

Bolivians Lose 1,000 in Trap

Paraguayans Claim Big Victory in Chaco Counter-Attack.

Asuncion, Paraguay, June 21 (U.P.). Slaughtering of upward of 1,000 Bolivians in a terrific Paraguayan offensive along a far-flung front in the Gran Chaco was reported in an official communique tonight.

The communique said the Paraguayan forces overwhelmed the Bolivians in a strategic withdrawal and counter-attack on one section of a 75-mile front in the jungle swamps of the disputed Chaco zone.

The maneuver resulted in fierce fighting as the Bolivians sought to fight their way out of the trap, Paraguayans claimed.

The report explained that the Paraguayan army evacuated trenches in the strategic sector. The Bolivians rushed in with shouts of victory only to be caught in a deadly cross-fire.

Paraguayan military dispatches estimated 40,000 Paraguayans and 60,000 Bolivians were engaged in the battle in the vicinity of Fort Ballivian.

Illinois Slaying Suspect Seized at New Orleans

New Orleans, June 21 (AP).—A man described by officers as Harold St. Clair, sought in connection with the slaying of Dr. Homer L. Meyers, 55, dentist of Eldorado, Ill., was arrested here today.

Police said the man admitted his identity and confessed to the shooting of the dentist.

N. Y. to Spend $650,000,000.

New York, June 21 (AP).—It will cost about $600,000,000 to run New York City in 1935, Rufus E. McGahen, director of the budget, indicated today. The current budget is $551,047,782.06.

Midnight Sun, Heroism Save 1,000 on Liner

Seventeen Persons Hurt, but Death List Undetermined.

Kopervick, Karmoy Island, Norway, June 21 (AP).—Heroism and the Scandinavian midnight sun were credited tonight with the rescue of 1,000 Nazi excursionists from the sinking steamer Dresden, with the loss of not more than four lives.

Many of the survivors wandered about the island and others had been taken to nearby towns, making it difficult to determine exactly how many had been lost.

Seventeen persons were known to have been injured, some seriously, but the number of dead was not determined, some sources reporting only two women unaccounted for while others gave the number as four.

Rescue work was greatly facilitied by the midnight sun after the ship struck a rock last night, especially since two lifeboats capsized and it was necessary for swimmers to aid the passengers struggling in the water.

Women who could swim surrendered their places in the lifeboats to aged men, while the band played Germany's national anthem.

A steward, Willy Burns, of Warnemunde, rescued four of the 20 women who were sinking after their lifeboat fell from its davits.

Sole blame for the wreck was assumed by the Norwegian pilot, Tacogsen, who said that the wreck was caused by greater drifting than he had estimated.

Hiram Johnson Prefers Brains in High Places

Ogden, Utah, June 21 (AP).—Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), California, commented here today while en route home from Washington that he was not frightened by men with brains. "It is the man without brains in high position of whom I am afraid," the Senator said.

No one in the Administration right now is working beyond 50 per cent efficiency because of weariness from long hours and concentration over a long period on difficult problems, he said.

Mexican Is Charged With Customs Murder

Del Rio, Tex., June 21 (AP).—Rafael Dominguez stood charged today with murder and conspiracy to commit murder as the result of the fatal shooting of L. C. Henry, a customs inspector, here Tuesday. He was lodged in the municipal jail of Villa Acuna, Mexico, across the Rio Grande from Del Rio. The conspiracy charge also names Toribio Tobledo and Jose Rayna.

Dominguez was identified from photographs, which Henry said were those of his assailant.

Roosevelt Signs Railroad, Labor and NRA Loan Bills

including the measure lifting limitation on RFC loans, after a turbulent welcome to this old-time whaling port.

Forts and Coast Guard bases that bristle about New London Harbor thundered their salutes as the President, arriving aboard the Sequoia, proceeded up the Thames River for tomorrow's boat races between Yale and Harvard.

Accustomed to anything unusual in Presidential procedure, Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre was ferried out to the yacht with the bills, which the President formally made law in the middle of the river.

The railroad labor act abolishes the present mediation board, sets up a new adjustment board composed of representatives of carriers and labor, outlaws company-dominated unions and guarantees collective bargaining.

Loan Limits Removed.

The RFC act removes the present $500,000 limitation on loans to individuals, thus permitting the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to parcel out larger sums to closed banks. Other bills signed by the President were of minor importance.

The President's arrival this morning brought out the Coast Guard "navy" of Secretary Henry Morgenthau for a display that faintly recalled the President's review of the fleet in New York Harbor.

Trailed by the escort ship Cuyahoga, gray-coated Coast Guard vessels and a small submarine flotilla, the Sequoia drew 21-gun salutes as it coasted past Fort Wright, Fort Trumbull, the Coast Guard Academy and the Navy submarine base.

A delegation on the drawbridge over the Thames, standing near a huge "welcome" sign, received a wave from the President as his yacht passed beneath. Further along, sailors of the submarine base manned the waterfront.

Arriving at Redtop, headquarters of the Harvard crews that will compete against Yale in their seventy-third regatta tomorrow, the President spotted his long, lean son, Franklin, jr., paddling about with the Harvard freshman eight.

The Sequoia dropped anchor and soon afterward Franklin and his classmates were clambering aboard. They were followed by members of the varsity and junior varsity squads, who received a handshake and the good wishes of an old Harvard "grad."

Yale Camp Bid.

This manifestation prompted an invitation from the Yale camp, quartered along the river a few miles away. The President responded by cruising over for another "open house," in which Yale oarsmen received similar attention.

All eyes are centered on tomorrow's regatta, which the President will view from the referee's boat, Tara. With Mrs. Roosevelt, he will watch particularly the form of No. 6 on the freshman eight—his son, Franklin.

Others with the President are Mrs. James Roosevelt and her sister, Barbara Cushing. After the races he will cruise about Long Island Sound another day before motoring to spend the week-end at Hyde Park.

There he will receive another batch of bills, expected to include the measure giving the District of Columbia the right to borrow more than $10,000,000 from the PWA. White House headquarters, established in the Coach Guard Academy, said this bill had not yet reached the President.

Labor Views Rail Bill With Approval

The Dill-Crosser railroad labor bill, signed yesterday by President Roosevelt, was viewed by labor as an adjunct to the already enacted measure giving the Government augmented power in conciliation of labor disputes, the Associated Press reported.

The President signed the Administration bill granting him the power of naming a board or boards to investigate and set up machinery for settlement of disputes arising out of the labor section of the recovery act.

The Dill-Crosser measure provides for conciliation machinery for the railroad industry. It was an outgrowth of one of the recommendations of Joseph B. Eastman, the Federal railroad coordinator, whose office was created a year ago to aid in solving many rail transportation problems.

Adjustment Board.

Under it is created a National railroad adjustment board composed of equal representation of the carriers and workers, along with a new mediation board of three. The present mediation board of five is abolished.

The readjustment board is to settle disputes between rail companies and their employes on wages, working conditions and contracts. If the board is unable to agree the mediation board will appoint a referee.

The bill provides that workers may be free to join any organization they desire and that carriers may not maintain, aid or control labor organizations of the employes. It specifically prohibits carrier managements from requiring employes to sign "yellow dog" contracts requiring them to join company unions.

Secret Ballots.

Machinery is set up for taking secret ballots to enable the board of mediation to determine what representatives the employes desire to have negotiate for them on wages and working conditions.

It amends and brings up to date the railway labor act of 1926, out of which has grown many disputes. It guarantees the right of collective bargaining and the selection of representatives of workers for the grievance board without interference or coercion by the railway management.

Girl Kills Self After Death Pact Failure

termined how Margaret obtained the weapon. No inquest, he said, would be necessary.

The suicide pact of the mother and daughter was prompted by the fear that death was about to separate them. The daughter had undergone several mastoid operations and doctors said another was necessary. The mother and daughter believed another operation likely would prove fatal.

They wrote notes to relatives and friends, donned bathing suits, walked to Lake Michigan's shore and swam strongly out toward a rising sun. Both were good swimmers. The mother finally tired and Margaret headed shoreward, towing her unconscious burden.

"I wanted our bodies to be found," she said after she was revived. Waves washed the exhausted girl and her mother's body onto a beach where a newsboy saw them and called help.

Miss Bott was a talented artist. She was educated at a private school at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and at Grinnell College. The mother and daughter usually spent the summer months at their Highland Park home and the rest of the time in travel.

Dr. C. B. Luginbuhl, who was called, said that Miss Bott's father, Rhea Bott, of New York City, who had been estranged from the girl's mother, arrived at the Pearson home Tuesday.

He said Bott had talked to his daughter yesterday morning, several hours before her suicide, and she had promised him she would "live out her life."

Rain Is Promised After Hottest Day of the Federal Trade Commission, housed in a temporary building at Twentieth street and Constitution avenue, were dismissed at 3 p. m.

To the surprise of hospital officials and police, however, not a single prostration was reported.

From a low of 69 degrees at 5 a. m., the mercury climbed steadily as the day wore on until, a little over ten hours later, the official thermometers registersd 96. The previous high mark of the year was 95, on May 21.

Park police were harried throughout the day by children splashing in Columbus, Truxton, Folger and other fountains.

"It isn't only that the kids, some of them with nothing on, make a sight which is revolting to some people," said Capt. Patrick J. Carroll, park police chief. "The water in these fountains is not changed, but is pumped over and over again, and it's very insanitary."

From morning until night policemen were chasing the youngsters out, but no sooner would the officers leave than the children would come right back. Lincoln reflecting pool also had its share of child bathers.

The entire Eastern seaboard perspired under a blazing sun. Washington was hotter than Jacksonville, Fla., which reported 85 degrees.

Senate Protection Pledged To 'Kick-Back' Protestants

ten will be dealt with by such force as the committee can invoke.

"I want to guarantee to any worker or to anyone else who may have information of interest to the investigation that attempts at reprisal by those who do not want the facts brought to light will not be tolerated."

The statement was made a part of the formal record, Senator Walsh said, because committee investigators had discovered many workers who had complaints and would give information to the committee were afraid to do so because they had been warned they would lose their jobs and would not be able to get other jobs.

Asked what punitive action would be taken against the coercive employers Senator Walsh said he had not determined. He was, he said, studying the question with a view to immediate action. He indicated that as soon as a case was discovered which would be a good example the committee would proceed to seek punishment of individual contractors. Meanwhile, the hearings will be resumed at 10 a. m. today in room 357, Senate Office Building.

The hearings yesterday ran the gamut of emotions and interests. Answering questions propounded by Senator Walsh some of the complaining workmen said "Yeah." Employers and their lawyers said "Yes, sir" and "No, Senator." The bosses were better clothed, their finger nails were whole and not broken and scarred, as were those of the complaining workers. Even under the sympathetic questioning of Senator Walsh the workmen frequently were lost in inarticulateness. Their adversaries across the table were articulate and fast stepping mentally and verbally, so much so that Senator Walsh prevented their directly questioning the workman on the witness stand and made them address the question to him to be repeated to the witness.

Maj. John C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner of the District, was the first witness. The kick-back, Maj. Gotwals told the committee, was a common practice extending back so far that President Hoover issued an Executive order to overcome it.

Maj. Gotwals pleaded for a law which would permit District authorities to prescribe employment of local workers and other conditions in awarding contracts. Under present law the Commissioners must award contracts to the lowest bidder.

Mrs. Insull Impatient To Return to Family

Paris, June 21 (AP).—"Tired and lonely" after two years of voluntary exile, Mrs. Samuel Insull is impatient to sail June 28, she said today, to rejoin her husband and son in Chicago.

"I have no plans for the future," she said. "My home will continue to be a hotel. We will live at the hotel where Mr. Insull and my son are now."

pounds into bales of 478 pounds net weight. That accounts for the 460,251 bales in excess of the 10,000,000 figure appearing in the total of the allocations.

Quotas of States.

The State quotas were as follows:

	Pounds.	Bales.
Virginia	15.211.200	31.823
North Carolina	252.715.200	528.693
South Carolina	287.836.000	602.268
Georgia	418.084.800	874.454
Florida	11.796.800	24.683
Illinois	328.500	687
Kansas	180.500	378
Kentucky	3.687.400	6.398
Tennessee	161.145.600	337.128
Alabama	422.731.200	884.375
Mississippi	625.192.000	1.008.728
Louisiana	250.963.200	525.029
Texas	1.647.539.200	3.227.530
Oklahoma	374.097.900	782.631
Arkansas	458.376.000	952.669
New Mexico	30.446.400	63.592
Arizona	43.276.800	90.537
California	100.000.000	209.205
Missouri	100.000.000	209.205
Total	5.000.000.000	10.460.251

The quotas for California and Missouri were made mandatory by the Bankhead act, which specified that States having a certain average production should not have their cotton crop reduced below 200,000 bales.

In allocating the State quota among counties, Secretary Wallace reserved 10 per cent of each State's quota to be allocated subsequently to producers of cotton on farms where for the preceding three years less than one-third of the cultivated land on such farms has been planted to cotton; to producers on farms not previously used in cotton production; to producers on farms where for the preceding five years normal cotton production has been reduced by reason of drought, storm, flood, insect pests or other uncontrollable natural cause, and to producers having made voluntary reductions in acreage in order to correct inequities.

How Quotas Fixed.

Cobb explained that the county quotas were established as the maximums allowable under the act. He contended that officials had gone to "extreme lengths to make every possible adjustment." But that the AAA headquarters will accept appeals from county groups dissatisfied with their quotas for 15 days. After that period, he said, these quotas will be made final unless a change is justified.

The county tax-exempt quotas for Virginia follow:

	Pounds of Lint Cotton	Bales of Net Wt.

Roosevelt, Aids Get 21 Honorary Degrees in 1934

The Roosevelt Cabinet has harvested a bumper crop of 21 honorary degrees this commencement season, the Associated Press reported.

President Roosevelt got a Yale LL. D. Mrs. Roosevelt, because she could not accept all offered, took none this year. She already has two.

With five LL. D.'s, Secretary of State Hull set the 1934 record. They were from Notre Dame, Columbia, William and Mary, George Washington and Williams.

Secretary of Interior Ickes came second, with four LL. D.'s—from Berea, Northwestern, Pennsylvania Military College and Tufts.

Attorney General Cummings and Postmaster General Farley got three apiece.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins each received two, while lone degrees came to Secretary of War Dern and Secretary of Commerce Roper.

30,000 Watches, Seized by Agents, May Be Smashed

Customs agents one of these days may smash 30,000 watch movements seized as smuggled goods, the Associated Press reported.

An order for destruction of the valuable movements will be issued provided President Roosevelt signs a new bill directing it and Secretary Morgenthau is unable to sell the movements abroad without competition to American watchmakers.

Usually, customs seizures are sold at auction. American watch manufacturers contended, however, that dumping 30,000 movements on the market, probably at low prices, would seriously harm their business.

In one instance, the Government sold 60,000 smuggled watches for $95,000, while the duty alone would have amounted to $240,000.

Circulation Men War On NRA Newsboy Ban

New York, June 21 (AP).—Frank Newell, of the Toledo (Ohio) Blade, was elected president of the International Circulation Managers Association today at the concluding session of the annual convention. He succeeds James Montgomery, of the Detroit News.

A delegation of circulation managers left for Washington to appear tomorrow at a public hearing on proposed changes in the NRA newspaper code affecting age limits of newsboys and were expected to oppose the alterations.

Army Man Admits Taking Fees From Manganese Firm

testified to introducing a client to former Assistant Secretary of War Payne, who in turn wrote letters to the steel industry regarding the manganese situation.

While the law makes it an offense for a firm to engage the services of a Government servant in connection with pending legislation in which the firm is interested, a letter was introduced from the president of the Cuban-American Manganese Co., in which the latter said he thought Col. McMullen was out of the service when he was engaged.

Testimony showed that the witness, after having interested himself in legislation affecting manganese during April, May and June, was engaged by the New York firm as its Washington legal representative on July 5. He was paid $1,500, constituting a retainer of $1,000, and $500 as retroactive pay for the months of May and June.

Complimented by Firm.

Col. McMullen insisted he was not employed in opposition to legislation which would have raised the duty on Cuban manganese. The committee then introduced correspondence bringing out the following chain of events, which were admitted by the witness:

On April 25, 1932, George Gordon Battle, general counsel for the Cuban-American Manganese Co., wrote to the president of the firm that "Col. McMullen has been before the Senate committee on the revenue bill."

Five days later, Col. McMullen wrote to his employers that "Payne stressed, at my suggestion, the importance of the Cuban-American manganese situation."

Battle wrote to New York on May 2 that the colonel was doing a good job, and there were frequent compliments from the firm to McMullen on his activities.

On May 18, McMullen wrote to New York that he was "seeing one of the distinguished Senators today." The day after he was put on the pay roll, the colonel announced a luncheon date with the chairman of the Tariff Commission.

"And I shall be able to advise you definitely on the manganese situation," the letter promised.

McMullen testified to seeing Robert Lincoln O'Brien, chairman of the Tariff Commission, at the luncheon, but denied making suggestions about manganese.

"Great Efforts" Appreciated.

On July 7, McMullen wrote that the matter of tariff on Cuban manganese had been "indefinitely postponed," and received in reply effusive thanks for his "great efforts."

Testifying that he really hadn't done anything to deserve the phrase, McMullen admitted he failed to disillusion his employer.

When Chairman Rogers pressed him for an answer as to who told him of the indefinite postponement, the witness retorted:

"I don't intend to be bulldozed!"

Frequent phrases from McMullen's letters to the company were construed by committee members to indicate he was actively opposing the manganese tariff, but the colonel always returned to his stand that he was really engaged in studying placer mining law in California, in connection with a proposed compression dam. He could produce no correspondence to substantiate this, he said.

One letter to McMullen from the Cuban-American Manganese Co. said the writer was "delighted to know you've taken steps to protect our interests."

Semmes Unhappy Witness.

McMullen said he gave $333 of the $3,000 he received in 1932 to his associate, Harry Semmes. The latter was an unhappy witness for three hours at an executive session of the committee yesterday morning.

Other sums received by the pair for their legal work included a $1,000 fee for obtaining $5,000 from the Austrian minister here in connection with patent rights. The Radio Patent Corporation engaged McMullen for this work, but he testified he turned over the actual labor to Semmes, splitting the fee "50-50."

It was when Representative James got around to a question about "a meeting at your house one Sunday" that the witness' temper, obviously under stout wraps, gave way for a moment. He refused to answer, and insisted upon "my constitutional rights." The meeting in question was one reported to have been attended by Army officers and Joseph Silverman, jr., New York trader, regarding surplus clothing. The subject may be pursued today, as the committee agreed the witness could not refuse to testify.

James questioned the colonel at length regarding his part in the Muscle Shoals decisions, his visits to Europe, on one of which McMullen's son went along as an attorney at $500 a month, his part in the procurement of Army aircraft through negotiation, and why he had been permitted to remain on duty at Washington for the past 14½ years without ever serving with troops during that time.

A veteran of 38 years' service, Col. McMullen said he understood he was due for retirement shortly.

Miss Verone Gruenther Weds West Point Coach

Omaha, Nebr., June 21 (AP).—At a home wedding today Miss Verone Gruenther, daughter of Mrs. C. M. Gruenther, of Omaha, was married to Lieut. Garrison H. Davidson, head coach of the Army football team. He is the son of Henry Fletcher Davidson, of New York.

Attending the bride, an accomplished horsewoman and tennis player, was Mrs. Ray McGrath, of Omaha, her sister. Lieut. Maurice Dally, stationed at West Point, served as best man. Among the guests was the bride's brother, Lieut. A. M. Gruenther, of Fort Hoyle, Md.

Nine Hundred Kansas Miners Return to Work

Pittsburgh, Kans., June 21 (AP). Two deep mines of the Western Coal & Mining Co. in the Pittsburg field, employing 900 men, will resume work immediately, ending a shutdown since April 1, officials of the company announced today.

The NRA code was recently modified to provide wages of $4.35 a day for strip miners and $4 a day for deep miners.

Directors of Park Bank Partly Liable

positor had closed out his account after August, 1929, the liability to him ceases. Those who continued their accounts after that date, will have to submit to an audit, to determine how much of their account is traceable to the directors.

No Estimate of Amount.

Justice Adkins' ruling is taken to mean that most of the losses sustained by the bank, except those which have been reimbursed through surety bonds and the like, will fall upon the shoulders of the directors. G. Bailey Springton, one of the attorneys for the depositors, said last night it was impossible to even approximate the amount that the directors will be called upon to pay.

Most of this shortage is traceable to Robert S. Stunz, former executive officer of the bank. Stunz is held responsible for a shortage of $1,500,000 in deposits of around $4,500,000. In addition, "friendly" loans, totaling $500,000, were sanctioned by him. Stunz killed himself in the basement of his Kalmia street home.

The loans are described as being almost wholly uncollectible. Three persons are under indictment for alleged criminal acts in connection with the operation of the bank, which closed several weeks prior to the banking holiday in March, 1933.

Grayson Is Accused.

John Cook Grayson, brother of Admiral Cary T. Grayson, is one of those indicted. He has been so seriously ill of heart trouble at his Charlottesville, Va., home since his indictment that he has not been brought to trial. Grayson, a former high officer of the Treasury Department, is alleged to have telephoned officers of the Park Bank when National examiners were due to make an audit. In this way, it is charged, it was possible for Stunz to submit huge dummy accounts, in which more than $1,000,000 was listed. Grayson's attorneys have attacked his indictment, but no ruling has been forthcoming.

Attorneys representing depositors and creditors indicated last night they planned an appeal from Justice Adkins' ruling. Their first move to offset his decree is a motion for a new trial. After that, it was said, recourse to the District Court of Appeals will be taken.

Virginia Plans Wide Control Of Blister Rust

White Pine Protective Work Under Way in Several Counties.

Charlottesville, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Work has been started on control of the white pine blister rust in Virginia, according to F. C. Pederson, State forester. It is being conducted under the program of the Department of Agriculture.

R. G. Pierce, associate pathologist, and regional supervisor of the Southern Appalachians, of the U. S. Bureau of Entomology, is in charge of all technical phases of the work, and directs with Mr. Pederson, State forester, and G. T. French, State entomologist and chief botanist, who are the State cooperators, the administrative phase of the program.

State leader in charge of office and field work is J. G. Luce, jr., of Richmond, whose headquarters are in the State forester's office in this city.

Field agents who have commenced operations in the counties of Page, Augusta, Rockingham and Albemarle are William M. Early, jr., of Madison Courthouse; W. T. Holt, of Victoria, and C. A. Stevens, of Mount Fair, former U. S. blister rust checker.

Considerable protection work has been done by the National Park Service in the Shenandoah Park under E. H. Francis, and by the National Forest Service in the George Washington forest.

The program of control for the summer and fall months covers the protection of all pine areas in the northern half of the westerly counties in the State, including both public and private lands. No Federal lands will be worked with NRA funds.

Pine areas in one country will be fully protected before work will be started in adjacent or nearby counties.

Laborers employed will be obtained through the reemployment service under NIRA regulations. Such laborers in crews of three to six under the direction of an agent will pull all wild and cultivated gooseberries and currants within 900 feet of the white pine stand. The blister rust disease does not spread from pine to pine, but passes from pine to these bushes, then back to pines again.

Harrisonburg Boy Missing 12 Days

Harrisonburg, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Charles Leonard Marshall, 16, "came to town" with his mother on a shopping trip June 9. He disappeared and has not been heard from since.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Marshall, of near Elkton.

Charles was clothed in a new outfit when he left. He is described as being 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighing 150 pounds. One little finger is flat as the result of being mashed. Sheriff Charles R. Fawley has broadcast the lad's description to officers throughout this section.

Mother Charged With Abduction

Takes Daughter, Two Sons From School.

Chambersburg, Pa., June 21 (Spl.).—Accused of removing her three children from the Pennsylvania Soldiers' Orphans School, Scotland, Pa., without authority, Mrs. Mary Smith, 37, of Harrisburg, is in the Franklin County Jail here, facing charges of removing apprentices from the industrial school and with contributing to the deliquency of minors.

Mary Harmison, 15; George, 13, and James, 11, children of Mrs. Smith by a previous marriage, were allegedly removed from the school during commencement exercises. The mother has made several vain requests for custody of the children, but was refused because they had been committed by the courts of Allegany County.

The father of the children, a World War veteran, disappeared following the war and was declared legally dead in 1929. His wife later married Charles Smith.

Funeral Services Held For Mrs. Susan Walker

Charles Town, W. Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Services were held today for Susan E. Walker, 69, widow of John H. Walker, who died Tuesday at her home here. She is survived by one son by her first marriage, James Parker, of Moorefield, and four sons and daughters by the second marriage—John W. Walker, Jessie Lee Walker, Mrs. Mandy Redman and Mrs. Richard Ford, all of Ranson, W. Va.

Court Holds 12 In Mill Walkout

Violation of Injunctions Charged as Mediators Push Peace Plans.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Twelve persons were cited in Circuit Court here today for violations of injunctions issued earlier this week in connection with an attempt at resumption of operations by the Berkeley Woolen Co., where employes went on strike a week ago.

A truce in the picketing of the plant and use of State police in enforcing the injunctions was called Tuesday evening after a series of clashes in which State police used tear gas and night sticks. Eleven of the twelve cited are strikers. The twelfth is not a mill worker. Charges vary from loitering to abusing officers and nonstrikers and interfering with those desiring to work and obstructing activities at the mill.

Delay in the hearing was granted when arraignment was started this morning to permit defense counsel to make formal answer. Meantime mediation efforts by Federal and local agencies continued with participants expressing optimism. The management of the mill and the striking employes have both presented their positions. Frank Bowen, a Government conciliator, is taking an active hand in efforts to arrange a settlement.

The "truce" will hold until Monday, with indications it will be extended if no final agreement has been reached by that time.

Miner Defeats Murder Charge

Bluefield, W. Va., June 21 (Spl.).—On the ground that "a man has a right to protect his own home," Ken Harrison, a coal miner, of Worth, was free today of a charge of murder in killing Walter Cheek, of Algoma.

A coroner's jury exonerated him upon the recommendation of Wilson Anderson, McDowell prosecutor, and Magistrate J. A. Lay thereupon dismissed the charge.

Harrison shot and killed Cheek after the latter battered down a door of Harrison's home and shot to death Mrs. Lucino Harrison and her mother, Mrs. Mary Ann Sizemore.

County Clerks Renew League

Association Dropped Years Ago Is Reorganized.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 21 (Spl.).—County clerks of the State effected a reorganization of the West Virginia Association of County Clerks, which was abandoned several years ago, at a convention here today, and elected a staff of officers to serve the coming year.

Charles P. Furbee, of Harrison County, was elected president; L. G. Bowling, of Mercer County, first vice president; J. P. Elliott, of Gilmer County, second vice president; Frank Thorn, of Wirt County, third vice president; D. G. Stewart, of Hancock County, fourth vice president; T. T. Huffman, of Mineral County, secretary, and Allen G. Cutright, of Upshur County, treasurer.

Defending the State 2 per cent consumers' sales tax, Fred L. Fox, State tax commissioner, declared it equalizes the tax burden by bringing in nontaxpayers and giving needed revenues. As a result, he said, "West Virginia is solvent for the first time in many years."

Lions Club Elects.

Hagerstown, Md., June 21 (Spl.).—The Rev. H. A. Fesperman was elected president of the Hagerstown Lions Club and the following other officers named: T. J. Cullum, first vice president; Martin Ingram, second vice president; H. W. McElwee, third vice president; Joseph Foltz, secretary-treasurer, and G. W. Tyler and John Howard, directors.

Fleet to Give Peery Salute

Virginia Governor to Greet Admiral Campbell on Norfolk Arrival.

Norfolk, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Gov. George C. Peery will be saluted three times with 19 guns each when he arrives at the Norfolk Navy Yard to greet Vice Admiral E. H. Campbell, commander in chief of the scouting force, now en route here from the New England Coast. The fleet will steam into Hampton Roads Saturday about noon.

The Indianapolis, accompanied by the cruisers Northampton, Pensacola, Salt Lake City, Chester, Chicago, Louisville, Portland and Raleigh, will steam into Hampton Roads Saturday at noon, according to a radio message received from Admiral Campbell.

While the other vessels cast anchor in Hampton Roads, the Indianapolis will proceed directly to the navy yard for overhauling.

Woman Dies While In Dental Chair

Westminster, Md., June 21 (Spl.).—Stricken with a heart attack while in the chair of Dr. L. N. Hitchcock, local dentist, Mrs. Howard Spencer, 41, near Bird Hill, Carroll County, died instantly yesterday.

Magistrate George E. Jenson was summoned. He held no inquest necessary. Dr. Luther Bare pronounced death due to heart failure.

She is survived by her husband and three children, Emily J., Howard, jr., and Ralph.

Hitler Rushes To Hindenburg In Nazi Clash

Reports Indicate More Trouble Brewing in Berlin.

Berlin, June 21 (U.P.).—Chancellor Adolf Hitler hurried to Neudeck today to confer with President Paul von Hindenburg, following renewed reports of growing dissension among members of his ministry.

An official communique said that Hitler had gone to lay before the President results of his historic conversations with Premier Mussolini last week.

Observers agreed, however, that the bold criticism of Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen on radical elements in the Nazi administration would form the major phase of the meeting.

Von Papen was reported to have seen Von Hindenburg and to have gained further support, but he decided to wait until Hitler had had a chance to lay the situation before Von Hindenburg as a mediator.

Von Hindenburg already has publicly expressed approval of Von Papen's criticism of the Nazi muzzling campaign. Hitler has refrained from taking sides, although approving the propaganda ministry ban on dissemination of the address in the press or over the radio.

The Hitler-Von Hindenburg conversations generally were expected to iron out the threatened split, although Von Papen still insists he is loyal to the Nazi regime.

He merely intends to fight against the so-called "Nazi bolshevists" who, he charges, are threatening to ruin the party and Germany by their enthusiasm and radicalism. He has the support of the powerful junker (landowner) bloc and big industrialists.

If Von Hindenburg follows up his letter of approval by a statement of support, Von Papen's position will be unique in the cabinet as the sponsor of a "new deal" for the Reich under Nazi rule.

Dr. S. T. Young, Veterinarian, Dies Suddenly

Was Owner of Fine Horses and Winner of Many Prizes.

Middleburg, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Dr. S. Taylor Young, prominent veterinarian and noted horseman, died at his home in Middleburg this morning following a heart attack.

Dr. Young was stricken immediately after returning home from a professional call and died shortly after Dr. D. T. Saffer arrived.

Dr. Young was a native of Pennsylvania and began to practice his profession in Middleburg about 11 years ago. He owned a number of fine horses, including Jembs, a hunter which was adjudged champion of the recent Leesburg horse show, and Ganadora, a mare which won the Reserve Ribbon in the championship class at the Upperville horse and colt show.

Dr. Young was active in all sporting organizations. He was a member of the Middleburg Hunt and the Piedmont Hunt and had recently been elected president of the Loudoun Amateur Field Trial Club. He is survived by his wife, one son, Thomas C. Young, and a daughter, Mrs. Lydia Y. Henning.

Funeral services will be held from his late residence Saturday at 9 a. m., and the body will be taken to Oxford, Pa., for burial.

Mrs. Clara Brant, 47, Will Be Buried Today

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Rites will be conducted here tomorrow afternoon for Mrs. Clara Brant, 47, wife of A. L. Brant, who died at a local hospital Tuesday, after a 14 month's illness.

Beside her husband, she is survived by one daughter, Miss E. Christina, at home, and four sons, Leo K., C. Douglas, Hillary M., and A. L. jr., also at home.

Seaboard Line Buying 1,000 New Freight Cars

Richmond, June 21 (AP).—Receivers for the Seaboard Air Line Railroad today announced 1,000 new freight cars would be built for the road by the Standard Steel Car Co., with the construction equally divided, 500 cars each, between plants in Richmond and Birmingham.

The cost of the new cars is estimated at $2,000,000.

Baptist Church at Danville Plans Centennial Services

Danville, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—The program for the First Baptist Church centennial to be held next week has been completed.

The celebration will consist of services every evening at the church, rounding out 100 years of local service, and there will be receptions and a general community Baptist homecoming.

Next Sunday morning the Rev. J. Emerson Hicks, of Bristol, the only living former pastor, is to preach the sermon, and at night Dr. Joseph Dunglinson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, is to be heard.

Monday night Dr. Garnett Ryland, of the University of Virginia, will speak on Baptist life in colonial days and on Tuesday night the principal address will be made by Dr. Solon Cousins, of Richmond, on denominationalism.

Dr. F. W. Boatwright, president of Richmond University, will be the main speaker on Wednesday, unfolding the progress which Baptists in Virginia have made in the past hundred years.

Dr. George T. Waite, executive secretary of the Baptist Association of Richmond, will speak Wednesday night on the future of the church.

Strasburg Wants Road Completed

Town Council Insists State Must Meet Expense.

Strasburg, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Declaring that the Town of Strasburg has done its part toward widening and rebuilding the historic Valley pike through the town, the council has called on the State highway commission to complete the work immediately.

Mayor W. L. Green stated that he was in receipt of a letter from State Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley stating that he "wanted the town to complete its portion." In reply, the council took the attitude that the town has fulfilled its portion of the bargain.

Seventeen thousand dollars was appropriated by the Civil Works Administration for the work. Because of bad weather, only about $7,500 of the money was used before the CWA work was stopped. Councilmen take the stand that the work probably could not be continued under an FERA set-up, therefore it is necessary that the State highway department complete the work.

Conference on Virginia Potatoes Is Undecided

Richmond, June 21 (AP).—Gov. George C. Peery said last night that he was "undecided" whether or not to call a potato conference in Washington.

He said the meeting had been urged on him by potato growers, but that he was still in hope that purchases by Government relief agencies would take up some of the low-priced surplus now on the market.

Purcellville Bible School Expanding

Purcellville, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—With new pupils entering the Vacation Bible School, which opened Monday of last week in the Bethany Church, the enrollment has now reached 120. Much interest is being shown in the classes by the pupils, ranging from 4 to 14 years.

The school is in charge of Sydney Willis, of Christiansburg, Va. Assisting him are Miss Grace Shoemaker, Miss Mildred Shoemaker, Miss Ruth Emerick, Miss Ruth Dillon, Miss Mabel Love and Lake Van Sickler.

The class in nursing is under the direction of Miss Jennie Jones, county nurse pro tem. and Mrs. Martin Yakey. Mrs. Carroll Paxson is giving instructions in sewing. Helpers in the work are Louise Otley, Ruth Gregg and Fletta Trussell.

Car Speeds Away After Collision

Fredericksburg, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Although witnesses believe he was hurt by the crash, the unidentified driver of an automobile bearing a New Jersey license plate reversed his car and sped down the highway after a crash yesterday into the rear of a lumber truck. His windshield was shattered.

Driving to the top of a steep hill near Brummett's tourist camp two miles north of here at about 60 miles an hour, the New Jersey driver slammed on his brakes too late to avoid a collision.

Although some of the lumber came through the windshield the driver sped up the road.

Schools Surveyed In Loudoun County

Merger Plan Protested by Citizens.

Leesburg, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—A committee, composed of C. J. Hyslup, high school supervisor of Richmond; R. C. Hayden, superintendent of schools of Prince William County, and W. T. Woodson, superintendent of schools of Fairfax County, is making a survey of the high schools of Loudoun County and will report to the Loudoun County School Board at their meeting on June 28.

Owing to protests over the consolidation of high schools in the county, the group is making a study of the prevailing conditions and is meeting with the leaders in the various sections.

A strong protest has been raised in the Middleburg community due to the closing of the high school at that place. The group surveyed this section Wednesday. There is a possibility of recommendations for further consolidation being made to the board, it is said.

Fraternal Order Gaining Members

Strasburg, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Large membership gains were reported by the Valley District of the Order of Fraternal Americans, which met with Fidelity Council, No. 50, at Lebanon Church, near here, with the new district deputy, E. M. O'Flaherty, presiding.

The district comprises all councils in Frederick, Warren, Shenandoah and Page Counties. E. L. Alger, of Millwood, announced he will give a banner to the council showing the greatest membership gain during the remainder of the year.

Officers for the district organization were elected as follows: W. H. Bush, Winchester, vice district deputy; E. L. Alger, Millwood, chaplain; Mr. Barley, Stephens City, conductor; B. F. Foltz, Woodstock, warden; P. A. Stockley, Lebanon Church, inside sentinel; H. E. Grim, Edinburg, outside sentinel; Edgar Zirkle, Quicksburg, treasurer, and J. W. Luttrell, Woodstock, recording secretary.

Nelson County Queen Named

Miss Anne Dawson Will Reign at Celebration in Shipman.

Carlottesville, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Miss Anne Stewart Dawson, of Afton, will reign as queen at the "Nelson County Day" celebration to be held at the Shipman Fair Grounds on Saturday.

Miss Dawson, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Carlton Dawson, of Afton, was chosen "Miss Nelson County" from among eight contestants at Lovingston this week.

Her maid of honor will be Miss Kathryn Loving, and other members of her court will be Miss Elizabeth Youlle, Miss Florence Massie, Miss Jane McGregor, Miss Maude Lipscomb and Miss Helen McClain.

The day's celebration, to which the 17,500 residents of the county have been invited, will begin at 10 a. m., and the queen will be crowned at noon. Gov. George C. Peery has been invited to attend the affair and to present the crown to Miss Dawson at the coronation exercises.

One of the features of the day will be a parade of county children who are five-pointers, and there will be talks on health needs.

Ernest C. Arey's Body Cremated at Durham

Danville, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—The body of Ernest C. Arey, who died at his home here yesterday, was cremated today at Duke University Hospital, Durham, N. C.

Mr. Arey, 34, was a native of Salisbury, N. C., and had lived in Danville 20 years. He owned the Colonial Stonewall Hotel here. His widow, three children and several brothers and sisters survive.

Jackson Asks End of State Tax on Realty

Baltimore Mayor Talks at Firemen's Meet in Cambridge.

By Lelia B. Smith.

Cambridge, Md. June 21.—Taxation of fire insurance companies to take care of necessary relief measures for volunteer firemen and the elimination of the State tax on real estate were urged today by Mayor Howard W. Jackson, candidate for Governor of Maryland, who addressed about 1,000 members of the Maryland Volunteer Firemen's Association on the second day of their convention here.

Mayor Jackson, accompanied to the rostrum by former Gov. Emerson C. Harrington, said that while he was engaged in the fire insurance business, he believed that firemen's services should be recognized by fire insurance companies operating in the State.

Discussing politics, he said:

"The longer any public administration remains in power the greater the difficulty encountered in getting away from the old order. During the recent banking crisis this fact was brought home very sharply. Some large banking institutions of the State found themselves in difficulties and there was an immediate demand from the stockholders and the public for reorganization. Something was needed to restore the confidence of the people, and management of these banks was changed.

To Announce Platform Soon.

"A new code of ethics is demanded by the people in the conduct of public affairs. I have a very definite program in mind to bring about the desired results and in the near future will announce a constructive platform of value to the people. I believe my pledges should be kept. I shall not make satements solely for vote-getting purposes.

"I feel justified in saying that one thing I have in mind, for which there is a demand in Baltimore and in every county of the State, is the elimination of the direct State tax on real estate, which at this time is 22 cents on $100. To this task, as candidate for Governor, I pledge myself.

"I believe it possible to abolish the State tax largely, at least, through the adoption of a pay-as-you-go policy, as against a loan policy for current expenses and minor improvements."

Discussion Follows.

As soon as the mayor left, there was a discussion of the recommendation of the president, E. J. C. Raney, that the convention approve the commission appointed by Gov. Ritchie to consider additional funds for firemen. The commission is composed of F. D. Leizear, president Mutual Fire Insurance Co., Rockville; E. J. C. Raney, president State Firemen's Association, Kensington; J. Kemp Bartlett, Baltimore; William L. Henderson, assistant attorney general, and Hazelton A. Joyce, jr., deputy insurance commissioner.

Exception was taken to this group by Chief Jesse Fisher, of Annapolis, who said the committee had a majority of insurance men. The president's recommendation was finally accepted, provided there was an addition of three members, including the incoming State president, the chairman of the legislative committee and Walter R. Hough, of Baltimore.

A. N. Johnson, dean of the department of engineering, University of Maryland, urged larger attendance of the fire college, and C. G. Pollitt, also of the State college, spoke in favor of standardization of fire-fighting methods.

Tonight Sherwood Brockwell, State fire marshal of North Carolina, spoke. Oakland, Hagerstown, Brunswick and Lonaconing have invited the convention for 1935.

Memorial Services Held.

The names of 11 Hagerstown firemen, who died during the past year, were among those for whom the memorial service was held last night at the convention.

They were C. R. Ecton, C. E. Kitmiller, M. K. Lipps, C. H. Lushbaugh, C. Earl Pauligrove, R. A. Penner, Robert L. Schlotterbeck, Max E. Smith, A. E. Thomas, F. M. Wolfiner, and William Work. Others whose names were read by the secretary, George Lindsey, of Hagerstown, were Dr. E. E. Wolff, G. Walter Wright, A. Shepherd Bayly, Charles E. Meekins, and J. Odie Thomas, of Cambridge; Charles D. Marshall, of Easton; Franklin L. Pennewell, of Berlin; William Wilde, of Riverdale Heights, and Elick F. Stokes, of Branchville.

The memorial address was given by the Rev. James W. Minter, association chaplain and pastor of Patterson Park Baptist Church, Baltimore. Local ministers who participated were the Rev. William D. Gould, the Rev. Paul G. Watson, the Rev. W. G. Harris, and the Rev. Andrew J. Tosick. Mrs. Earl N. Bradley sang, accompanied by Mrs. William J. Leonard. Taps were sounded by Augustus Stewart.

The memorial service followed a concert by Rescue Fire Company. The evening closed with a dance on Poplar street. The prize for the most comical stunt put on by the Ladies Auxiliaries was won by Mrs. Mary Baker, of Hyattsville.

Sheriff to Be Justice For Alleghany County

Covington, Va., June 21 (Spl.). Sheriff Robert E. Dyche was appointed as the new trial justice for Alleghany County yesterday by Judge Benjamin Haden.

R. E. Caldwell, local contractor, was appointed by Judge Haden to succeed Mr. Dyche as sheriff. Both appointments are effective July 1.

Propose Industrial Relief.

Bristol, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Proposing to start a self-supporting, noncompetitive industry which can be turned over to workers after it gets well under way, Bristol relief officials soon will set up a toy shop and weaving projects, Mrs. Margery Wyatt, director of the welfare department, announces.

Girl and Man Hurt in Pocomoke City Airplane Crash

Crowds view the wreck of the 2-passenger cabin monoplane that crashed near Pocomoke City, Md., Wednesday. A 21-year-old aviatrix was critically injured and her male companion considerably bruised. The plane, which was advertising a manufacturing concern, fell from an estimated altitude of 300 feet. Engine trouble was blamed.

Ritchie Decries New Deal's Use As Party Issue

Expresses Faith in Final Result of "Adventures in Government."

Baltimore, June 21 (AP).—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, speaking at a nonpartisan dinner given in his honor tonight, declared "it is unfortunate that the 'New Deal' must be an issue of party politics."

He then expressed his faith in the "beneficent outcome of all these adventures and experimentations in government."

Those present took his statement as an answer to the "Radcliffe and Roosevelt" argument of friends of one of Ritchie's opponents for the Democratic nomination for Governor—George L. Radcliffe, the President's personal friend.

But as he expressed faith in the outcome of the New Deal, so did the Governor just as emphatically repeat his "political philosophy"—"a maximum of freedom and a minimum of government." Nor at any point in his address did he give his blanket indorsement of all experiments of the Administration.

"The point about the 'New Deal' is that the old deal did not work, and despair was upon us," said the Governor. "Emergencies had to be met.

"Now government seems to go into everything, but the spirit of the whole thing, as I visualize it, is to overcome the crisis and return to normal again.

"Back of everything our ideals and traditions still function. Public office is still a public trust, even if it is a train trust."

Hemphill Gets Post At Hampden-Sydney

Petersburg, Va., June 21 (Spl.). Edwin Hemphill, son of the Rev. and Mrs. J. Edwin Hemphill, of this city, has been appointed acting professor of history in Hampden-Sydney College for the next session, to serve in the place of Prof. Freeman Hart, who has been granted a leave of absence.

Mr. Hemphill, a graduate of Petersburg High School, received his A. B. degree at Hampden-Sydney College and his A. M. from Emory University. He has also done graduate work at the University of Virginia.

Woodstock Names Girl For Legion Beauty Show

Woodstock, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Miss Madolin Foltz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Foltz, was chosen "Miss Woodstock" in a beauty pageant sponsored by Massanutten Post, American Legion. She will represent the post in the State beauty pageant at Lynchburg in September.

Judges of the contest included Mr. and Mrs. Philip R. Fowle, of Winchester, and H. A. Stanfield, of Washington. Miss Foltz was presented with a silver loving cup by the post.

Relief Asked In Lay-Offs

Aid Sought by Tobacco Workers in Virginia Hurt by Crop Cut.

Richmond, June 21 (AP).—Virginia Emergency Relief Administrator William A. Smith today said relief appeals were coming in from farm hands in the tobacco growing areas who were being laid off by farmers who are participating in the Federal Government's crop reduction program.

The administrator said he felt confident it was not the policy of the AAA to permit farmers, who are being paid to reduce their acreage, to throw farm hands out of work. Reports of the practice, he said, are coming only from the tobacco sections.

Just because the reduced acreage does not call for as much work as before, the farm laborers should not be turned over to public relief, the administrator said.

Commenting on the situation, Henry M. Taylor, Federal-State agricultural statistician, said the AAA crop reduction contracts prohibited farmers from reducing the number of tenants who share in their tobacco crops, but contained no provisions relative to day laborers. He said the AAA was making plans to enforce the provisions relative to tenants.

Dairy Scores Against U. S. In AAA Test

Federal Court Overrules Motion to Dismiss Injunction Suit.

Baltimore, June 21 (AP).—The Federal Government lost its first protest to a test case of the agricultural adjustment act when an opinion was filed in United States District Court yesterday overruling a motion to dismiss an injunction.

The opinion was written by Judge W. Calvin Chesnut, of Baltimore, who is now sitting with the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Asheville, N. C. He directed the Government to file an answer so the case can be heard on its merits.

The injunction suit was instituted by the Royal Farms Dairy, of Baltimore, to enjoin the AAA officials from examining the firm's books. The plaintiff contended the AAA was unconstitutional because it tended to deprive the company of its prope-- without due process of law.

The defense had argued at the hearing on May 28 that Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, as a defendant, was outside the jurisdiction of the court. Its counsel asked for dismissal of the suit on the grounds Secretary of Agriculture Wallace was an indispensable party to the action.

Judge Chesnut held that the presence of Secretary Wallace was not indispensable. The jurist declined to issue a temporary injunction, as asked by the dairy, but said he would consider such action later.

West Virginia Approves Raise in School Wages

Charleston, W. Va., June 21 (Spl.). A 15 per cent increase in salaries of principals of high and elementary schools was approved today by the State board of education. It also was ordered that principals receive equal pay for similar work, training and experience.

The board also ordered that a certificate for elementary school principals be issued under regulations to be determined by the certificates division of the State department of education.

Father-in-Law Slays Man Who Attacks Wife

Huntington, W. Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Ikey Hensley, 34, a former Kenova constable, was shot to death today at the home of his father-in-law, Thomas Drown, 70, who said he fired a shotgun at Hensley after the latter had attacked Mrs. Hensley.

Drown immediately surrendered to Kenova police, and was released under bond after waiving a preliminary hearing. The Kenova police said Drown told them the shooting occurred after Hensley had tried to beat Mrs. Hensley with a piece of chair.

Mrs. M. P. Lea Is Buried.

Danville, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Mrs. Mildred Powell Lea, wife of John G. Lea, who died here after an illness of four months, was buried from her late home this morning, the rites being conducted by the Rev. James M. Shelburne. Interment was in Mountain View Cemetery.

Max Krol Fails To Appear After Denial of Writ

Convicted Embezzler Is Ill in West, Lawyer Says; May Forfeit Bond.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Winchester, Va., June 21.—Judge Philip Williams in Corporation Court today called the $5,000 bond of Max Krol, woolen mill official, convicted of embezzlement, but the defendant did not appear. Krol was represented by his attorney, Harry R. Kern, who declared the latter is ill.

The bond was called on motion of Commonwealth Attorney James P. Reardon after the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals denied an appeal of Krol for a writ of error. The terms of the bond made it mandatory that Krol present himself to the local court immediately following a denial of his writ.

Attorney Kern presented an affidavit from a Chicago physician stating that Krol was bedridden at the home of his mother. Attorney Kern requested that the court refrain from entering a forfeiture, declaring that it was the intention of the defendant to appear before the end of the present term, July 7, or show cause why he had failed to do so.

Judge Williams entered an order declaring Krol had defaulted. Whether the Commonwealth will immediately request a forfeiture of the bond could not be learned tonight.

Krol, the former treasurer and general selling agent of the now defunct Arthur G. Jones Woolen Co. here was convicted of embezzlement of company funds and sentenced to six years in State prison on April 21. He posted $5,000 in cash to secure his release on bail until the Virginia appellate court could consider a writ of error.

When arrested in January, 1933, Krol jumped a $5,000 bail bond in Long Island while Gov. Lehman considered the former's extradition to Virginia. Krol was arrested several months later in Chicago and returned here for trial.

Sheriff's Widow Given His Office In West Virginia

Morgantown, W. Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Appointed by the Monongalia County Court to succeed her late husband, Mrs. Pearl Taylor Hickman, of this city, will become West Virginia's only woman sheriff on July 1. She has qualified for the position by taking the oath of office and furnishing bond of $50,000 for faithful performance of her duties.

Mrs. Hickman's late husband, Charles T. Hickman, died suddenly April 19 of a heart attack. Appointment of a successor was deferred until the beginning of the new fiscal year for economy reasons.

The new sheriff, first of her sex ever to be appointed to the office in Monongalia County, holds a degree from West Virginia University. For several years she taught school in this section. She says she has no pronounced views on law enforcement, will seek no radical changes and will not disturb the present personnel of the sheriff's office and police forces.

Gypsies Pray at Hospital For Recovery of Princess

Baltimore, June 21 (Spl.).—A princess lay near death in the Johns Hopkins Hospital today, and outside the building a group of her loyal subjects chanted prayers for her recovery.

She is Mrs. Lena Frank, 37, a princess of the Romany Tribe of American gypsies. She was stricken last Sunday at New Haven, Conn., and physicians there diagnosed her ailment as a brain tumor.

Members of her tribe, including her husband, Miller Frank, and their seven children, had heard of the fame of Dr. Walter Dandy, brain surgeon of Johns Hopkins.

She was placed in an automobile and Frank drove day and night to reach Baltimore. At the hospital, Dr. Dandy ordered an immediate operation and the princess had the brain tumor removed last night.

Today, through mysterious means of communication known only to the gypsies, other members of her tribe scattered throughout the East had learned their princess was seriously ill. By noon four automobile loads of gypsies had arrived to join the Frank family in prayers for Mrs. Frank's recovery.

Morticians End Session.

Norfolk, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—S. W. Townes, jr., of Danville, was selected as president of the Virginia Funeral Directors Association at its closing session today. It was decided to have the 1935 convention in Harrisonburg.

75-House Unit To Start Soon

First Group of 50 Near Completion at Arthurdale.

Reedsville, W. Va., June 21 (Spl.). Construction of a second unit of 75 houses at the Federal subsistence homestead project at Arthurdale will begin within the next three weeks, according to Ornan B. Smart, general manager of the project. Plans had been held in abeyance for several weeks regarding further construction, while finishing touches were being put on the first unit of 50 houses there.

A school house of sufficient capacity to accommodate all children expected to be on the project after its completion will be included in the new building program, Smart says.

Details concerning the construction of a privately owned factory at the project will be discussed at a conference between Mr. Smart and Federal officials in Washington within a few days. It will be built near Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks in Reedsville and will manufacture household appliances.

While this enterprise will be independent of the homestead project, homesteaders will be employed both in the construction work and in the manufacturing after the plant is completed, thus giving them aid in paying for their homestead plots and homes.

A bill in Congress authorizing the construction of a Government factory at the project failed of passage.

To diversify the industry available and spread employment among the homesteaders, plans are being considered for the construction of other privately owned plants in the immediate vicinity of the project.

Two Are Injured As Truck Crashes

Frederick, Md., June 21 (Spl.).—Cyrus Bradenburg, 47, and Reno Brandenburg, 17, his son, both of Hagerstown, narrowly escaped being killed when a truck in which they were riding careened off the highway last night near Unionville and plunged 30 feet into a creek. Both were taken to the city, where physicians said their injuries are serious.

The elder Brandenburg was driving the truck, loaded with merchandise, to Hagerstown. It failed to take a curve at the foot of a hill a few feet from the bridge. The machine crashed through the guard rail and landed in a shallow stream. The two occupants were brought to the hospital in an ambulance. Cyrus Brandenburg sustained a broken shoulder, fractured ribs and bruises about the body. His son suffered a dislocated right hip and body bruises.

The impact tore off the body of the truck and it collapsed on the cab. About 30 feet of the guard rail was demolished. Some of the merchandise was scattered a distance of 75 feet.

Maryland NRA Head Defends Code Results

Hungerford Replies to Attack by Leader of Drug Association.

Baltimore, June 21 (Spl.).—Replying to the attack of Dr. L. V. Johnson, president of the Maryland Pharmaceutical Association, upon the NRA and the retail drug code, Arthur E. Hungerford, Maryland director of the NRA, today asserted that the code is aiding the drug trade.

He said four disputes between druggists and their employes have been taken up by the NRA arbitration division.

He criticized the statements of Dr. Johnson that business men could have devised better codes than the "boy professors" and "brain trusters" who drew up the codes, and said business men had control of the situation from 1929 to about the middle of 1933, but they "hadn't done such a fine job."

The members of each industry have their own code authority, chosen by men in the same profession or business, he added.

Citing the work done by the NRA in Maryland recently, Mr. Hungerford said that of 1,500 complaints submitted since February, 140 were ruled without basis, 250 now await hearing, 1 awaits possible prosecution by the district attorney's office, and all others have been settled.

Board Insists Rum Protests Be Specific

ABC Heads Assert Groups Will Not Control License Action.

Richmond, June 21 (AP).—The Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board said today it will ignore general protests against wine and beer licenses in a particular neighborhood unless they contain specific charges as to the suitability of the place or person for which a particular license is asked.

The statement refers to a recent action of a group of Richmond residents.

Yesterday a delegation headed by Jesse H. Binford, superintendent of schools, demanded that no wine or beer permits be issued in the Northside section of the city. Several ministers and representatives of women's church groups were in the delegation.

Similar action was taken by officials and citizens of Bridgewater, who said they wanted no licensees or liquor stores in the community. They said it was a college town and that it was dry, "and wished to remain so."

The board called attention to its desire for suggestions toward a more efficient administration.

"The board, however, is limited in its powers to those granted it by the Legislature," the statement said.

"Whenever the question arises as to whether an applicant shall receive a license this board feels that the sentiment of a particular group against issuance is not sufficient reason for refusal, unless it can be shown that the applicant is not a suitable person, or his place of business not a suitable place or that there are already a sufficient number of licenses in that neighborhood.

"In addition the board may have knowledge of facts which it believes sufficient to justify refusal of a license.

"The board feels that expression of the will of the people of this Commonwealth demands that a trial, at least, be given administration of the ABC act. Any citizen, or group of citizens, sincerely interested in the promotion of temperance in the State, can only hamper efforts of the board to administer properly this act by passing upon the merit before a trial has been had."

Va. Luther League Selects Officers

Staunton, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Installation of officers tonight featured the closing session of the convention of Luther League of Synod of Virginia.

Miss Thelma Graham, of Salem, Va., assumed office of president. Other officers are Miss Margaret Sue Copenhaver, Marion, vice president; Frances V. Miller, Shenandoah, secretary; Clifford O. Bowman, Salem, treasurer, and Lewis Bowers, Roanoke, statistical secretary.

Knoxville, Tenn., was selected for next year's convention. On today's program were the Rev. A. L. Minnick, of Harrisonburg; Miss Graham, Kenneth Harper, the Rev. Lewis Koon, Miss Ethel Nunn and Miss Edith Richardson.

About 150 young people from Virginia, parts of West Virginia and Tennessee attended the convention.

Machinist Falls Dead.

Ronceverte, W. Va., June 21 (Spl.). Robert Goodall, 53, fell dead while on duty as a machinist in the Chesapeake & Ohio round house in Ronceverte last night. Surviving him are his widow and six children.

'Hot Stuff' Diary, Written by Wife, Gets Man Divorce

Baltimore, June 21 (Spl.).—Entries in the diary of Mrs. Mae F. Kennedy, a night club entertainer, were instrumental today in leading Judge Eugene O'Dunne to grant a divorce to her husband.

One of the passages in the diary read, "Stayed at home for a change, but was with a nice boy friend. He is hot stuff."

Questioned by the judge as to the meaning of the expression "hot stuff," Mrs. Kennedy said it was just a figure of speech.

Other entries:

"Went to a roadhouse with the boy friend, and passed out. Had a good time, though.

"Went to Deputy Sheriff's Club and got tanked up.

"Stayed home with my old man. Honest to goodness, he sure is a pain in the neck."

Shaeffer Speaker At Insurance Meet

Will Talk Before Virginia Association.

Staunton, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—William H. Shaeffer, of Baltimore, chief of the insurance department of the Federal Land Bank, will be the principal speaker here tomorrow at the twelfth annual meeting of the Virginia Association of Mutual Insurance Companies. Another speaker will be Harry P. Cooper, secretary of the National Association of Mutual Insurance Companies. Over 60 insurance officials are expected to attend.

The one-day convention will be held at the Beverley Hotel, beginning at 10 a. m. Gilbert E. Pence, of Woodstock, is president of the Virginia association, and John H. Rolston, of Harrisonburg, secretary-treasurer. John H. East, vice president, and E. D. McClure, secretary-treasurer, of the East Augusta Mutual Fire Insurance Co., are handling local arrangements for the convention.

3 More Cases Of Malta Fever Are Reported

Disease Is Transmitted From Cows on Farms Near Hagerstown.

Hagerstown, Md., June 21 (Spl.). Three new cases of Malta fever were reported to the health department this week, as the drive to eliminate from county herds abortive cattle, cause of the disease, is being pushed.

Hagerstown had an outbreak of the disease several years ago, but last year the work of cleaning up the herds supplying the trade here was completed. The milk sold by the 28 distributors here has been free from Malta fever germs for the last three months.

The new cases are on farms, and are believed to have been contracted either by coming in contact with the infected cow, or by drinking the milk.

Already between 40 and 50 herds in Washington County, other than those supplying the Hagerstown trade, have been tested and about 20 per cent of them showed positive reactions. The infected cows are immediately separated from the herd and either slaughtered or treated.

The health department reports that constant vigilance is necessary in keeping the disease under control, as it spreads much more rapidly in a herd than does bovine tuberculosis.

Farmers have been cooperating with the health department, which makes the tests free of charge.

Counties Tax Incomes Drop

Albermarle and Grayson Audit Results Are Revealed.

Richmond, June 21 (AP).—Conditions of finances in two counties were shown today in a report by State Auditor McCarthy Downs on audits of Albemarle and Grayson Counties.

In both audits, the tax situation, in common with that in most Virginia counties, showed a decrease in local taxes collected, with a corresponding increase in uncollected local taxes.

In Albemarle County, for the fiscal year ending in 1931, local taxes collected amounted to $392,364.37, while in the fiscal year ending in 1933 this total had dropped to $313,696.67. Uncollected local taxes increased from $51,771.86 to $71,085.60.

For the same period Grayson County's collected local taxes decreased from $91,775.35 to $73,920.45, and the uncollected local taxes increased from $11,640.18 to $14,387.13.

Supplements received from the Commonwealth by Albemarle County decreased from $173,950.16 to $93,908.80. In Grayson County these supplements dropped from $96,135.55 to $62,591.78.

Accounts of the officers of the two counties were, generally, in good condition.

18 Schools to Be Painted.

Hagerstown, Md., June 21 (Spl.). Eighteen school buildings, including the Hagerstown High School, will be painted with FERA labor, the Board of Education announces. The installation of sanitary toilets in rural schools, which project was only half completed under the CWA, will be finished by the FERA.

D. A. R. Chapters Celebrate Betty Washington's Birthday

Fredericksburg, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—The Fredericksburg and Culpeper Chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution yesterday celebrated the 200th anniversary of the birth of Betty Washington Lewis, only sister of the first President.

Several hundred women gathered to celebrate the bicentennial on the lawn of Kenmore, the historic mansion, planned by Washington, which for many years was the home of his sister and her husband, Col. Fielding H. Lewis.

Col. Fielding Lewis was the famous Revolutionary patriot, who exhausted his fortune in a plant to manufacture arms and primitive cannon for the fight of the Colonies for freedom. Betty Washington Lewis, who was born at Wakefield, birthplace of the first President, died in Culpeper County.

George F. Guy, former chief of the Virginia Civil Works Administration and at present on the historic staff of the Fredericksburg National Battlefield Memorial Park, delivered an address to the patriotic society in which he pointed out Betty Washington's title to the rank of the first daughter of the American Revolution.

"Betty Washington Lewis' fortitude in this home, on what was at that time the edge of the town, against the frontier bristling with the threat of the savage, her successful efforts to make a beautiful home as well as a clean home, and the encouragement she gave to her husband during those trying times when he was dissolving his private fortune to help the Colonial cause, alike mark her title to first rank among the woman patriots of our country," Mr. Guy said.

The guests were welcomed by Mrs. Vivian Minor Fleming, who organized and has directed for years the activities of the Kenmore Association, a National body of women formed to raise money for the restoration and preservation of Betty Washington's home in its original state.

N. C. to Fight Rumored Plan Of Scenic Road

Rep. Weaver Believes His State Should Get More of Highway.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Weaver, of North Carolina yesterday said if the route recommended by a special committee for the proposed Shenandoah-Great Smoky Mountains National Park Scenic Highway is what he understands it to be, North Carolina will be dissatisfied and will take its case directly to Public Works Administrator Ickes.

The route recommended for the proposed $16,000,000 parkway which will connect the two National parks in Virginia and North Carolina-Tennessee has not been made public.

Mr. Weaver, said he understood the proposed route in North Carolina would turn right near Linville and go into Tennessee, skipping the Craggy and Mount Mitchell ranges in North Carolina.

He said it was his understanding the report recommended that the road be forked near the Tennessee line, providing entrances to the Great Smoky Mountain National Park in North Carolina and Tennessee.

The North Carolina entrance would be near the Tennessee line and the Tennessee entrance at Gatlinburg.

North Carolina sought all the road after it leaves Virginia, proposing an entrance to the Great Smoky Park at Soco Gap, claiming it was entitled to the project because Tennessee had the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The committee authorized by Mr. Ickes to recommend a route was composed of Arno Cammerer, National park director; George L. Radcliffe, of Baltimore, regional public works administrator, and Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Federal Bureau of Roads.

Staunton College Paper Is Honored

Washington Girl Is Sports Editor of Organ.

Campus Comments, weekly newspaper at Mary Baldwin College, Staunton, Va., of which Miss Mary Delia Nichols, of the Kenesaw Apartments here, was sports editor, has been given first honor rating by the National Scholastic Press Association, it was announced yesterday.

Miss Nichols is to be make-up editor during the coming school year. Washington also was represented on the paper this year by Miss Helen Sheldon, of 1850 Kalorama road northwest. Miss Emily Timberlake, of Staunton, was editor-in-chief.

Other staff members included: Miss Helen La Vorst Miller, of New Hope, Va., business manager; Miss Helen Inez Waide, Staunton, managing editor; Miss Harriet Schofield, Upper Darby, Pa., assistant business manager, and Dr. Mary Swan Carroll, professor of journalism, faculty adviser.

Assault Trial Delayed; Victim Still Unconscious

Fredericksburg, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—The trial of Louis Bumbrey, 29, colored, of Hartwood, Stafford County, charged with beating Jake Kurz, jr., at the Falmouth Bridge Tuesday, is being delayed pending the outcome of Kurz's injuries.

Young Kurz, a first cousin of Miss Fannie Kurz, who was fatally assaulted in the Fredericksburg Battlefield Park by an unknown assailant on the night of May 20, is still unconscious from blows to his head. Attending physicians have made no report describing the extent of the injuries of Kurz, who is believed to be suffering from a skull fracture.

Former Legion Leader Registers for Office

Moorefield, W. V., June 21 (Spl.). Hetzel Pownall, of this city, former State commander of the American Legion, has registered himself in the office of the secretary of state at Charleston as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Fourteenth district State senator. He seeks the seat now held by Senator E. Bunker Reynolds, of Keyser.

Senator A. L. Helmick, of Tucker County, is the holdover senator of the district, which comprises Mineral, Grant, Hardy, Preston and Tucker Counties. Roy E. Wiseman, of Elk Garden, Mineral County, has also filed for the nomination.

Delmarva Peninsula Churches to Convene

Ocean City, Md., June 21 (Spl.).—The fifth annual summer conference of the Episcopal Churches of the Delmarva Peninsula will be held here June 24 through June 29.

The conference will be conducted by a faculty of 11 teachers and 5 officers. The officers are the Rev. J. W. Davenport, Bishop of Easton, president; the Rev. Phillip Cook, Bishop of Delaware, and C. S. Abott, of Washington, vice presidents; C. L. Atwater, Chestertown, Md., business manager and treasurer, and P. L. Donaghay, Middletown, Del., secretary.

Huge Still Is Seized By Federal Agents

Hagerstown, Md., June 21 (Spl.).—One of the largest seizures since prohibition was made by Federal agents beneath a mill at Grimes Station. Peter Ruffner was arrested and charged with violating the internal revenue act. He will be given a hearing before U. S. Commissioner D. Angle Wolfinger.

Federal agents said that a 1,000-gallon copper still, 4,100 gallons of mash, 40 gallons of spirits, one 500-gallon flake stand and cap worm, four 1,000-gallon fermenters, two 50-gallon fermenters and much other material were found.

Roanoke Is Urged To Expand Relief

Roanoke, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—William A. Smith, director of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration in Virginia, is urging Roanoke City authorities to increase materially the appropriation for relief purposes.

He estimates that the city should make available at least $5,000 per month as Federal money to the extent of around $20,000 per month has been spent here in recent months.

The local Social Service Bureau is handicapped because of inadequate funds to meet the relief needs, according to Miss May O. Hankins, director. The city has made available about $12,000 for relief purposes in the last five months.

Williamsport Takes Sewer System Bids

Williamsport, Md., June 21 (Spl.).—Seven bids, ranging from $69,990.50 to $91,083, were submitted for the construction of the new sewerage system, which will soon be started. The sewerage commission said the contract would be awarded next week.

A legislative act authorized the town to issue bonds, not exceeding $88,000 for the system, while Federal aid to the amount of 30 per cent of the cost will be furnished by the Public Works Administration.

Police Are Aroused By Baseball Thefts

Hagerstown, Md., June 21 (Spl.).—Police have declared war on youngsters accused of stealing baseballs at the municipal stadium.

Juvenile Judge Harry E. Snyder warns that youths brought before him on such a charge will be dealt with severely. Police have learned that a group of youths have been making a business of waiting for balls hit over the fence, and selling them.

Former School Teacher Gets $2,000 Heart Balm

Grafton, W. Va., June 21 (Spl.).—A jury in the Taylor County Circuit Court, after deliberating four hours, awarded $2,000 heart balm to Mrs. Florence Shaffer, 35, a former school teacher, in her breach of promise suit against Leroy Powell, 47, a Baltimore & Ohio Railroad conductor.

Mrs. Shaffer sued Powell for $20,000 damages, alleging that he had promised to marry her and failed to carry out the promise.

Japan's Naval Dilemma.

Japanese suspicions that Great Britain and the United States are shaping a common naval policy in the preliminary London conferences appear to be entirely unfounded. These discussions are intended merely to prepare the way for negotiation of a new naval limitation treaty next year. In reality the uneasiness which is being manifested in Tokyo seems to rise from an inherent weakness of policy rather than from any tangible evidence of a developing cooperative action between London and Washington.

The present conference between American and British diplomats is, however, a direct result of Japan's recalcitrance. Both of the former powers are anxious to renew the curbs on naval construction adopted at Washington in 1922 and at London in 1930, in spite of the "big navy" talk emanating from some groups. Japan alone has made known a decision to demand a larger navy than these treatie contemplate. It is quite natural, therefore, that the other two parties to the agreements should consult between themselves on the situation thus created. Neither seems to have any intention of suggesting an Anglo-American naval alliance, yet the attitude of Japan unquestionably tends to create a common interest between them.

Apparently Japan did not foresee that her proposal for a larger navy might drive American and British policy closer together. Her current awakening to that possibility is having a salutary effect. Some statesmen in Tokyo begin to realize that the increased naval strength which they seek might easily be more than offset by a feeling of common cause among the powers still favorable to disarmament.

Another indication of Japan's anxiety about the naval issue is the intemperate reaction to Admiral Pratt's article in Foreign Affairs. With careful deliberation this American naval expert has pointed out the defects in Japan's argument for more fighting ships. In response, spokesmen in Tokyo contend that world conditions have changed since the Washington treaty was adopted; that a larger navy is essential to defend Manchukuo; to offset the concentration of the American Navy in the Pacific, and because 42 members of the League of Nations voted against lonely Japan in accepting the Lytton report.

In other words, Japan is arguing that because a policy of aggression has aroused antagonism, that antagonism justifies more weapons of aggression. Oriental statecraft is generally more subtle than that.

Japan is now face to face with the alternative of cooperating in international peace efforts or of playing a lone imperial hand. It is well that possible results of failure to renew the naval treaty are being defined well in advance of the conference. For its failure would undoubtedly tend further to isolate Japan from cooperative action in the world community.

Paying In Kind.

The suggestion that Great Britain might make payments in kind on war debt account raises the question as to what classes of goods would be acceptable to this country. Commodities so used should not offer serious competition to domestic products, and they should be easily available to the debtor country. If the debtor were forced to buy goods abroad in order to obtain suitable means of payment, the transfer difficulties which payments in kind are designed to obviate would simply appear in another form. With these reservations in mind, it is evident that the British have an exceedingly restricted field from which to select goods.

In 1933, nine commodities accounted for 44 per cent of the value of all imports into the United States. They were coffee, cane sugar, raw silk, newsprint paper, wood pulp, tin, rubber, hides and skins and furs. With the exception of sugar and certain hides and skins, all these articles enter duty free, because they either are not produced at all in the United States or else in insufficient amounts. To avoid complaints of competition, payments in kind would have to be made chiefly by tendering these commodities, which constitute the bulk of our non-competitive imports.

Last year the value of British exports to the United States was not much over half the amount due on the war debt annuities. These exports, moreover, consisted largely of manufactured articles, the sale of which in this market could not be greatly expanded without encountering opposition from American industrialists. Tin shipments which amounted to about $20,000,000 last year would be an acceptable tender, but it is obvious that such colonial products would not assist the British government in meeting a debt due to this country.

The Treasury suggestion resembles one of those trial balloons that explodes when it collides with a few hard facts. It may, however, have some value as a device for obtaining concessions in connection with trade and tariff negotiations.

"Gang Aft A-Gley."

Within twelve months the Administration has added 77,122 employes to its pay roll. The latest report of the Civil Service Commission shows that 644,108 civilian employes were working for the executive branch of the Federal Government at the end of April, an increase of nearly 14 per cent in a single year.

The most striking aspect of this upward surge of bureaucracy is its haphazard character. No such vast addition of Government employes was planned when President Roosevelt entered the White House. Nor were any provisions made for thoughtful personnel development in these new bureaus and commissions which are regulating business, finance and agriculture. They have sprung up like mushrooms after a storm. And almost every new agency has been made to serve a double purpose; that for which it was created, and as a happy hunting ground for spoilsmen.

In his address at Yale, President Roosevelt apparently tried to smooth over these unfortunate facts. "In my own mind and, I am quite sure, in the minds of most leaders in the Federal Government," he said, "qualification from the standpoint of ability rather than from politics enters into most of the choices that are made."

By contrast, the Civil Service Commission reports that virtually all of the new employes have been appointed without benefit of the merit system. The Tennessee Valley Authority adopted a competitive plan for selection of its own personnel. Some employes of the AAA and the FCA have been chosen through civil service examination. But these are exceptions to the rule that political credentials are the first necessity in securing a job in the agencies of recovery.

It must be somewhat disconcerting for the President to reflect that this staggering extension of bureaucracy and the spoils system has come about directly contrary to his own wishes and better judgment. He is so clearly on record in forceful opposition to the trend which he must now ineffectively seek to palliate. In his campaign speech at Pittsburgh on October 20, 1932, he sharply criticized the idea "that we ought to center control of everything in Washington as rapidly as possible." Continuing, he said:

> That was the idea that increased Government costs by a billion in four years. Now, ever since the days of Thomas Jefferson, that has been the exact reverse of the Democratic concept. . . .

In this same address Mr. Roosevelt promised to "reduce the cost of the current Federal Government operations by 25 per cent." "Of course, that means," he continued, "a complete realignment of the unprecedented bureaucracy that has assembled in Washington in the past four years."

The text of this, and other speeches made when he was seeking election, reveal that Mr. Roosevelt planned to make substantial savings by "reorganization of existing departments, by eliminating functions, by abolishing many of the innumerable boards and commissions which over long periods have grown up as excrescences of the regular system." It is these good intentions which made particularly tragic the growth of new Federal agencies, commissions, authorities, &c., a phenomenon exceeded only by the advance in the National debt.

All of which goes to show the acute difficulties which confront the idea of extensive Federal planning. A President who planned, before election, such relatively simple matters as reduction of expenditures and elimination of bureaucracy has somehow, in spite of unchallenged political control, proceeded in a diametrically opposite direction. It is an outcome depicted long ago by Bobbie Burns as normal, in the affairs of mice as well as men.

Ocean Mail Contracts.

Revelations of the large sums which the Government is losing through ocean mail contracts are a natural preliminary to the thorough revision of the system which the Administration promises to recommend to the next Congress.

Back in the easy-going days of 1928 Congress launched a venture that was expected to produce rich dividends in the form of increased foreign trade and merchant marine development. Its objective was worthy. But obviously the method chosen to achieve that objective was lacking in safeguards against abuse. And the abuses have remained in aggravated form, while the depression has swept away most of the anticipated gains of the program.

Today we are learning that on the present basis it not infrequently costs the Government thousands of dollars to send a single pound of mail abroad, while excessive delays are encouraged rather than curtailed. The instance is cited of three ships which not long ago sailed simultaneously, each carrying one letter—for a return of $12,000 apiece. Of course, there is a tendency today to observe only the unsatisfactory results of the present system and forget its original objective. But most assuredly Congress did not authorize the expenditure of about $25,000,000 per year to transport mail which might have been shipped more expeditiously for $3,000,000.

Since the chief purpose of these appropriations was to develop the American merchant fleet, it is unfair to treat the whole question as if it were merely one of transporting ocean mail. It has been evident for a long time that some companies have taken advantage of the Government through deficiencies of the present law. Moreover, the economic changes which have taken place since this law was enacted alone indicate that a thorough overhauling is desirable. But this should not and need not mean a simple return to conditions under which American ships were driven from the seas because of competition from countries with lower building and operating costs.

The situation calls for a searching study to determine the actual need for American shipping lines, the amount of subsidy essential to keep them in operation, and a strict plan of regulation to make certain that the funds intended to aid the merchant fleet are not dissipated at a time when stringent economy in Federal expenses is vital. Exception is not taken to a reasonable subsidy system, but to methods of compensation which seem to have degenerated into something akin to legalized racketeering.

Invalidating The Gold Clause.

If the decision of Federal Judge Faris, upholding cancellation of the gold clause in contracts, is sustained on appeal, creditors will have to devise new forms of protection against future losses due to devaluation of the currency.

Judge Faris, in St. Louis, rules that bonds issued by the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co., payable in gold coin of the weight and fineness existing at the time of issue, may be paid in dollars now current, without allowance for subsequent depreciation. In other words, a contractual promise to pay a certain amount of gold has been converted by an act of Congress into an agreement to pay the same nominal sum in irredeemable paper of lower gold values. If the currency had been devalued to the point at which it represented no gold value whatever, the decision would presumably have been the same.

The right to abrogate the gold clause in private contracts is considered to rest upon the power of Congress to determine the value of money. Every person, therefore, according to Judge Faris, enters into a contract knowing that Congress may pass a law altering or changing the medium of exchange and nobody, he avers, has a right to make contracts which seek to nullify or obstruct that power. It is also pointed out that literal fulfillment of the contract is impossible, since gold is not obtainable.

In stating that the promise to pay in gold is merely a promise to pay a commodity, the judge ignores the plain intention of the gold clause—namely to provide a form of monetary payment which would provide protection against the kind of manipulation that has occurred. That protection, of course, could be given by transferring to the creditor a sufficient number of dollars to compensate for the reduced gold value of the currency unit. The refusal to make the gold clause practically effective in this way, however, is easily understood, since it would, as the decision says, "bankrupt well-nigh every railroad, every municipality, every road district, or similar instrumentality of State government, and well-nigh every State in the Union."

In short, Congress, by authorizing devaluation of the dollar, has virtually made it incumbent upon the courts to find arguments providing justification for failure to meet the terms of private contracts entered into in good faith. The decision is patently opportunistic. But under the circumstances, it could hardly have been otherwise.

The courts, like the people, have to accept the consequences of the repudiation by the Federal Government of promises to pay in gold. That action entails a whole series of damaged contracts affecting State and local governments, private debtors and creditors. Fundamentally the impotence of the courts to safeguard the contractual rights of individuals is a more serious indictment of the gold policy of the Administration than the economic disturbances created by suspension of gold payments and dollar devaluation.

Heat In The Afternoon.

We can not help reflecting, as the mercury rises, that it might have been well if, instead of quarreling with Spain years ago, we had imported her way of living to this part of the country. Had we checked our mad rush for progress when we were able, all of us might this morning be looking forward to a grand siesta.

Alas, it is too late now to change. Our whole Anglo-Saxon culture would tumble if suddenly Americans should become sane and declare a daily moratorium on work between the hours of 2 and 4:30, as they do in Spain. We are so painfully energetic in this country that we have never even taken up the semicivilized custom of afternoon tea. We are even worse than mad dogs and Englishmen when it comes to going out in the noonday sun. And most of us sincerely believe in the old Puritan hymnal admonition to "Work, for the night is coming."

And so we look upon Spain as decadent because that gay, if somewhat impulsive, country knows how to adapt itself to a torrid climate. No city dweller there would think of leaving his bed at the hour when sleep is most refreshing. Everybody stops at 2 and sleeps until about 5. Then it is soon time to rest again, prepare for a late dinner, go still later to the theater and retire well after midnight when morn's slight chill has got between the sheets.

We are reminded of all this because the police are now enforcing a law in Madrid which forbids all music in any public place during the siesta period. Townspeople complained of radios, even in cafes. What delightful intelligence! But imagine such a complaint in our enlightened land!

No; we prefer to swelter all day, and sweat all night, and the wider the window the louder the radio. But we are progressive; we work hard; we never stop for the heat or cold! Whew! A little Spanish decadence would do us good. Siestas for city folk should be a part of the New Deal! And if that insidious and thoroughly un-American suggestion doesn't put us in the "red network" we hereby suggest it as our daily contribution to the more abundant life.

And just to think—the Literary Digest had to spend around a million dollars to learn that, from a majority standpoint, people are for President Roosevelt and bankers are against him!

We are happy to note that the G. O. P. has at last found its issue. Somebody has discovered that the Deal must be Square, not New.—The New Yorker. As if a square deal wouldn't be new!

Maybe some of the debtor nations could be persuaded to remit to Uncle Sam a partial installment on a token payment.

People differ. Some object to a fan dancer, and others to the fan.

Matches and the NRA.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The most picayune and simple-minded feature of the NRA is the placing of a limit on the number of matches to be handed out to purchasers of cigars. It is one of the causes of delay in bringing about revival of business.

People buy according to their means, and do not expect a high grade article for a small sum. If cigars were all of the same grade the match might be an incentive. I doubt, however, if a match or a hairpin would be a sufficient inducement to buy an inferior article. Like all other commodities, those who have limited means go to out-of-the-way places to make their purchases of the lower grade; to a more prominent location for a better grade, and to the most prominent for the highest grade.

Let us get down to brass tacks and break these bonds of regimentation to make this country a free and unbridled citizenry. Prohibition was unenforceable; likewise is the NRA. Suspend it for just one year, don't wait ten years as we did with prohibition—and note the result. As with the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, we might wish to return to the NRA, but I doubt it. FRISBIE GILBERT.
Washington, June 21.

The Radical List.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with interest the article in The Post on the Radical list.

Undoubtedly it will prove an unpleasant awakening for some persons whose names appear. There is no denying that there are foreign interests at work in this country attempting to secure control of this Government, and that the said interests have plenty of funds to camouflage their real intention to create confusion on important subjects in the minds of the general public and also to convince other desirable citizens as to the propriety of supporting their schemes.

Now, to make a long story short, it behooves the substantial business man or woman to be very careful in joining or indorsing by name, letter or cash enterprises about which they know little or nothing.

Mrs. Dilling's book is painfully accurate according to some authorities in Philadelphia.

Probably this book will be reprinted, as it is a compilation of established facts in convenient form. It was probably suggested by Who's Who in America" and "Who's Who in U. S. S. R."

PRO BONO PUBLICO AMERICANO.

Protests Filling Station.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I enlist the aid of your columns in calling to the attention of the public a project which, should it be permitted, would utterly destroy the beauty of the section concerned, and, at the same time, tend to nullify the benefit of the millions of dollars already expended in improving and beautifying that section?

The project to which I refer, and for which a petition is now in circulation, is the installation of a filling station at the northeast corner of Connecticut avenue and Calvert street. This is not a matter which should be settled by securing a given number of signatures of owners of nearby property. The pride of every citizen is involved; but unless we are quickly on the alert this unspeakable affront to the artistic feeling of our people as a whole, is going to be accomplished, and the thousands of people annually visiting the Capital of their country will be told: "This, before you, is the famed Taft Bridge, and this on your left, the equally handsome new Calvert Street Bridge. Please close your eyes to the atrocities which mar what might have been an approach of unparalleled loveliness."

CIVIC PRIDE.
Washington, June 20.

The General and The Post.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Two opinions were printed in your columns of June 21 about The Post. One was a letter from "An Old Subscriber—and Not a New Dealer." The other was the opinion of the editor of the Kansas City Times (the evening edition of the Kansas City Star).

"An Old Subscriber," after congratulating your paper upon progress under its new management, sets forth a criticism: He paints The Post as hostile to Gen. Johnson for political reasons. But the editor of the Kansas City Times—and no one stands higher among the country's competent critics of editorial policy—says, "Mr. Meyer has transformed a moribund newspaper into a first-class reporter and interpreter of National news. He has sunk partisanship and made The Washington Post independent. It reports news of the Capital fully and intelligently and comments on it competently. In his direction of his newspaper Mr. Meyer is doing a National service."

Mr. Meyer, in response to a radio broadcast attack, made on a Nation-wide hook-up, himself stated the attitude of The Post with respect to Gen. Johnson. He said: "The Post has a high regard for the ability, energy and devotion to the public interest of Gen. Johnson."

Gen. Johnson has done fine work, without doubt, but it can not be denied that he has invited sharp comment by his fondness for calling names, for over-dramatizing himself in publicity, and for using language which justifies the feeling that he has yielded at times to bad temper and lack of restraint in his expressions of resentment of fair and justified criticism. It is my personal opinion that you have tended to lean backward by temperately refusing to take advantage of the many openings he offers for legitimate reproach.

ANOTHER OLD SUBSCRIBER.
Washington, June 21.

"Open" vs. "Closed" Shop.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The recent labor troubles in Washington makes this an opportune time to discuss the "open" or "closed shop" issue. American ideals of fair competition and equal opportunity are denied in the "closed shop." The original purposes of labor unions were the raising of wages and improving living conditions. They organized to obtain a monopoly on wages, but never on labor.

Denying work to a man merely because he doesn't belong to the same organization is not only unjust, but is wrong in principle. A workman should be judged by his ability and fitness and not by his affiliations. The "closed shop" denies many thousands of men their rightful living in order that a comparatively few may prosper excessively.

There is no insurmountable reason why the great majority of workmen outside of unions should tolerate such injustices. And, after all, a good workman never needs a union anyway.

GAROLD T. HYZER.

Ringing the Bell.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Just a word of appreciation for Nelson Bell's fine understanding and exposition of our problems. I read his articles with much interest always.

On Preparedness.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Our Nation has one characteristic in common with China—it's repugnance to the maintenance of an ample standing army! Both nations seem firmly convinced that an army is a poor investment for precious dollars, and thus when war does break out neither is ready.

Our specialty in economy is to save one dollar out of every two necessary in time of peace and then, in war-time, spend $20 for the two we ought to have spent in preparedness! Yet we brag on our National shrewdness! Even when the World War set humanity's house in a blaze we couldn't be induced to open our National purse—we were going to maintain neutrality, even in thought, and make oodles of money out of the big fire sale! Our stinginess was transformed into reckless extravagance, and in the feverish orgie billions were wasted both during the war and after in our sudden attempt to become the saviour of a world that didn't want salvation!

And now, when the whole world is again armed to the teeth, we are playing the same old-time childish game. We are too economical to increase the army force up to 250,000 yet hilariously start a forestry army of that number, although a forestry recruit costs a third more than an army rookie! And that's economy? In fact it's neither economy nor ordinary horse sense; it just shows how unteachable politicians and people are—how "save a penny and waste a dollar" still appeals to us as a special brand of smartness! GORDON LESLIE.
San Diego, May 28.

Congratulations!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It was with surprise and gratification that I read the announcement that I had won third place in the "Talking Sparrow Murders" contest. I enjoyed the story and found a great deal of pleasure in trying to work out a solution for it. I want to thank you very much for the generous award.

It struck me as a very unusual coincidence that the first and second prize winners and I should have had one thing in common. We all have been in ill health for a number of years and are unable to work, my forced retirement from active life having been somewhat longer than that of the other two.

Perhaps that is one reason why your interesting contest brought us so much pleasure.

Washington, June 18.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to acknowledge the check for $10 awarded me in "The Talking Sparrow Murder" contest.

I also wish to take this opportunity to convey my congratulations to The Washington Post for the vastly improved paper it has become and to the fiction editor for the interesting stories you are running. MRS. ALBERT E. WEST.

"Social Security."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The cotton mill code provides for no new machinery, and in that case why could not the NRA fix up an undertaker's code and "crack down" on raw material, and give us real "social security?" C. D.

The Post Impressionist

"Pretty Soft!"

Postoffice, Friday.

"I THINK," said Howard, night-before-last, "that ministers have it pretty soft. Their work's a cinch; everybody sets 'em on pedestals, and half their time they're just calling, or going to teas or dining out."

He spoke of clerical ministers, not diplomatic . . .

Late yesterday afternoon, a ministerial friend of Howard—still clerical and never diplomatic—dropped in to consult the Post-Impressionist about getting Howard out of his latest scrape. Our discussion intruded upon the cocktail-hour, wherein, however, the good man was no participant. We asked our caller to remain and dine with us on the roof.

Said he, with that rather baffling frankness which one sometimes encounters in parsons: "I'd better not."

We rudely pressed his honesty and asked him why.

"Because," he explained, "someone from my congregation might see me."

"Is there any harm in a roof-garden?"

"Not for you, no. But for me, yes. For me the harm lies as often in what my actions make people think about me as in the actions themselves—perhaps oftener. If certain people of my congregation saw me drinking ice tea at a roof-garden, they'd say it was a highball; and if I wasn't drinking anything, they'd say it was a pose.

"The fact is," continued this dominie, "a minister's work is hard; but his position, and the keeping up of it, is harder, and the hardest thing of all is the way people insist on placing him on a pedestal—against his protests—and they try to tear him off."

"Most laymen," he said, "think that all a minister has to do is prepare and deliver a couple of sermons a week, perform the marriage-ceremony once in a while, visit the sick and bury the dead. Those duties don't cover half his job. I don't mean he wants to shirk them: he doesn't. But—well, anyway take a look at just one of them.

"Nowadays, the average sermon must run twenty minutes—more, and the congregation won't like it; less, and they'll say the preacher's shirking. Suppose he preaches only Sundays, but at both services. That's 104 sermons a year—call it an even hundred, allowing for visiting clergymen, and vacation, and omitting extra services. He must preach 33 hours per annum. What Senator touches such a record?

"And there's no minister that isn't haunted by the fear of even unintentional repetition. We say our sermons aren't listened to. Right—if we mean 'marked, learned and inwardly digested.' Only, let one of us preach a year-old sermon over again, or part of such a sermon: a dozen members of his congregation will catch him.

"Then there's the work every minister has to do, but that nobody else realizes—unless he doesn't do it, in which case the whole flock jumps on him like a ton of bricks. I mean Sunday School, Bible Class, Boys' Club, Girls' Club, charity bazaars, keeping an eye on the choir and keeping peace in the Ladies' Aid. Do you think they're easy?

"But the most difficult thing about a minister's existence," said this minister, "is his social life. In every sense of the term, that's pretty awful—because, in one sense of the term, he hasn't any social life at all.

* * *

"In the first place, he can't safely make friends. Let him make them outside his own congregation, and his own congregation will say he cares more for people of another religion more than for the people of his own religion, so he evidently doesn't think much of his own religion! Or let him make a friend or two among the people of his own congregation, and the other people of that congregation will say he's playing favorites. If such friends happen to be powerful in his church, then he's suspected of being a toady. If they happen to be rich or intellectual, then he's called a snob. And if they're now powerful, rich or intellectual—why, then his powerful, rich or intellectual parishoners all turn against him for having low tastes or being a radical.

"What's the result?" asked the dominie.

And he answered his oratorical question:

"Nobody can be the close friend of everybody, so the minister must be the close friend of nobody. He must treat everybody pleasantly—and with just the same amount of pleasantness. He must be everybody's acquaintance, nobody's intimate.

"That's in the first place," continued Howard's friend. "In the second place, a minister has to keep to himself because nobody really wants him around. He's invited, and he has to go, but he's more alone away from his home than in it.

"Why? Why, because there are only two kinds of parishoners. There's the kind that say, 'We think a minister ought to be a regular minister.' They expect you never to talk except as if you were in the pulpit—and then they get bored with you; you're a wet blanket. Then there's the kind who say, 'We like a minister to be a man of the world.' So you begin to talk ever so little like one—and they say you're worldly.

"I love my work and believe in my religion. But the parson-pedestal isn't a necessary part of my religion. No sensible minister wants to be put on one, yet every parishoner wants to make a statue of him—and, once he's up, the parishoners all consider themselves art-critics.

"Phew!"

It was cool on the roof.

With

Carlisle Bargeron

It's the Woman's Fault.

SO help me goodness, if I haven't run across a paper which indicates if it does not definitely show that Prof. Tugwell considers that it is laziness, the undependability, the general unworthiness of women, that makes it necessary for him to try to make over the country. It is a review written by him in 1929 of Ralph Borsodi's "This Ugly Civilization."

BARGERON.

Borsodi says that we don't have to make over the country to have Utopia, that we can have it simply by reestablishing the old homestead—the old homestead with a "wide-shouldered house, surrounded by edible and fragrant growing things," where there will be the "recovery of lost companionship between men and women who have a common task."

• • • •

The professor, as I understand it, agrees that this would be pretty nice, but he contends that it is utterly impossible because of the shiftlessness of women. They don't want to do any work, he says, they don't want responsibility; all they want is comfort.

They would resist to the utmost the return to the old homestead, he says, because of their knowledge that "they now have most of the good things of life and hardly any of its responsibilities."

"Being practical creatures," he continues, "without an iota of those curious qualities men talk about but can never define—duty, discipline and all the rest—they intend to hang on to what they have and compromise nowhere."

The cynic will remind you, the professor says, that when women got the vote "they were going to do things about war, education, local politics, and all that. But nothing came of it; and nothing will ever come of any scheme which depends on the courage of women to move toward ideals or away from comforts."

However, as the cynic says, the professor continues, if the women want to do as they are doing, if they want to lose the influence which went with making the home the center of things, "it is their own funeral."

"What means most to us," he says, "is the work we have to do. All the rest is, for us, so unimportant that any kind of filling-in can be got along with somehow. We are just now busy remaking the world and our philosophy of it. There is a new industrial revolution afoot, and we have got, or we think we have got, to find out what it means. The truth is that we can depend on women so little (ouch) that we are learning to leave them out of the calculation. This we could not do in a rural civilization; nor could we in Mr. Borsodi's Utopia; but in the new world we are making there is no place—except as stenographers and machine-tenders—for women, unless that is, they care to pretend they are men and do things our way."

There is no doubt that if women decided they wanted to regain the power which went with the home, the professor says, they would make hash of our industrial civilization.

"Men have won a wholesale domination of affairs as things are now. This is at the expense of doing most of the work, but work, with us, has never been a consideration which could weigh against power. If the other sex, in order to shirk work, thought, worry, is willing to give up its former career of influence, perhaps we ought not to raise any questions at all."

I don't suppose I should carry this heart-breaking exposure along any further, but here is just one more I can't resist. He says that even if some one of us were to set up a most modern homestead somewhere with "ready-to-run chickens, bread-mixers, babies, automatic water system and kitchen garden—does any one imagine for a minute that one woman in a thousand would have the brains, foresight and stamina to make it run?"

In making this exposure of the professor's philosophy, I realize fully that I am not hurting him with his public. What it will do, of course, is to make him more intriguing. The women will think they can reform him.

Coal Dealers Hit Premium Practice

Hagerstown, Md., June 21 (Spl.). Means of curbing the practice of giving premiums with coal sales and coal truckers alleged to be underselling regular dealers were considered at a meeting of 25 coal dealers from four western Maryland counties here today.

John F. Palmer, chairman of division 12, code authority for the retail solid fuel industry, met with dealers to decide whether an emergency, as described in the code of fair competition, exists.

It was the object of the meeting to prohibit sale at prices less than cost as provided in the code.

Clarke Count Shows 1,356 County Voters

Berryville, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—According to the voting list for Clarke County, as compiled by the clerk of the circuit court, J. Edward Thoma, 1,356 persons will be eligible to vote this fall. Of that number, 57 are colored and 1,299 white.

The voting list by towns and district is Berryville, 357; Longmarsh District, 249; Battletown District, 224; Chapel District, 201; Greenway District, 200, and Boyce, 68.

ROBERT WALTON MOORE, Assistant Secretary of State. Coaxed from a well-earned private life amidst flowers at his Virginia estate, this gentle septuagenarian Southern connoisseur of mint juleps and native hams fills the post formerly held by Raymond Moley. The son of Virginians and Virginia-educated, he attained prominence as an international law authority, was elected to Congress six sessions, refused a candidacy for Governor of his State, legally advised railroads and the Interstate Commerce Commission and served as chairman of the first Import-Export Bank for Russia. Once sent Virginia ham to British Ambassador Lindsay. Got vintage Scotch in return. Courtly, affectionate, lovable—he is the idol of Department of State's young lads. Bachelor, raconteur, fancier of human beings, there is a subtle twinkle in his eye.

Such a large proportion of those who have been pictured by Mr. Robles have asked for the originals that The Washington Post is saving all these drawings to honor the requests of any future members of "The National Gallery."

The Horse Is Happier With the Harness Off

By Robert Quillen

Death is always dreadful, yet it is not uncommon to see people made happy by the death of a loved one.

They may have an uneasy feeling that their happiness is an evidence of heartless disloyalty, but happy they are, despite their qualms and their grief.

They are happy because they are free.

Obedience is not always an evidence of fear or weakness. In many instances—perhaps in all cases of willing obedience—it is an evidence and a service of love.

A husband who loves much may subordinate his will to that of his wife until obedience to her every whim becomes a fixed habit.

A devoted wife may so stifle her own personality in the effort to please her husband that she becomes an automatic servant of his will, without the ability to make an independent decision.

And dutiful sons and daughters, held in leash by selfish and unintelligent parents, may continue in child-like obedience long after they are grown, and never once feel free of restraint until death brings them release.

Such servitude to another's will may be endured without conscious resentment or self-pity, or any thought of rebellion, yet release from it may seem like the breaking of shackles.

Liberty is sweet. Only those who have long submitted to another's will can realize how sweet it is. In all human experience there is no greater privilege than freedom.

Just to do as you please, without dread of consequences or any uneasy conscience—just to "have your own way," without argument or reproaches, or any feeling of guilt—is to feel for the first time the full glory of natural manhood or womanhood.

It is unwise to hold another will subject—even in love. It is a form of tyranny, and any love a tyrant receives is the love of a slave for his accustomed chains.

Nurse Pushes $10,000 Suit

West Virginia Action Seeks Alienation Award Won in Maryland.

Cumberland, Md., June 21 (Spl.). Mrs. Ruth Wear Miller, local nurse, has instituted suit in the Circuit Court of Mineral County, at Keyser, W. Va., against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Flora M. Miller, of Ridgely, W. Va., in which she asks $10,000 with interest and costs. She seeks to obtain a West Virginia judgment, which was granted the plaintiff here in 1933 in Maryland.

The nurse was awarded $20,000 in Circuit Court, which assessed the mother-in-law for alienation of Mr. Miller's affections. Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan required the plaintiff to remit $10,000 of the verdict or one-half, with the understanding the local court would enter a judgment, but in the event she did not remit the specified amount, the court would have to grant a new trial.

She remitted the amount and the local court entered a judgment, from which Mrs. Flora Miller appealed to the Court of Appeals of Maryland, which heard the arguments in January and affirmed the ruling of Chief Judge Sloan, awarding the plaintiff a final judgment.

Mrs. Flora Miller owns considerable property in Mineral County and under the Maryland State laws judgment can not be executed on property out of the State. The case will probably be heard at the October term of court.

Page Informed Of Confirmation

Winchester, Va., June 21 (Spl.). W. Nelson Page, acting postmaster here for several months, received word today from Postmaster General James Farley that he had been confirmed as postmaster for a term of four years.

Mr. Page is a former chairman of the Winchester Democratic executive committee. He recently resigned his post on the city council. He plans to continue, however, as manager of the Lewis Jones Knitting Mills here.

Latin-America Institute Topic

Policy of 'Good Neighbor' Is Subject Selected by Group.

Charlottesville, Va., June 21 (AP). The "good neighbor" policy with Latin America and what it may mean to the United States is to be the subject of a round-table discussion at the Institute of Public Affairs in the University of Virginia, during the opening week of the eighth annual session, July 2 to 7.

Dr. Dana G. Munro, professor of Latin-American history at Princeton University and former chief of the Latin-American Bureau of the United States State Department, is to lead the conference. Engaged in studying conditions in Central and South American countries for 20 years, Dr. Munro is regarded as one of the Nation's best informed men in this field.

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, and proponent of the "good neighbor" policy has been invited to address the institute during the week. R. Walton Moore, Assistant Secretary of State, will deliver an evening address on July 4, and may appear before the round table.

Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro, Minister from Panama; Mr. Samuel Gay Inman, executive secretary of the committee on cooperation in Latin America; Dr. Robert L. O'Brien, chairman of the United States Tariff Commission, and Fred Lewis, former president of the International Railways of Central America, are some of those who will be on the program.

Survivor of Gun Battle Escapes Murder Charge

Bluefield, W. Va., June 21 (AP).—Ken Harrison, only survivor of a gun battle in a bedroom of his home at Worth, McDowell County, Monday night, which claimed three lives, was exonerated yesterday before Magistrate J. A. Lay, at Northfork.

Harrison was charged with slaying Walter Cheek, miner, of Algoma, 3 miles from Worth, after the latter had slain Harrison's wife and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Ann Sizemore. After hearing evidence that Cheek had forcibly invaded the Harrison home and killed the two women before being fired upon, Magistrate Lay released the defendant unconditionally.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

The Mind of A. Huxley

WHEN I said of Aldous Huxley not long back that he had the "brightest mind" among contemporary writers, the easy colloquialism did not mar my conviction. Still, the point deserves a better wording, a more definitive notice.

Looking for the quality of that mind, we should not go back to Mr. Huxley's early novels—"Chrome Yellow," "Antic Hay," &c., which are highly clever yet all but intolerably callow. In them the morbidly sensitive youth writhes too apparently. We need not turn again to "Point Counter Point," one of the two or three unassailably important novels of the last ten years, a novel most people think of as "naughty," and thereby flatly misjudge one of the most stoutly moral books of our time. Nor need we looks to his books of essays, explicit as they are, nor even to his latest work, "Beyond the Mexique Bay."

• • • •

For Mr. Huxley has shown and spoken of himself as clearly as a mortal can in the pages of "Texts and Pretexts: An Anthology With Commentaries" (Harper, 1933, $2.50). As a book, no one should think of it as seasonal. Whoever missed it last year (I mean, of course, the sort of person who might profit by it) will read it five years from now.

Mature and exhilarating, it spreads an array of timeless prose and poetry under a variety of headings—"County Ecstasies," "Man and Behemoth," "Desire," "Polygamy," "Hocus Pocus," "Escape," "Serenity," and so on. Around and about the passages Mr. Huxley makes his critical comments, now pointing out the peculiar beauty of a phrase, now cauterizing the stupidity of some poet's attitude, always directly or indirectly explaining himself.

If it were only himself, the effect would be limited. But I feel that when Mr. Huxley opens his own mind, he opens a mind and to a great extent a personality sharply typical of this age. Skeptical, balancing, trusting above all in intellect (whereas T. S. Eliot would trust in faith), Mr. Huxley's mind makes an especially lucid example of a contemporary temper.

• • • •

Central in his character is a realization of the age-old paradox which Fulke Greville best expressed (and which Mr. Huxley used as the motto of "Point Counter Point"):

"Oh, wearisome condition of humanity!
Born under one law, to another bound;
Vainly begot, and yet forbidden vanity;
Created sick, commanded to be sound;
What meaneth Nature by these diverse laws?
Passion and Reason, self-division's cause."

But he could not be the grandson of old Thomas Huxley, the archrationalist, if he did not have an answer. "In a humanely acceptable universe," is the present telling comment, "the just man would be non-existent. For the essence of virtue is disinterestedness, and there could be no disinterestedness in a world which automatically rewarded virtue and punished vice."

• • • •

And, on the whole, he finds it not an especially pretty world. "For mortals, a great deal of their lives is manhood and wild beasts and mud."

Not that he fails to see the other side of it. "The earthly paradise, the earthly paradise!" he cries out with more emotion than anywhere else in the book. "With what longing, between the bars of my temperament, do I peer at its bright landscape, how voluptuously sniff at its perfumes of hay and raspberries, of honeysuckle and roast duck, of sun-warmed flesh and nectarines and the sea! But the bars are solid; the early paradise is always on the further side. Self-hindered, I can not enter and make myself at home."

• • • •

Yet he will make a virtue of his temperament—"I prefer being sober to even the rosiest and most agreeable of intoxications." Though in another place he notes that "chronic and unescapable sobriety is a most horrible affliction."

Nevertheless Mr. Huxley stands steadfast. "I still prefer reason and experiment to plain-pathed experience and its wish-fulfillments, to even the most high-class instinct, the most appealingly feminine intuition."

And how that intelligence cuts through one topic after another, in tart but valid comment "By rendering the abiding consolations unnecessary (to old age), monkey-gland may rob Christianity of some of its most important functions." "Infantilism would seem to be a direct product of industrialism." "The world of Platonic Ideas is the most comfortable and sanitary of dugouts." "If, if, if . . . How many conditional clauses there are in the writings of the mystics!"

• • • •

To think of Mr. Huxley as a grim and gaunt, though very stimulating rationalist is to leave out his great respect and concern for good art, for good style. "It is good art that makes us natural—nations are to a very large extent invented by their poets and novelists."

He commends this concern commendably to specific activities. "Boys and girls who have Dante for their pandar are more likely to make love with style, handsomely, than those whose spiritual food is drawn from the magazines and the films."

All through the book, in his own opinions, in his choice of passages, Mr. Huxley exhibits his taste for distinguished style—in writing, in living. By clarity and articulateness he gives us more than an inkling of what that might be. Most likely his particular style would not fit each reader. "The art of measuring life can not be learned in its entirety. We are all poets of living—for the most part, alas, pretty bad poets." But leaving Mr. Huxley here, "de te fabula"—about you is this story."

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

Clyde Fitch.

When I was a boy in Hartford Public High School, one of my classmates was named William C. Fitch. Among schoolboys, conformity is king. The boy who is unlike the herd, who does not care for games, who dresses unlike the others, who lives as he chooses to live has a difficult time; and Fitch was as great an individualist as I have ever known. He cared nothing whatever for athletics and made no attempt to pretend he did; at the long recess, when all the rest of us tumbled out to play football, he stayed in and wrote notes to the girls. Furthermore, he was always beautifully, immaculately dressed in bright blue clothes, with conspicuous neckties. He had a very high voice, which frequently broke into falsetto, and he never used slang, but spoke correct English with elegance.

We did all we could to make his life miserable, because we thought he was a sissy. We did not realize that he was the bravest boy in the whole school, because he defied public opinion, and did whatever seemed good to him, with absolute disregard of our attempts to educate him. After we got tired of throwing him around, he dusted off his clothes carefully and went on writing notes to the girls.

Later he went to Amherst, where his bright blue clothes attracted the attention of the sophomores; they told him to change into something else. He went to see the dean—not to complain, or ask for help—but merely to seek his practical advice. The dean told him that if he continued to wear those clothes the sophomores would continue to attack him, but that he had a perfect right to wear them if he chose. Fitch replied, "I will wear them."

Later he went to New York, without any money, and after a terrific struggle conquered the city. At one time he had four new plays running simultaneously on the metropolitan stage. Even by our crass commercial schoolboy standards, it was apparent that he had succeeded better than any of his "practical" contemporaries, because his income from his plays was $250,000 a year.

Many used to wonder where he learned the secret of playwriting. But I knew. While we other boys were playing football, he was learning about women from the girls. He knew we boys could teach him everything he wanted to know.

Years later, when it was his invariable custom to choose his own cast of players and personally direct all rehearsals, the famous actress, Elsie De Wolfe, in a certain scene did not quite satisfy him, though he admired her immensely. He told her that she must walk on the stage in a different way in order to express a certain emotion. Then he walked on and she saw instantly. She said afterwards: "How was it possible for a man to show me, a woman, how a woman could express her feelings?" But I knew.

I wished I might have lived to see the first night of his play "The City."

Tomorrow—George Arliss.

Williamsport Tax Rate Is 55 Cents

Williamsport, Md., June 21 (Spl.). This town's tax rate was fixed at 55 cents per $100 by the mayor and council, an increase of 20 cents over last year's rate.

The increase was made necessary to meet the costs of the installation of a sewerage system, work upon which will start shortly. Despite the increase, it was explained by Mayor Richard Hawken, Williamsport still has one of the lowest rates in Maryland for a town having a modern water system, fire department, lighting system, parks, &c.

The taxable basis is $2,019,994, as against $1,925,423 last year.

Farmers of Frederick Get $44,000 Hog Cash

Winchester, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Farmers of Frederick County will receive an aggregate of $44,000 from the Government for contracts pledging reduction in production of corn and hogs, according to the Government's schedule.

County Agent I. Fred Stine has announced that 382 corn-hog contracts have been approved and that the first payments on the subsidization will be made within two weeks.

Mothers Advised To Censor Films

Charlottesville, Va., June 21 (AP). Censorship, Mrs. Philip Speed told the Charlottesville Mothers Club yesterday, "can not protect children from unsuitable moving pictures." She said the job was up to mothers of each community.

Mrs. Speed is a member of the moving picture research council.

She blamed the "block-booking" system of moving picture distribution for the fact that individual theater owners have to show many different types of pictures during the year. Thus only the cooperative action of mothers in various towns and cities can prevent harmful pictures, she said.

The object on the right is a barrel
It is made of white Arkansas oak
Inside it is deeply charred
It cost $7 . . .
Four springs ago
(During the Graf's first world cruise)
This barrel was filled up
With Old Overholt rye
In Broad Ford, Pa.
Where Old Overholt has been made
For 124 years
This rye is ripe and mellow now
Full 4 summers old
100 proof
Clear as amber
And almost at bonding age
So complying
With thousands of requests
From folk who value their health
But can't find an adequately matured rye
(We mean an American straight rye)
And who remember Old Overholt
And believe in us
We've bottled some up

WASHINGTON POST'S FISHERMAN'S TIDE TABLES

Columns under A. M. and P. M. represent the last two (or 2½) hours of ebb tide and the first two or (2½) hours of flood tide, considered the best time to fish in the bay. Center columns represent the last hours of flood tide and the first hours of ebb tide. Flood tide is considered the best time to fish in the rivers.

Tables above are for tides by the shore, assuming normal conditions. Add from 30 to 90 minutes to above hours for any point in or near the channel of the rivers. Add (about) 30 minutes for every mile from the shore for any point in the bay. That is, if you are fishing 5 miles out, add 2½ hours (approximately) to above hours for correct tide at that place. Saturday, July 14, Court of Honor and Review, Peck Memorial Chapel.

Friday, July 20, Scout swim in Chevy Chase Pool.

Saturday, July 21, courts at Camp Wilson.

Saturday, July 28, courts at Peck Chapel.

Troop 33 Goes on Trek.

Scouts and fathers of Scouts of Troop 33, conducted by the Takoma Park Presbyterian Church, will leave Saturday for a three-day encampment at Pine Grove Encampment, near Carlyle, Pa. More than 50 men and Scouts will attend. The scoutmaster is H. E. Allanson.

Globe Trotter Talks.

Dr. Titus Ulke, noted naturalist and globe trotter, gave Troop 100 an illustrated lecture on "Scenic Views, Wild Flowers and Big Game Along Horsethief Creek and Lake Many Glaciers, British Columbia," June 8, at their parents' night.

The Pine Tree Patrol won the interpatrol contest. The Stags were a close second and the Beavers placed third.

S. P. L. Amante won the individual standing contest, with Walter Souder, second, and Alex Adrian, third.

Troop 14's Field Day Big Success.

W. C. Cronenberg, scoutmaster, reports that Troop 14 had a successful field day and campfire at Camp Jennings-on-the-Potomac on June 16. The program began at 2 p. m. and consisted of the following contests:

Tent-pitching, bed-making and trenching, Panther Patrol.

Knot tying, ten selected knots, Cobra Patrol.

Signalling, 25 words, Flying Eagle Patrol.

Fire building and water boiling, Black Hawk Patrol.

A large number of parents and friends attended. From 4:30 to 7:30 p. m. a hike was enjoyed down "the trail" to the river, a visit to the "ole swimin' hole" and the spreading of basket lunches.

Our campfire program started at 8 o'clock and was given in honor of Coleman Jennings and Dr. Scott. In the words of greeting to our honorary guests, the scoutmaster presented Mr. Jennings the insignia of Honorary Scoutmaster of Troop 14, and Dr. Scott the insignia of Honorary Assistant Scoutmaster.

These gentlemen complimented the troop highly on its work in beautifying and improving the camp site and discipline of the boys.

The project for the day was birdhouses. Each of the six patrols presented an attractive birdhouse, which will be installed on the camp site.

Campfire stunts were put on by each patrol, and songs were participated in by every one present. The council ring was filled to capacity, there being over 50 guests present. The climax of the evening was an Indian stunt put on by junior leaders.

The boys camped overnight after bidding their parents and friends good night.

Camp Roosevelt Opening.

More than 150 Scouts will arrive at Camp Roosevelt on Sunday and Monday to participate in opening of the sixteenth season of the camp. The camp staff this year will be headed by Linn C. Drake, the Scout executive, and will consist of Robert R. Bailey, assistant camp director; M. A. Matsinger, activities director; Harry Cutler, commissary; Fred G. Stuart, handicraft; Robert McConnaghy, handicraft; Robert F. McDermott, nature; Stuart Abraham, nature; Fred Powell, waterfront, assisted by Frank Cerminara; Thornton Hart, boats and canoes; William Curtis Cooper, registration, assisted by Robert Pfahler; George Palmer, storekeeper; Bruce Moore, transportation; Chief Two Cities, Indian lore; Drs. Odo and Musso, camp doctors.

Physical Examinations.

Physical examinations for Scouts going to Camp Roosevelt for the first period will be held at Scout headquarters on Friday evening, June 22, and on every Thursday evening throughout the summer at 7:30 p. m.

Camp Wilson Already Under Way.

Camp Wilson, at Burnt Mill, Md., is already under way, and Camp Director J. Wesley Loftis reports a large attendance. Many troops are using Camp Wilson as their summer headquarters for campfires, outdoor, nature, &c. One of the features will be a formal opening on Saturday, June 30, to which all Scouts, Scouters and Scout dads are invited. A barbecue will be a feature.

A city-wide camporee will be held on the same day. Those attending the grand opening will have a chance to observe patrol camping in action. It is expected that a large number of patrols will qualify at this camporee to enter the regional camporee, which will be held in Herring Run Park, August 17, 18 and 19.

Swimming Opportunities Available.

A large number of opportunities for Scouts to keep cool and to improve their swimming ability have been arranged for this summer. The McKinley pool will be available each Tuesday and Thursday from 9:30 a. m. to 12 noon, June 29 to September 14. The Takoma Park pool will be available each Monday and Wednesday from 9:30 a. m. to 12 noon for the same period. Admission will be by uniform or registration card. Scouts will bring their bathing suits and towels or may rent them for 15 cents.

On Friday, July 20, from 6 a. m. to 12 noon, Scouts are invited to use the Chevy Chase Pool, bringing their bathing suits and towels.

Scout day at the Airport Pool has been set for Friday, August 17, from 8 a. m. to noon. Scouts are asked to bring their own bathing suits and 10 cents for towels. A bathing suit will be rented for 25 cents.

Scouts to See Ball Games.

Scouts and Scouters in uniform are invited again to see the games on Fridays upon payment of 10-cent tax. The first ball game to which they are invited will be held on Friday, July 6.

First Aid Patrols on Duty.

First aid patrols from various troops are taking turns in performing first aid duties in the first aid headquarters at Marshall Hall. This project provides practical opportunity for Scouts to have real first aid experience.

Scouts to Aid Celebration.

Scouts have been given the honor of aiding with a parade of flags and the massing of the colors in the Fourth of July celebration. All troops are asked to bring their staff of colors and patrol flags.

Thirteen Eagle Scouts, each bearing a United States flag representing one of the 13 colonies, will be on the speakers' stand.

Scouts will assemble at the Zero Milestone south of the White House at 6:45 p. m.

Scouters' Get-together.

Ray O. Wyland, National headquarters, will speak at a Scouters' get-together at a campfire Thursday, July 5, at 7:30 p. m. at Camp Wilson. Come early and cook your own supper, or bring a picnic supper. In addition to Mr. Wyland's talk, certificates will be presented to recent graduates of training courses.

Piano Students Give Annual Recital Tonight

Gertrude Smallwood Mockbee will present her fifteenth annual students' recital this evening at 8:15 o'clock in the Sunday School House of Gunton Temple Presbyterian Church, Sixteenth and Monroe streets northwest. The program will include compositions by Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Moszkovski, Arenski, Saint-Saens, Mascagni, Ghys, Low, Bartlett and Hopkins, in piano solo, duet and two-piano form. The participants will be:

Rosalyn Buchanan	Margaret Pardoe
Mary L. Cole	Martha Richardson
Ellen Fredeking	Evelyn Weber
Elsie Leonard	Marjorie Weber
Peggy McMillen	Marjorie Wine
Barbara Nelson

Rider of Motorcycle Faces Inquest Today

Charles Rind, 22, of Alexandria, driver of a motorcycle which struck and killed Overbe Boaze, 44, a mail carrier, Tuesday night, will face a coroner's inquest today.

Rind was ordered held after Boaze died in Georgetown Hospital. Boaze, police said, was enroute to his home, 3321 M street northwest, when he was struck while crossing the street near Twenty-fifth and M streets northwest. Rind was released under $1,000 bond.

D. U. V. Will Hold Excursion Tomorrow

Ellen Spencer Mussey Tent, No. 1, Daughters of Union Veterans, will hold its annual excursion tomorrow, with veterans of the G. A. R., their wives and widows, as honor guests.

The trip will be made on the steamer Washington, and a special luncheon will be served at 2 p. m. Anna Hage McElroy is chairman of the arrangements committee.

One Million Pounds of Tomatoes

. . . must be in perfect condition

This message is addressed to buyers of tomatoes—and buyers of advertising space.

If you were buyer for H. J. Heinz Co.,* would you contract for a million pounds of tomatoes without asking their condition? Not if you make the kind of ketchup Heinz makes. Not unless you want to throw both tomatoes and money away. Heinz has to have tomatoes grown from prize-winning tomato seeds, and make them into ketchup the day they are picked.

Well then, why is it that buyers of advertising often spend money to buy readers for their advertising—readers by the hundred thousand, and by the million—without asking whether the reader is in prime condition?

The answer is that shrewd advertisers don't buy that way. They want quantity of readers, yes. But not without quality. Three thousand, or even three million readers that can't afford or don't want what you have for sale are of no use to you.

That explains why the New York Herald Tribune is carrying advertising for some of the most difficult-to-please advertisers in the world.

How does the Herald Tribune get that way? By dedicating its contents to that restless, progressive, well-to-do element in the Metropolitan Area, who haven't stopped wanting things, and who haven't lost the ability to pay for them . . . 323,375 families to be exact, 442,039 on Sundays. As for their responsiveness to advertising, we have some valuable statistics for those who wish to see.

* H. J. Heinz Co. used over 18,000 lines of Herald Tribune advertising space in 1933.

Treasury Bans Party Offices For Employes

September 1 Deadline Is Set for Action by Morgenthau.

By Raymond Clapper.

Employes under the Treasury Department were notified by Secretary Morgenthau yesterday to resign from any political party offices they may hold by September 1.

This is in line with the policy laid down by President Roosevelt some time ago. But except in the case of Secretary Morgenthau, it generally has been winked at. The White House made plain last winter that it wished to divorce Government office holding from party office holding. A few resignations followed, mostly in the Treasury Department. Postmaster General Farley indicated this week that he has no expectation of resigning as Democratic National chairman in the near future. His first assistant, W. W. Howes, is National committeeman for South Dakota.

"It has been demonstrated that a man can't collect for Uncle Sam and for the party both," Secretary Morgenthau said in announcing his edict. He made public copies of a letter sent to Treasury chiefs.

Previously, as a result of disclosures resulting in suspension of some Treasury employes and in the resignation of Horatio Abbott, Michigan National committeeman from the post of internal revenue collector, Mr. Morgenthau wrote all department employes calling their attention to Federal statutes concerning political activity and solicitation of party funds.

Not In Public Interest.

"Since distribution of this letter," his second notice said, "I have received inquiries from several employes of bureaus and divisions of the Treasury as to the legality and propriety of their continuing to hold office in regular political party organizations. I have considered this matter very carefully and I have come to the firm conviction that no officer or employe of the Treasury Department ought to continue to hold any political party office. It seems to me that the holding of any such political party office is not compatible with the public interest and will hamper the officer or employe in the effective discharge of his Governmental duties."

Secretary Morgenthau said all Treasury bureau chiefs had been notified to advise employes holding party offices to resign from them by September 1 or leave the Treasury Department. He explained that the September deadline was set because many State committees meet in August and will have opportunity then to change their officers if any are holding Treasury posts.

The Treasury always has provided important berthing space for political party office holders. National committeemen and State chairmen long have been partial to appointments as collectors of customs and internal revenues, a practice which has prevailed under both parties. Secretary Morgenthau's order will bar Treasury employes not only from such eminent political posts but from lesser ones, such as ward chairmanships, in fact any such places excepting officers of political clubs—which are not strictly speaking official party organizations—are forbidden henceforth to Secretary Morgenthau's employes.

Changes to Be Forced.

One of the most prominent of them, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the Mint, resigned as Wyoming committeewoman after Mr. Roosevelt laid down his divorcement policy. But another prominent Treasury official, W. A. Julian, Treasurer of the United States, has continued to remain as Ohio National committeeman. Guy T. Helvering, collector of internal revenue, is Kansas State chairman.

The new Morgenthau order will force a number of changes in the Democratic National committee if members elect to hold their Government jobs. Among committeemen members holding collectorships under the Treasury are Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch, of Connecticut; H. H. Perry, of North Dakota; Joseph Wolf, of Minnesota; W. A. Julian, of Ohio; Mrs. Stanley V. Hodge, of Minnesota, and Mrs. Bernice G. Pyke, of Ohio. The number of State chairmen affected is not known, but the list includes Warren R. Van Dyke, of Pennsylvania and J. Enos Ray, of Maryland. Theodore A. Walters, First Assistant Secretary of Interior, resigned as Idaho State chairman last week.

Secretary Morgenthau has been sweeping with a stiff broom lately. Following an investigation, Abbott resigned the Michigan collectorship and two of his aides were dismissed on charges of soliciting political contributions. A shakeup occurred in the Philadelphia internal revenue office recently when Alvin Fix resigned as collector and his deputy was suspended on charges of soliciting contributions.

Car Crash Blamed In Woman's Death

Harrisonburg, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—A verdict that the death of Mrs. W. D. Helbert on June 12 was due indirectly to injuries suffered in an automobile collision on the Valley Pike on the night of May 4, was returned here today by F. L. Byers, Rockingham County coroner.

Mrs. Helbert was believed to have recovered from the effects of the accident, but she suffered a relapse and died. Seven others were injured in the crash at Smithland, one mile north of Harrisonburg.

Charles E. Shiflett, driver of the other automobile in the crash with that occupied by Mrs. Helbert, has been out on bond since the accident.

Road Contract Awarded.

Hagerstown, Md., June 21 (Spl.).—Frank G. Byron was awarded the contract for building 1.3 miles of macadam road between Brownsville and Weverton, Washington County, by the State roads commission. His bid was $36,400.

The Federal Diary

By Morgan Baker.
(Trade-mark Applied For)

This is Maine Day in the Federal Diary's Parade of the States. The Parade is drawing to a close, with only five more States to pass in review. Oregon will appear on Sunday, Tennessee on Tuesday, Rhode Island on Wednesday, New York on Friday. The parade will close with Virginia on Sunday, July 1.

Toast to Maine.

Most every man, from what we know,
Has heard the recitation
Of "How the State of Maine may go,
So goes the entire Nation;"
Yet in some things the "Pine Tree State"
Beats sister States all hollow,
Though they ape her electorate
In some things they can't follow.

Her shore resorts are widely known;
Her woods; her rough terrain;
Her game, her fish, her granite stone
Give romance to Old Maine.
So, let's salute this proud old State
And deeply drink her fame;
Let others watch her demonstrate
That they may do the same.

This typical young woman and young man of Maine are ambitious Government employes. Miss Catherine M. Breau, of Brewer, is assistant to supervisor of Federal Reserve Section Insurance Cashier, Finance Division, at Veterans' Administration. Miss Breau has attended the Beale School of Commerce. Leo G. Cyr, of Limestone, is an aid in Apparel Section at NRA. Young Cyr received his master's degree in Foreign Service last year at Georgetown University, previously being graduated from Holy Cross with an A. B. His people have been inhabitants of northern Maine since 1790.

BAKER.

YEARS before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock, Massachusetts, English fishermen had established themselves at various points along the Maine coast. As early as 1524 ships of all the seafaring European nations made Pemaquid and Monhegan their rendezvous while they ran up and down the coast, poking their little vessels into every inlet in hope of finding the long-sought northwest passage to the Orient.

In all the history of America there is no more horrible chapter of suffering than that of the early colonists of Maine. The first permanent settlement was made some time between 1623 and 1629 in a charter granted to Sir Ferdinand Gorges and John Mason under the name of the Province of Maine. France quickly laid claim to the area as a part of her Canadian territory and then followed years of frightful experiences by the settlers in the Indian wars.

The Indians were incited first by England and then France to indescribable atrocities, reaching a climax in King Philip's War in 1675. Then the Indians razed the settlement of Pemaquid, one of the first-born cities of the New World.

As usual, the Indians also had a strong case. In addition to being ousted from their rich fishing and hunting grounds, many were lured aboard ships at Pemaquid and sold into slavery in foreign ports.

The origin of the name of Maine has been traced to the early expression of "the maine," or "mayn," to distinguish the mainland from the numerous islands fringing the shore. Its nicknames are the "Pine-tree State," or the "Old Dirigo State," the latter referring to the device on the State seal.

FRANK DOW, of Dexter, is assistant commissioner, Bureau of Customs, Treasury.

Maine was originally a part of Massachusetts, but was separated in 1820 when it was admitted to the Union. It is the 23d State in order of admission; the 38th in size (33,040 square miles); and the 35th in population (797,423 in 1930).

Story of Commerce.

Maine, the largest State of the New England group, is popular with thousands of summer vacationists. It is naturally heavy wooded, offering countless ideal sites for summer cottages. In the fall many hunters trek to the Maine woods. Luxurious hotels are maintained and many artists go there to paint the beauties of the Maine landscape and rugged coastline.

Portland, the chief port, has a large steamer tourist traffic as well as extensive freight tonnage by water and rail.

Maine has more than 1,300 wooded islands, one of these being Mount Desert of 60,000 acres on which is Acadia National Park and a notable summer colony. Maine has 2,465 lakes and twice as many rivers and streams, all abounding in fish.

Potatoes constitute the chief agricultural produce of the State, the annual output exceeding 50,000,000 bushels. Hay also is an important crop, the production approaching 1,000,000 tons every year.

In granite the State ranks third. In feldspar it is first.

Lumber is the principal manufacturing product, the State averaging 250,000,000 board feet annually of white pine, spruce for wood pulp, hemlock, balsam, birch, cedar, oak, maple, beech, ash and basswood or linden. The paper pulp mills produce $70,000,000 annually, and along the rivers are many water-power motivated textile, tanning, oilcloth, boot and shoe, canning, flour and machinery works.

Maine spends about $15,000,000 annually on its public school system. Its leading institutions of higher learning are Bowdoin College, University of Maine, Colby and Bates.

Mrs. Helen Haskell Bain (*), of Steuben, is a charming and popular employe at Interstate Commerce Commission. Mrs. Bain's father is a descendant of John Howland and Elizabeth Tilley, who came over from England on the Mayflower and were married in Plymouth.

Augusta, the capital of Maine, was formerly an Indian village named Cushnoc. It was part of the original grant to the Plymouth Colony in 1606 and was incorporated as a town in 1797. The State motto is "Dirigo" (I direct). The State flower is the pine tree, "the mother of legends."

One of the most prominent women in Government service is Mrs. J. Atwood Maulding, of Bucksport. Mrs. Maulding is chief of Division Appointments, Mails and Files, Interior.

Diary office hours are: Daily, except Sundays, 12 noon to 1 p. m. and from 4:30 to 6 p. m.; Saturdays, 12 noon to 2:30 p. m.

H. T. La Crosse (*), of South Orrington, is assistant business specialist with Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Mr. La Crosse is the author of "The Retail Credit Survey," a comprehensive volume on American trade. He holds the degree of B. C. S. and is an expert in business administration.

$2,228,000 for W. Va. Roads.

Charleston, W. Va., June 21 (Spl.).—The State road commision announces that a Federal grant of $2,228,000 will shortly be made to West Virginia for highway construction.

BORN WITH THE REPUBLIC

FULL MEASURE of FINE LIQUOR

...that is a James E. Pepper tradition exactly 154 years old. In this 154th year, this tradition is being 100% observed. You will have grounds for genuine enthusiasm when you discover what James E. Pepper means by "full measure". It is a blend of straight whiskies—and it's ALL whiskey! Full measure of rich maturing. Full measure of smooth, mellow flavor. And in price—full measure of value for every penny you spend!

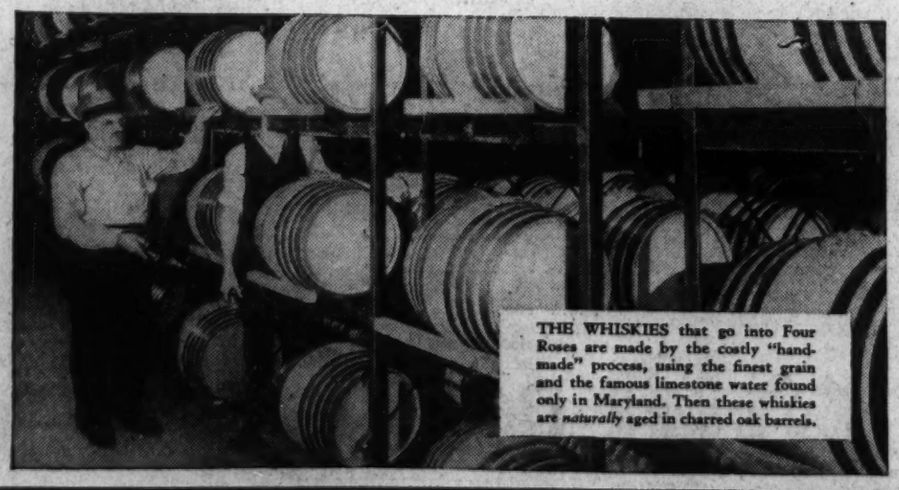
31 leading whiskies were put in plain bottles, marked only by letters. Then several scores of people tested the whiskies "blind." The test was run off like a tennis tournament, with winner meeting winner until only one whiskey was left. And that whiskey was Four Roses!

FOUR ROSES WHISKEY

victor in big taste tournament!



THE WHISKIES that go into Four Roses are made by the costly "hand-made" process, using the finest grain and the famous limestone water found only in Maryland. Then these whiskies are naturally aged in charred oak barrels.

WINNER over 30 other brands in a "blind" taste-test! Winner over brands costing even twice as much!

That's the record of Four Roses. And that's why we sincerely believe you will discover in Four Roses just the kind of whiskey you've been looking for.

It's so rich and mellow it's a real pleasure to drink it straight. No shudders. No coughing. Four Roses goes down like honey! And if used with moderation, there's no hangover.

The reason? Four Roses is made of fine, naturally aged, hand-made Maryland whiskies. No tricks! And it's made by a company that knows how! For Frankfort has been making fine whiskey for four generations. Its yeast-culture—key-ingredient in making great whiskey—has been carefully guarded for 50 years.

You'll find Four Roses at any of the better liquor stores. In full pints and quarts. Get a bottle and try it! Ask for Four Roses at hotels and restaurants, too.

P. S. You can be certain of the purity of Four Roses. For it comes sealed in the patented Frankfort Pack that must be destroyed before the bottle within it can be removed.

Try these other famous whiskies!

PAUL JONES
A fine, high-quality whiskey that's been a national favorite since 1865.

Madame Veverka Gives Luncheon at Legation

Daughter Assists Wife of Czechoslovakian Minister in Entertaining—Congressional, Official and Diplomatic Society Represented.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The idea that "ladies' luncheons" are dull affairs was completely disproved to anybody who attended the delightful buffet luncheon given yesterday by Mme. Veverka, wife of the Minister of Czechoslovakia. The legation, a cool retreat on such a warm day, was decorated with large bowls of summer flowers, and the charming hostess received her guests in the drawing room, where heavy curtains had been drawn against the noonday sun. Mme. Veverka wore a gown of black crepe with a bodice of tomato red, vastly becoming to her blonde hair, and Mlle. Nella Veverka, debutante daughter of the Minister and Mme. Veverka, assisted her mother, wearing a smart semi-sports frock of white crepe and dark blue polka dots.

Small tables with beautiful lacey covers were placed in the dining room and in the drawing room. The buffet presented a magnificent sight with its array of cold salads, a few hot dishes, and a variety of pastries. Iced tea, coffee, a cooling punch, and ice cream were served.

Mrs. Dern Attends.

Mrs. George H. Dern, wife of the Secretary of War, was the ranking guest, and wore a summer frock of blue and white printed batiste with a large hat of rough white straw.

Other members of the Cabinet present were Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, wearing a crepe suit of palest blue and a small white hat, and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the Attorney General, in an ensemble of pale rose beige with a smart brown hat.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, gracious as always, held a small court of her own, and wore a summer print of her favorite blues with a large hat of French blue. A group from the diplomatic corps included Senora de Alfaro, wife of the Minister of Panama; Senora de Recinos, wife of the Minister of Guatemala; Mme. de Bianchi, wife of the Minister of Portugal; Mme. Djalal, wife of the Minister of Persia, who wore a smart suit of white crepe with a small white hat banded with dark blue; Mme. Sable, wife of the Naval Attache of the French Embassy; Senora de Baron, wife of the Counselor of the Cuban Embassy; Mlle. Madeleine Gaucheron, sister of the First Secretary of the French Embassy; Mme. Broz, wife of the First Secretary of the Czechoslovakian Legation, and Signora Bonardelli, wife of the Counselor of Immigration of the Italian Embassy.

Congressional Group.

In the Congressional group were Mrs. Charles L. McNary, wife of Senator McNary; Mrs. William H. King, wife of Senator King, wearing a smart red and white print with a large white hat; Mrs. Joseph T. Robinson, wife of Senator Robinson, and her sister, Mrs. Miller; Mrs. Sol Bloom, wife of Representative Bloom, and their daughter, Miss Vera Bloom.

Mrs. Jouett Shouse was present, having motored in from her country home, Wolf Trap Farm, near Leesburg, Va., where she and Mr. Shouse are spending several weeks before starting on a trip to Europe.

Others present were Mrs. Charles Drake, Mrs. Robert Mackenzie, Mrs. Campbell Pritchett, Mrs. Peter A. Drury, Mrs. Ollie James, Baroness von Below, Mrs. John Allen Dougherty, Mrs. Russell Bennett, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Miss Mary Patten, Mrs. Henry Corbin, Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, Baronness von Pagenhardt, pretty as a picture in a pink silk frock with enormous leghorn hat banded with brown ribbon; Mrs. Herbert Feis and Miss Jane Thorpe, daughter of Col. and Mrs. George C. Thorpe, recently returned from her study of music in France, and wearing a striking frock of bright blue crepe with a large black hat rolled on one side.

Irene Barnes Mr. Traband, Jr. Are Married

Couple Wed at Trinity Church Depart on California Trip.

The Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church was the scene of the wedding last evening of Miss Irene Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Barnes, of Washington and Guntersville, Ala., to Mr. Frederick William Traband, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Traband, of Washington. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'cock by the Rev. Daniel L. Ennis.

The bride was escorted by her father. She wore a princess gown of white satin made with a softly draped neckline and long fitted sleeves of Brussels lace. The flaring skirt terminated in a circular train.

Bride's Attendants.

Miss Virginia Hoffmann, the maid of honor, wore a gown of lime green chiffon made with a gored skirt and a short cape.

The bridesmaids were Miss Esther Kennedy, of Mount Morris, Pa.; Miss Catherine O'Neill, of Annapolis, Md.; Miss Anne Frances Pence and Miss Margaret Lewis, both of Washington; Miss Louise Grant, of Alabama, and Miss Emily Traband, sister of the bride.

Mr. St. Clair Watson, of Annapolis, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Warren Lorton, Mr. Robin Lorton, Mr. Gilbert Lee, Mr. Elwood Jones, Mr. Clarence Hartman and Mr. Robert Barnes, brother of the bride.

Reception at Home.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. Mr. Traband and his bride were assisted in receiving by their mothers. Mrs. Barnes had on a gown of sea blue chiffon and a large straw hat of the same shade, and wore a shoulder corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Traband was costumed in beige chiffon and wore a corsage of talisman roses.

The bridal couple left by motor for New England. After July 9 they will be at home in Washington.

Pote—Jenkins Wedding Rites Held at Church

Reception Held at Home of Bride's Parents; Couple on Trip.

The wedding of Miss Ethel Edna Pote, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy R. Pote, to Mr. Charles Walter Jenkins, son of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Jenkins, took place at 7:30 o'clock last evening in the Church of the Brethren. The Rev. J. H. Hollinger performed the ceremony. The church was decorated with pastel-shaded summer flowers in tall standards and palms and ferns. On the altar there were tall ivory tapers. The aisle was roped off with white satin ribbons.

Mrs. Helen Black Benham, alto, and Mrs. Rosa Long, organist, offered wedding music.

The bride entered the church with her father. She wore a gown of heavy white satin made on Empire lines, with the high waist line and gracefully draped cowl neck. The brief, fitted jacket, which had long tight sleeves, was fastened high in the front. A square train was attached to the jacket. Her tulle veil, edged with rare old lace, was caught into a cap of lace held in place by a coronet of seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Moore Attends Bride.

Miss Louise Moore, cousin of the bride, was the maid of honor. She had on a gown of pink mousseline de soie. The short jacket had large puffed sleeves and a tailored collar. Up the front of the bodice there was a row of small rhinestone buttons. On her head she wore a halo of sweet peas, and she carried a large white rough straw hat filled with summer flowers.

The two bridesmaids were Mrs. Hamilton Miller and Miss Ruth Garber. Their frocks, made on the same style as Miss Moore's dress, were of pale green mousseline de soie. They also carried large garden hats of white rough straw, filled with assorted summer flowers. Little Miss Betty Jean Miller, the flower girl, wore a dainty frock of white ruffled organdie with a large white sash and bow, and carried a basket of sweet peas and rose petals.

Dr. Darrell Crain attended Mr. Jenkins as best man and the ushers were Mr. Albert Wine and Mr. Jacob Replogle.

Reception at Home.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, when the young couple were assisted in receiving by their mothers. Mrs. Pote was wearing a becoming gown of light blue chiffon and a large picture hat of the same shade. Her corsage was of gardenias. Mrs. Jenkins had on a smart gray crepe ensemble, with which she wore a small close-fitting gray hat and a shoulder corsage of Johanna Hill roses. The drawing room and dining room were decorated with palms, ferns and cut garden flowers.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins left on a wedding trip, the latter wearing a pink ensemble with a white hat and white accessories. They will return about the middle of next month to make their home in Washington.

An added romantic touch to the wedding is that the maid of honor, Miss Louise Moore and the best man, Dr. Darrell Crain will be married next Thursday.

Among those who poured tea yesterday afternoon at the "Treasure Show" at the National Woman's Country Club were Mrs. James Couzens, Mrs. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Mrs. James J. Davis, Mrs. August Lonergan and Mrs. Frederick Stelwer.

Saitos Entertain Staff at Embassy

Farewell Party Precedes Voyage to Japan.

The Ambassador of Japan and Mme. Saito will entertain the members of the entire staff of the embassy and their families at a farewell dinner this evening.

Ambassador and Mme. Saito will leave Washington Tuesday for the West Coast and will sail July 3 from San Francisco on the Chichibu Maru for their home in Japan. They will remain in Japan until the late autumn, returning to the embassy here in November.

During the absence of Ambassador Saito, the Counselor of the Embassy, Mr. Keinosuke Fujii, will be charge d'affaires.

Miss Waterman Weds.

Mr. and Mrs. Jason Waterman announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Evelyn Holly Waterman, to Mr. James Earl Hummer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Hummer, of Chevy Chase, Md., on Friday, June 15. The Rev. Simpson B. Daugherty officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Hummer are in California on a wedding trip. After August 1 they will be at home at 1603 Evarts street northeast.

Modern Housewives Find Time to Enjoy Summer Vacations From Domestic Cares

Sunshine Unit Holds Forest Outing Today

Club Women Join Pierce Players in Offering New Play.

ON the invitation of Mrs. S. Russell Bowen, the District Sunshine and Community Society will hold an outing today at Sherwood Forest. Assisting Mrs. Bowen will be Mrs. James Underwood and Mrs. Miles Trowbridge, who also have cottages in the forest. Mrs. Edwin Detwiler, Mrs. Paul J. Christian and Mrs. F. C. Brinley compose the committee on arrangements. The president of the society, Mrs. J. Edwin Reid, will come from Ocean City, N. J., where she is spending the summer, to attend the party.

Transportation will be furnished by members of the club who have automobiles. They will meet at 12:30 o'clock at the clubhouse in the forest.

The program calls for luncheon, games and cards at the clubhouse, and bathing from Mrs. Bowen's cottage.

The Sunshine Society, a philanthropic organization, has a membership of 100 women, with a large waiting list. This outing will be the final meeting of the season. Business activities will be resumed in October.

A NUMBER of prominent club and professional women are connected with the production of the new comedy-satire "Rhapsody in Blah" by Frank Baer, to be presented by the Pierce Hall Players next Thursday and Friday night, June 28 and 29 in Pierce Hall. Miss Mabel Van Dyke, chairman of the young women's council of the National Woman's Party, was instrumental in having the play produced.

Miss Mary Foley Benson, a scientific illustrator, painted the backdrop depicting the United States Capitol. Miss Ina Hawes, assistant librarian of the Bureau of Entomology Library, assisted in constructing the setting.

Two paintings by Mlle. Fanny Bunand-Sevastos which have been exhibited in Paris, Baltimore and Washington will be part of the scenery.

Included in the cast are Mrs. Ruth Snodgrass, Miss Virginia True, Miss Lyell MacLean, Miss Lois Alexander and Miss Yerby Pannill.

Hail Sumners Bill.

PASSAGE of the Sumners bill, enabling the States to enter into cooperative agreements for the suppression of crime and the enforcement of their respective criminal laws, is hailed as a major victory in the war against crime by the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which has for years worked for such a law. The legislation, originally introduced in the House in 1930 by Representative Hatton Sumners, was signed by the President June 8. The law is particularly intended to prevent persons charged with crime from finding protection in another State. It allows the organization of agencies jointly by the several States to carry out this work.

The new law was necessary because of a provision in the Constitution which forbids the States to enter into an agreement or compact with another State without the consent of Congress.

"In some respects this is the most important item of constructive statesmanship that has been enacted by Congress in a decade," declares Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, General Federation president. "Officers of one State may be authorized to pursue and arrest criminals wherever found in the States agreeing under the compact. The barriers of State lines are eliminated, and the States can now pool their strength in a cooperative effort to destroy the super-government of crime."

Card Party.

MORE THAN 40 women are expected to turn out for the benefit card and bingo party sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the District of Columbia Fire Department at 8 o'clock tonight at the home of Mrs. Joseph Davidson, president, at 4411 Forty-second street northwest.

Mrs. James Chrisman, chairman of the ways and means committee, is in charge of arrangements. Assisting her will be Mrs. Max Ohle, Mrs. George Meeks, Mrs. Ethel Davis, Mrs. Rose Ihrie and Mrs. Stella Woolard.

Stout People Inherit Fat, Says Doctor

FAT persons who maintain they "can't do a thing about their weight" often are more right than their friends realize. For stoutness in human beings, says Dr. Ramsdell Gurney, of the University of Buffalo medical department, is inherited according to a predictable law.

One hundred cases, all women, were studied in the out-patient department of the Buffalo General Hospital.

Only 20 per cent of the children of stout parents were found to be thin; only 10 per cent of those of thin parents stout, while the offspring of the two combined were about evenly divided between thin and stout.

It was learned the onset of stoutness was caused most often by pregnancy and, second, by operations.

Dr. Gurney points out there is no subject on which there is so much disagreement as that of obesity.

"This is partly because it is difficult to trace the history of the human family," he said, "and partly because human beings multiply so slowly. There have been only 60 generations since the Christian era."

Lecturer's Vivid Talk Enables Blind to "See"

WITH WORDS FOR KEYS Miss Alice Hutchins Drake, above, unlocks doors to the realm of art and literature. A widely known Washington lecturer, Miss Drake recently was reappointed radio chairman of the League of American Pen Women.

Alice Hutchins Drake's Realistic Descriptions of Art Earn Her a Place in the Radio World and Gratitude of Thousands.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

OPENING DOORS. Revealing new worlds to the blind—both the physically sightless and those who are mentally undiscerning in the realm of art and literature. That is the forte of Miss Alice Hutchins Drake, widely known Washington lecturer and club woman recently reappointed radio chairman of the District branch of the League of American Pen Women.

With words she draws aside the mantle shrouding beauty from those with bandaged eyes. With words she lances the umbrage concealing the charm of poetry, painting, and sculpture. Whether she is delineating the mural decorations for blind patrons of the Library of Congress or talking on art over the radio, Miss Drake makes words do double work: they must take the place of illustration and carry an impressive image to persons who probably have never seen the painting or sculpture in question.

"My father was a keen word lover," said Miss Drake yesterday in explaining the source of her reverence for nouns, adjectives, and verbs. "I shall never forget his reading aloud to me and calling attention to certain phrases that particularly impressed him. My mother, also, has always had a definite fondness for the spoken word. And I can't remember when I haven't cherished an affection for the English language."

Her excellent command of her mother tongue is probably rooted in this love of words. Consequently, she does not hesitate to describe the most intricate mural or painting to an audience that can not see the subject of her discussion.

Her success in interpreting for the blind such beauties of the Library of Congress and the Corcoran Gallery of Art eventually led to weekly radio talks on paintings and sculptures on display in Washington.

Yet, important as she considers words, Miss Drake believes ideas are more important.

"Any lecturer who is a success must have something to say as well as an effective way of saying it," she averred. "And while the tools of our language are of definite value, one can easily overstress their importance. Consequently, I never make too great an effort to search for the most effective words in preparing my talks. It seems to me that the adjective coming spontaneously is better than one resulting from labored searching."

Her favorite type of lecture is a poetry-painting mosaic, in which her descriptions of pictures are interspersed with readings from modern poets. This is the kind of program one frequently hears from her on the radio.

Born in Chicago, Miss Drake has lived in Washington since childhood. After being graduated from Central High School, she attended George Washington University.

Her reappointment as radio chairman of the League of Pen Women marks the fifth office she has held in that organization. With the president, Dr. Frances Moon Butts, Miss Drake is already planning a series of unusual programs for next year.

PILLAR TO POST

Acrobatic Fish Story.

THIS fish story has the usual elements of incredibility in it, and yet a certain Washington lady whose truthfulness cannot be impeached tells it. It concerns Jeremiah and James, two goldfish. Jeremiah, is declared to be 14 years old. James, the other of the pair, died recently.

* * * *

James was so tame and affectionate that he would swim between the fingers of his owner when she put them in the tank, and when she turned her palm right side up he would jump into it.

* * * *

The pets were named after two sons of a friend, Mrs. Jeremiah Curtin. She attributes their long life to occasional baths in salt water and to a diet of the usual Japanese fish food and the weed that grows under water. During very hot weather she would put ice in the tank to keep it at the proper temperature.

* * * *

This she neglected one sizzling day, she tells sadly, and James shriveled up and died. Jeremiah, who was always a sulky brute and not nearly so clever as his brother, positively glowers now that he is left all alone. A Jeremiah, well named after the lamenting prophet of the Old Testament. He lives in a charming old house festooned with ivy, near Fifteenth street and Massachusetts avenue.

* * * *

The lady who owns him has lived there for 45 years. Unfortunately she won't permit me to use her name, but maybe you can guess who it is when I tell you that she wears as her most prized possession a ring that has been in her family for 125 years, with stones cut from Plymouth Rock by an ancestor who came over on the Mayflower.

Handy With Hands.

HENRY PRICE WRIGHT relaxes from the shipping business by reproducing antique furniture in his own workshop upon his country place in Virginia. He is carrying on the business founded by his great-grandfather, Peter Wright, 100 years ago, and some of his handiwork are models of the sailing ships his forbear owned.

* * * *

Speaking of men who like to do things with their hands, there is Sir Richard Padgett, a visitor to the British Embassy here with his wife, Lady Muriel. Their old baronial home, Cranmore, like most English country houses was deficient in baths and plumbing. At least until Sir Richard got busy and installed a number of new bathrooms with his own hands.

* * * *

Young Prince Michael Cantacuzene once engaged in the real estate business in Chicago. His tenants had a way of complaining about stoppages with no regard for the financial status of the struggling young firm. Prince Michael decided he was tired of dealing with plundering plumbers and when a complaint came in he presented himself at the door of the apartment. The lady of the house looked over the handsome form of the exiled Russian nobleman, also a great-grandson of President Grant, and wailed:

"But I called for a plumber."

"I am the plumber," he replied, and proceeded to prove it by doing the job in an efficient manner.

Discus Throw Keeps Modern Maidens Fit

Woman Sets World Mark, Schools Encourage Ancient Sport.

Ware Torrey and Janet Owen.

THE GREEKS may have had a word for it, and we do call it discus after them, but modern girls have a way with it.

Only this week a new world's record was set by a woman, which goes to show that it is still taken seriously enough for practice.

Discus forms an important and spectacular part of the annual Greek games at Barnard College. And the Greek influence, in addition to causing 30 years of competition of classic sport at Barnard, has inspired the University of Cincinnati to go and do likewise, and institute a Greek game of its own.

The discus throw is performed today as it was in the classic Olympic games in old Greece, and also with modern variations. It forms an important part of physical education in many women's colleges.

State Teachers College at Harrisonburg, Va., teaches discus throwing as part of the regular spring athletic program. Its value, this college holds, are training in muscular control and beauty of body lines during performance.

In track and field events, the modern form of discus throwing is used rather than the classic. In the modern style, the discus is swung across the body, at shoulder level, with the off hand used to brace the discus as it moves through its preparatory arcs. This horizontal position is in distinct contrast to the classic form, used in the college Greek games. In the latter, the discus is swung in a perpendicular arc, like a pendulum, from forward to back, instead of from side to side.

Discus throw is a major factor in women's track meets. It is scored for both form and distance, in the classical cotests, and for distance only in the modern style events.

Family Councils Give Assent And Mother Takes a Holiday

Courtesy Department of Agriculture.

MOTHERS GET away from family cares and enjoy shower baths nature fashion, at the camps for housewives made possible by the extension division of the Department of Agriculture. Needless to say, children are left at home.

Periods of Rest at Home Suffice Where Slender Purses Prevent Trips—State-Organized Camps Aid Women in Rural Areas.

With everyone vacation conscious again, the question on every hand is, "Where are you going?" The following article, the fourth in a series on vacations, tells how even the housewife has vacation plans.

"VACATIONS for housewives?"

"Certainly," says Miss Mary Rokhar, who carries on extension work in home management through the Department of Agriculture. "Probably no body of women are more in need of rest and recreation than those who go through the endless repetition of household tasks."

Housewives, of course, heartily agree to the vacation idea, but how, they ask rather bitterly: "How is it to be done?"

All quite simple, according to Miss Rokhar. Just a friendly little matter of family cooperation. Mother holds a family council, says, "I've decided I need a rest, so what are you going to do about it?"

Properly disciplined families—and that all comes under home management—respond nobly. The children, if they are large enough, gallantly offer to look after themselves or dad gets a woman to come in and keep them in order. Mother is packed up and shipped away to the sea or the mountains, where she doubtless has a wonderful time singing the glories of her family to the other vacationists and comes home with renewed energy to take up the managing of her home.

Leaving the children behind is the essential point in a housewife's vacation. Too often on a family vacation dad and the children have a great time and mother works harder even than she did at home.

The extension division has helped the women of small towns and farm communities to have recreational and educational vacations. Open air camps are found in most States of the Union and these camps are increasing in popularity every year, according to Senior Home Economist Miss Madge J. Reese, of the Extension Service.

The camps are said to be highly popular with the husbands. Perhaps this little course has something to do with it. The housewife at camp has not only a restful vacation, but she goes home with a lot of nice little ideas to spring on the family. She has formed new friendships, gained helpful information and thought some new thoughts.

Worriers Given Up.

The type of woman who insists on worrying over the children doesn't get much out of a vacation. She's a pretty hopeless case, think the specialists, and nothing can be done about giving her a vacation until she changes her outlook. These women are growing fewer in number as shown by the increasing popularity of the summer camps.

The economists tell of one woman who, while enjoying herself at camp, confessed she hasn't been divorced from her family a single night in 23 years. Her activities were many, but near at hand, and all her visits were confined to her immediate vicinity.

They tell you also of the woman who left a 2-weeks-old baby to go and have a little vacation for herself before taking up in a serious way the tasks of her motherhood. This unusual procedure is not sanctioned or encouraged by the experts in home management. They do admit, however, that a woman who has gone through the discomforts of child-bearing is entitled to a rest if she can arrange it.

The women enjoy the "mother's camps" so much that they generally come back bringing a friend along.

Read in The Post tomorrow how the unemployed girl and the one on a small salary may take a vacation.

Boys Show Aptitude At Cookery

NEW YORK, June 21 (Spl.). Domestic-minded girls had better look to their laurels. Representatives of the male element — looking for other worlds to conquer—have turned to the kitchen.

This is borne out by the records of five high school boys from Bedford, Ohio, who will attend the twenty-seventh annual convention of the American Home Economics Association opening at the Hotel Pennsylvania next Monday.

Meeting with 2,500 women members of the association, these boys will take part in programs designed exclusively for women. This, however, will probably not seem so strange to them as it might to the average young man. They have been studying home economics and specializing in the study of food and nutrition ever since they have been pupils of Miss Daisy M. Stackhouse, a teacher in the high school where they were seniors.

Determined to attend the convention, the boys earned money for the trip by mowing lawns, repairing tires, holding raffles and giving dances. They accumulated $25 each and will arrive here in an automobile and trailer.

The boys represent one-third of the class of those taking the home economics course in their high school. They were selected to take the course as a reward for high records. All of the boys are athletes. One is a professional caddy and an excellent golfer, another is a star baseball player, and a third has journalistic aspirations.

School Camps Give Jobless Fresh Start

New Educational Chance Opened by Project for Women.

A NEW lease on life is what the Government is planning to offer needy women through the medium of resident schools and educational camps, according to Miss Hilda Smith of the Relief Administration.

At her office yesterday Miss Smith said these institutions had been designed especially for unemployed women who have possibilities of improvement and a desire to make the most of every opportunity.

The curriculum will provide for instruction in social science, English, science, household management, vocational guidance, and health education.

Admit Some with Jobs.

Eligibility of the majority of students, Miss Smith said, will depend on unemployment, but in certain cases employed women will also be admitted.

"We are making every effort to have these schools and camps desirable from the student's point of view."

Separate provision is being made for girls between the ages of 16 to 20; women from 20 to 35, and women of 35 and over. Separate provisions are planned later for women from 40 to 60.

A term of two months is planned, with possibly another two months if the first period is successful.

The first two camps, opened recently, are in New Hampshire and in Pennsylvania. Other camps to be opened soon include one in connection with the Wisconsin School for Women and one to be part of the Adult Opportunity School of South Carolina.

Label Assigns Host of Jobs To Vibrator

Everything From Falling Hair to Sore Muscles on Remedy List.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

ONE SMALL electric vibrator is claimed to have the power of vibrating away half the ills the human race is heir to.

Whether its manufacturers really believe it will, and whether the store that sells it has full faith, is undetermined, but the manufacturers put out a long list of services the vibrator will perform. With three appliances it will essay to relieve indigestion, sore muscles, headaches and insomnia, help to reduce, develop the bust; and aid the complexion.

One odd-looking little rubber appliance is reputed to take away dandruff. And it looks as though it might. Fine little rubber points are better than comb or fingers for going thoroughly over the scalp and vibrating the dead tissue away, stimulating the skin, and encouraging a healthy scalp.

Almost everyone knows now that nearly all hair troubles result from neglect of the scalp—lack of brushing and massaging. The vibrator scalp appliance should encourage a daily workout on the head, and go far toward normalizing hair growth. It's worth trying at $1.19.

Flower Baskets.

Unless women are dressed properly they never appear to best advantage. And the same goes for flowers not properly arranged. The ordinary vase, be it bowl, pitcher or jug shape, lends itself usually to only one arrangement, and that not always to suit the flowers. One of the new flower "puzzle baskets" which fits into any type of vase may be pulled into 25 different shapes, for 25 different arrangements of flowers. It can be made to suit the wiry daisies which fall one over the other; long-stemmed roses, which droop so easily, or a bouquet of garden flowers, long, short, thick or slender-stemmed.

When not in use, it's a deal of fun to play with. It's an evening's occupation to discover all 25 shapes.

• • • •

Flower Cutter.

Did you know—that shears mutilate the delicate cell construction of the flower stem and prevent the quick absorption of water?

Did you know—that fresh flowers wilt because moisture evaporates from the petals faster than it is drawn up through the stem?

So, the logical and sure way to insure one's garden flowers lasting several days longer than usual is to cut them with a new-type flower-cutter advocated by many State garden clubs, flower magazines, and agricultural stations.

An experiment was recently performed in which rose stems were recut by shears, a dull knife, a sharp knife, and this new "cutter." Vases were filled with water dyed green. It took 26 minutes for the color to show at the top of the stem cut with shears, 20 minutes by the dull knife, 13 minutes by a sharp knife, and only 8½ by the new gadget.

There have been many powder boxes that played tunes, some few with little clocks in the top; but only recently one appeared with musical qualities plus a clock.

It's a lovely looking thing. Pastel eloisonne from top to bottom and capable of the lightest, merriest tune imaginable, plus the timepiece.

If one may dare to suggest: a lovely present from a young man to a young woman.

A Better Electric Fan.

An electric company which already has about as many contrivances as there are stars in the Milky Way, is out with another; an improvement on an old model. It's a new electric fan that's going to give a model T aspect to the old ones. This modern model has but three blades—but what blades! When they begin to turn there are truly prevailing winds. And furthermore, when they begin to turn they do it noiselessly! None of the buzz and whirr that makes fans nerve teasers to many people. And it oscillates.

Wool Hats for Summer.

The mere mention of wool hats give one a warm smothered feeling—in this particular kind of weather. But strangely enough the sight of some of the soft, loosely woven white woolies in a downtown store look the picture of comfort. They fit closely, and approximately into any shape they're pulled—a fact which insures their becomingness. All of them are trimmed with either blue or red anchor on the small turned-up brim.

Lipsticks With Mirrors.

A very small clearance sale in a section of a downtown shop has brought no end of novelties to the fore. Conspicuous are lipsticks in attractive mirror cases.

The season has turned so emphatically to mirror compacts, cigarette cases, and even evening bags, that these unusual lipsticks fit into the scheme of things nicely. And so does the price, 65 cents.

Men Discover Coolness And Comfort in Whites

Head-to-Toe Wardrobes Adopt Tropic-Tested Summer Color.

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, June 21.—It was a jury of only six men who picked "Men in White" as the prize-winning play of the year. But it is a jury of hundreds of thousands of men who are deciding that men in white are the coolest, most comfortably dressed men for summer, 1934.

This is the year for men in white. And they wear it from head to foot.

Almost White Hats.

Panama hats and straws are having a big season. While not strictly white, they approach very close to it and certainly illustrate the trend toward lighter colored headgear.

Moreover, the many men who wear lightweight felt hats are choosing these hats in as light shades . . . as near to white . . . as felt can be had.

White Suits.

Almost anywhere you look this season, you'll see men in white suits. Linens, cottons, even shetlands and gabardines in white.

And there's nothing sloppy about them. These white suits have as much fit and cut and line as the heavy winter suit. Plus the advantage of light weight and coolness.

There's nothing new about white shirts. But that doesn't alter men's liking for them. And the plain white shirt will be seen on plenty of men who find it just as comfortable as it looks.

Ties in White.

Another thing you can't help noticing is the number of men who are going in for white ties. Stripes and allover designs on white grounds. In cotton, linen, pongee, silks and silk-and-wool mixtures.

The same thing is true of socks. White grounds, brightened by clocks, stripes, neat checks and plaids, and plain white mesh socks, still have a strangle hold on the preference of thousands of men.

White Shoes.

Finally shoes. We hardly need mention the popularity of all-white shoes this summer. The idea has been as catching as an epidemic. Men are even forsaking the traditional black-and-white and brown-and-white for shoes of just plain white.

Except for the necktie and the hat band and perhaps the handkerchief, all of which should bring a little color into the outfit, it is a good-looking and comfortable outfit which is composed of white.

White hat, shirt, suit, socks and shoes, accented with a bit of bright color at the neck, the breast pocket and the hat band, fix a man up right this summer.

And if you are questioning that white is any more comfortable than any other color, ask yourself why it has long been the most popular tropical wardrobe color.

Men's suits of the type described are available in Washington in all the better men's shops and department stores.

Capital Kitchen

Cold Meat Combinations With Salads, Cheeses and Tidbits Satisfy Summer Appetites and Save Exhausting Toil in the Kitchen.

By Susan Mills.

HOT DAYS call for cool meals served in cool places. On the porch there is an invitation to be lazy and let the dinner prepart itself in the refrigerator. Why not serve supper in the coolest place whether it be the veranda or garden?

Here are a few suggestions for summer menus simply prepared and simply served.

The main part of the meal might be served all on one tray or platter and the family allowed to help themselves individually. One delightful picture comes to mind of a large chop plate on which are cold sliced tongue and cold sliced meat loaf, cream cheese in its packaged shape, currant jelly, green and white crisp onion sticks, a generous mound of well-seasoned and mashed potato salad and spears of asparagus well marinated in vinegar and oil.

Still another menu comes to mind, with the serving of jellied cold boullion in individual glass cups on a tray with celery and gherkins handy, sliced cold cuts of meat on a round platter, in the center of which one finds well-chilled apple-horseradish sauce. If there is any left-over roast beef from a previous meal, that might find its place here. If not, there is always available liver cheese or liver sausage or boneless cooked ham to slice and meat loaves and veal loaves of various sorts that are already cooked and ready. With this one might serve a large bowl of previously crisped potato chips and cubes of some sort of nippy cheese. Rolls or sliced bread completes the main course. For dessert, why not have a large bowl of red raspberries with tea cookies or cake? Iced coffee always tastes good with a menu of this kind.

A Sure-Fire Menu.

Last but not least is this cold meal that is a winning favorite with the men: Serve sliced cold corned beef with tomato stuffed with cream cheese to which has been added some highly seasoned French dressing. Sliced cucumbers and pickled onions act as accompaniments. End it all with man-sized pieces of cold watermelon and iced tea or coffee.

Cole Slaw.

1 medium-sized head of cabbage
1 green pepper, shaved
2 tablespoons celery seed
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 cup cooked salad dressing
Season with salt and pepper
¾ cup beer

Chop or shred the cabbage, add the green pepper and seasoning.

Combine the salad dressing and the beer, having both ice cold, and beat until smooth. Pour the dressing over the cold cabbage mixture and serve in a salad bowl lined with the crisp green lettuce leaves.

What Today Means

"Cancer."

If June 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. and from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:30 to 8:30 a. m., from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. and from 10:30 p. m. until midnight.

If a woman, and June 22 is your natal day, your love for flowers and gardening will, if you have to make a living, assure your success in any business line dealing with either. Interior decorating is another profession that offers you unlimited opportunity, providing, however, that by hard study, you qualify yourself for it. You will gain happiness through a love affair. Do not confide too freely in strangers.

The child born on June 22, when it reaches its teens, will do good work at school without overexerting itself because of its natural brightness. Curb its tendency to make friends too readily with strangers.

The man born on June 22 loves the out-of-doors, and as a horticulturist, might prove successful. If properly trained, farming or anything connected with the soil offer excellent opportunities. If not already married, you should be, having all the qualifications a husband should possess. In selecting a wife, avoid the "giddy" type or one that shows any inclination of being extravagant or being high-tempered. To have complete happiness in your domestic life, avoid being secretive with your wife. You may be very successful in money matters.

How to Keep Well

Infantile Paralysis—A Summer Disease.

"Polio" still remains much of a mystery. It seems, however, that epidemics of this dread disease are occurring with increasing frequency. Beginning with the first clearly described epidemic that occurred in Vermont in 1894, recurring epidemics, some of considerable spread and intensity, have been recorded. Through numerous studies on the part of laboratory workers and public health officials our knowledge of how the disease is spread is gradually growing.

Prevention consists in the avoidance of contact with children who are in the slightest degree ill and the formation of hygenic habits on the part of all children in keeping the hands and fingers away from the nose and mouth. Water, milk and all foods should be kept in mind as a possible sourse of infection.

SLANDER

By Arthur Somers Roche

Gerald Gerrish has advanced Martha Blaisdell money on her own securities and spread the rumor he is supporting her. When she orders him to sell everything and take what she owes him, he retaliates by serving her with a summons in a suit alleging that he advanced money on her promise to marry him. Meanwhile, she has become engaged to Herbert Cranston, wealthy explorer, home for a holiday; his sister objects, but is won over and wants to meet Martha. Trudie Lemming, a mutual friend, shows them a letter just received from her. Also in the picture is Dr. Peter Baxter, who also loves Martha.

"BUT I was wrong in thinking that," cried Letty. "And let's not talk about it. You're swell, just as I've always known you were. Take me downstairs to meet Martha."

Arms about each other's waists they descended the stairs and knocked on Trudie's door. In response to her invitation they entered her room. She stared at them almost as though they were strangers.

"Send for Martha," said Letty. "I can't wait another minute to meet her."

Trudie made no reply. She merely handed Cranston a folded piece of paper. He read it, white-faced, and handed it to his sister.

"Dearest Trudie," Martha's note read, "I'm leaving. If Gerrish is suing me, I won't drag Bert through such a thing. And I haven't the heart to tell him. You tell him, darling. Tell him that I wouldn't marry any man with a filthy scandal like this hanging over me. Love, Martha."

Letty looked up from the hastily written scrawl.

"I haven't met your Martha," she said slowly, "but it seems to me, Bert, that something ought to be done about Gerrish."

"Plenty will be done about him," said Cranston grimly. He turned to Trudie. "What time did she leave?"

"Hours ago, I imagine," Trudie replied. "I thought she was sleeping. But I just sent my maid up to wake her, to tell her that Letty was here, and she found this note on the dresser, addressed to me."

Not Reckless Kind.

"But some one must have heard her leave," protested Cranston. "She didn't have a car and she had to telephone for a taxi."

"What difference does it make when she left, or how much noise she made?" asked his sister impatiently.

But Trudie caught the import of his words.

"Don't be ridiculous, Herbie," she admonished. "You're afraid that Martha did something reckless—in despair—in unhappiness? She's not that kind. I never knew any one more level-headed. She's gone home. She just feels she can't face any one."

"She'll face me," said Cranston. He looked at Letty. "I'm going in after her," he said. "I'll bring her back here. You'll talk to her, won't you, Letty? You—you'll tell her that—she mustn't be absurd, that nothing a swine like Gerrish says or does can make the slightest difference?"

Felt Years Older.

His sister felt years older. He was, in his sudden panic, like a little boy appealing to an adult in circumstances beyond his ability to meet. And she smiled at him.

"I think, Bert," she told him, "that you'll be able to persuade her. If you feel, when you see her," she added, "as you feel now."

"I'll always feel this way," he said. And without further word he left the room.

The doubt that had been in his mind persisted. Trudie's assurance was not convincing. Martha was proud, and one could never tell to what depths of desperation pride could drive a girl. But the butler, his bland face showing no surprise at the question, told him that Miss Blaisdell had taken a taxi to the Green Point station several hours ago. Certainly, then, she had not walked out onto the Sound. • • •

Money No Factor.

Thirty minutes of driving made him cooler. Martha wasn't a coward; she wouldn't run away from a difficulty. A thing like Gerrish couldn't make her contemplate rashness. She'd merely been chivalrous, given Cranston a way out of an embarrassing situation if he wanted one.

But he didn't want one; over and over again he assured himself that. And it wasn't quite generous of Martha to assume that he did. But bless her, she had done what seemed to her the fair and decent thing. Only—and his lips lost their grimness—he must make Martha understand that the man she loved wasn't a fair-weather lover.

He avoided, by great good fortune, arrest for speeding, and arrived before her apartment house in less than an hour. To the hall boy who wished to announce him he said that he was expected, and stepped into the elevator. If Martha had mistaken pride enough to run away from Trudie Lemming's house, she might well have enough of the same quality to refuse to see him if he were announced. But if he just rang the bell of her apartment. • • •

Martha Was There.

He pressed the bell and waited. A full minute passed and he pressed it again. The fear that had prompted his remarks to Trudie came back to him. He banished them. Unless the hall boy had known that Martha was in, he would have told the visitor that his ride upstairs would be in vain. And as he pressed the bell for the third time the door slowly opened.

Martha stood there, but not the Martha whom he had kissed yesterday. Her creamy skin was ashen now; her violet eyes were black, their color definitely changed by some emotion; even her black hair, that always seemed to have a vivid, alive quality, was dull, hung stringily over her forehead.

"Oh—it's you," she said haltingly.

"Who else, Martha, dear?" he asked. He tried to make his voice light, but felt that he failed miserably.

Gerrish Was Dead.

He stepped aside, then closed the door quickly as she entered the room. He seized her hands.

"Martha, you little silly——" he began.

But she cut him short with a gesture. He followed the direction of her pointing—and trembling—hand. Through the open door of her bedroom he could see her bed. And upon it, pajama-clad, lay the figure of a man. He recognized the features, distorted though they were—of Gerrish. Also he recognized, without word from her, that Gerrish was dead.

The little things in life always bothered Cranston. He could spend minutes deciding whether to send a telegram instead of a letter, whether to take a taxi or hop aboard a bus. He would discard four rumpled white ties and then decide that a dinner jacket was more suitable anyway. But great emergencies always found him cool and collected and instinctively doing the right thing.

Wasted No Time.

That finicky fussiness, which is so often a part of bachelorhood, never accompanied him into the jungle. When a false step might mean destruction to himself and his followers, he wasted no time in bewailing his fate; he came to decision instantly and having embarked upon a course wasted no time in later doubts as to the correctness of his decision.

A lesser man, face to face with a situation like this, would have allowed his own alarm to increase the obvious terror of the girl. Such a man, in panic himself, would have been incapable of restoring her to calm. But Cranston showed none of the shocked amazement that possessed him.

As a matter of fact, shock and amazement nearly always waited until after the event to visit Cranston. In the moment of emergency his emotions seemed nonexistent; only a cool mind seemed to animate his every move.

Action Calmed Girl.

He dropped the one hand which he still grasped. Two strides took him to the bedroom and a sweep of one hand closed that door. The very decision of his action did a lot to calm the girl. It was almost as if shutting out the sight of Gerrish also shut him out of Martha's mind.

Nothing less than a sheer genius for emergency could have dictated the action. When hysteria is close to us we are strengthened by another's strength. The mere fact that Cranston did something was enough to assure Martha that probably he could do more. Light appeared in her eyes, livening their dullness.

He turned back to her, reached her side as swiftly as he had left it, grasped both of her hands again and led her, not too hurriedly, to a couch. The pressure of his fingers made her sit down. Without relinquishing his grip, he kicked a chair into position and sat down opposite her.

Tell Me All.

"Now don't cry," he said, crisply. "Just tell me everything."

Her eyes widened and there was visible a convulsive movement of her throat, as though she fought to swallow and found the muscles too tight. He recognized at once his error; to ask her to tell him everything meant that she would begin with horror and perhaps hysterically end there.

"Never mind. Answer my questions," he ordered. "What time did you get here?"

She seemed to sense the purpose in his change of attack, as though she recognized her nearness to breakdown and knew that he was trying to help her avoid that.

"About 10 o'clock, she replied.

He glanced at his wrist watch. It was 11:35 now. He had left the Lemming house slightly over an hour ago. But as he left the butler had told him that Miss Blaisdell had departed several hours before that. Several hours must mean at least three or four.

Waited for Train.

"But you left Trudie's a long time ago," he objected.

"I know. But I had to wait for a train, and I felt so dreadfully about last night—and now it's a hundred times as bad!" Her voice rose and Crandall deliberately slapped her on the cheek. For a moment fury burned in the eyes that were no longer black, but violet, and then complete sanity appeared in them.

"I won't break down," she said quietly. "Thanks."

Once, 20 years ago, when Letty pulled his hair, Cranston had taken a mild punch at his sister. But never since had it occurred to him to strike a woman. Had he been asked, ten minutes ago, if there were any conceivable circumstances which would have aroused him to the point of slapping a woman's face, he would not even have bothered to answer so ridiculous a question. And if, ignoring his silence, the questioner had asked him what he thought a woman would do if he slapped her, a million guesses—provided his dignity permitted him to hazard them—would not have brought him to the truth. He had slapped a woman and she had thanked him.

Recovery Impressive.

Sometime in the future a recollection of this morning would come vividly to him and the most salient point in the recollection would be Martha's quick recovery of her self-possession and her complete understanding of the reason for his light blow.

"I left Trudie's at about 6. There aren't many trains on Sunday morning, I discovered. The next one—one was just pulling out of the station as I arrived there—didn't leave until 8:02. I suppose I could have hired a car, but I was too miserable to think about it. I just sat in the station. As a matter of fact, I didn't want to spend the $20 that a car would have cost. I got into town a little after 9. I knew there'd be no one here. I had let my maid and cook off for the week-end. And they'd both told me they wouldn't be back until tonight. And I was in no mood to cook my own breakfast."

Must Do Something.

She drew a long breath, and Cranston noticed that she had no difficulty now in breathing or swallowing. Also the ashen quality had left her cheeks and a hint of red showed through the creamy skin.

Wanderbirds to Relive Days Of Black Hills Gold Stampede

Dr. Ulke to Recite Tales of Western Adventure on Sunday Hike.

By Robert Shosteck.

Memories of the Black Hills rush will be recounted while the shades of Calamity Jane hover over the campfire party planned Sunday by the Wanderbirds Hiking Club on their trip to Eagle Rock, Fool's Gold Cave, and Dead Run, in Virginia. Dr. Titus Ulke, well-known Washington naturalist and an assayer in the Black Hills during the rush in the nineties, will tell of his interesting adventures with prospectors, outlaws, speculators and cowpunchers.

Club members and Post readers interested in this trip will leave The Post Building at Fourteenth and E streets at 2 p. m. for the 13-mile ride to Dead Run, where the 4-mile hike begins. The round-trip fare is 35 cents. Just beyond the run, the group will follow a dirt road which roughly parallels the creek along a hillside and past a farm. This road, over a mile in length, ends near Eagle Rock, a rugged promontory which affords an excellent view of the river valley. This rock is opposite Plummer Island, famous wild life sanctuary.

From Eagle Rock the group will follow the bluff trail to a small cave known as Fool's Gold Cave, because of the abundance of iron pyrites, often mistaken for gold ore. Along this trail, and particularly in the vicinity of Dead Run, which we soon reach, may be found several interesting plants and animals. The Indian pipe or ghost pipe is now in flower. This odd waxy white plant strongly resembles an Indian pipe and derives its name "ghost pipe" from its peculiarity of turning black shortly after it is picked. This species does not have any green coloring in its stalk or scales and depends for nourishment upon partly decomposed vegetable matter, in this respect, resembling a mushroom, even though not related. Other interesting flowers now in bloom include the Brown-eyed Susan, rose gentian and blazing star.

Just beyond Dead Run, about a mile from Eagle Rock, is a fine spring, where the hikers will halt for supper. On the rocky ledges along the run and on the river bluff are found many kinds of ferns. Among the interesting types may be mentioned the delicate maidenhair fern, the rare ostrich fern, and the walking fern, which owes its name to its habit of rooting at the tip of the frond.

In the woods about the run, Dr. Ulke has seen the harmless watersnake, the tiny ringneck snake which feeds only upon small insects and the beautiful native wood duck. About a mile down the river is an old soapstone quarry, worked from time immemorial by the Indians. Fast walkers particularly interested in geology may plan a trip to this interesting mine during the afternoon siesta at Dead Run.

The campfire will probably be held a short distance up the run, at a point to be selected by Dr. Ulke, which is accessible to the dirt road that begins at the end of a branch of the run. Hikers who can play musical instruments are urged to bring them along. Marshmallows, weenies and citronella would add to the enjoyment of the evening. The party will break up about 7:30 o'clock, allowing a half hour for the moonlight walk down the country road to our buses, which should return us to the city by 9 p. m.

Hikers are again asked to phone in reservations by Saturday evening, if possible, at National 4200, so that the size or number of buses may be estimated. Next Sunday's trip up Rock Run, about 2 miles above "Cabin John," will include swimming and a visit to more old gold mines. Watch next Friday's Post for announcements.

The club emblem and membership cards are now available and will be distributed to members and friends attending hikes.

Culbertson On Bridge

Distribution Again.

When a player holds six honor-tricks, composed of Ace-King combinations in three suits, he is quite likely to feel slightly annoyed to see his opponents attempt to take charge of the bidding. There appears to him, no doubt, something entirely unreal about the whole performance, and when he is one of the world's ranking experts he is apt to assume that his opponents are trying to have a laugh on him by putting over a "psych."

This was the experience of Mr. Howard Schenken, United States Bridge champion, in a recent Rubber game. He held the East hand below, while Mrs. Allan Lehman held the North hand and Mr. Walter Malowan the South.

South, Dealer.
East and West Vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	1♠	Dbl.
2♡	Pass	3♡	Dbl.
Pass	Pass	Pass

Of course, South's Opening bid of one heart is purely psychological. I do not approve First Hand psychics, but the outcome of this one probably furnishes its own justification. North's spade Takeout was natural, and Mr. Schenken's Double on the first round was for a Takeout by his partner. When South rebid his psychic and North then assisted the contract by a bid of three, Mr. Schenken felt that the foolishness had gone far enough and doubled for penalties, expecting at most to concede his opponents five or six heart tricks and take the tricks in the other suits.

The Opening lead by West was a diamond, which was won with the King by Mr. Schenken, who then returned a heart in order to decrease the number of possible ruffs in Dummy. A club was now led, and Mr. Schenken was again in the lead. He elected to return a heart. Actually, his best play at this point was his remaining club, so that he might not be thrown in the lead with that card with nothing but diamonds and spades left. Had he adopted this precaution, he could have defeated the contract. However, as played, South made his contract. When Mr. Schenken was thrown in the lead again with the club he led the diamond Ace, which established South's Queen, and thereafter the only remaining trick for the East and West partnership was a spade honor.

Tomorrow's Hand.

BLACKIE BEAR

Birds of a Feather Flock Together

When Jay Bird left Mr. Man's house, he flew straight to Blackie's Creek House to see if everything was all right. He found that nobody had been about it, and everything was just like they had left it. The only difference was that things were prettier than they had been, for the berries were redder and hickory nut trees were yellow as gold. And not far from the house he saw Chatter Squirrel gathering up nuts and packing them away in his house for the winter. You remember that Chatter Squirrel lives pretty near Blackie's house, and they have always been good neighbors, only they don't eat much of the same things. After a little visit with Chatter Squirrel, Jay Bird went on over to Bob White's house. He hadn't seen Bob White in a long time, and he didn't expect to find anybody at the house but Bob and his wife, Belle. He certainly was surprised when they brought out their eight children and introduced them. They had all grown up in these few months till they were almost as big as their mother, and they twitted and played around in the grass, and seemed to be having a mighty good time. Jay Bird told Bob White about the guns that Mr. Man and Uncle Joe had, and told him to keep out of reach of them, and to teach the children to do so too.

Jay Bird wanted to see all of his feathered friends, and so he put in all the afternoon visiting them; and then, too, he didn't want to get to Who-Who's house till about dark, as he knew he was asleep. Just after the sun went down, he reached Who-Who's house, and he pecked on his door till he woke up and asked who was there. He was mighty glad to see Jay Bird, for he had been pretty lonesome since he went to the mountains and he had lots to talk about. He had wanted to visit Blackie and the boys up in the mountains, but an owl can't fly but a little way at the time, and the trip was too long for him. He told Jay Bird that he had not been without plenty to eat, for Uncle Joe had lots and lots of chickens that slept out in the trees or on the ground, and it wasn't any trouble to slip down and get him a supper most any night after everybody was asleep. "Some folks find lots of fault with Uncle Joe for being too lazy to build a house for his chickens to sleep in," said Who-Who Owl, "but the lazier he is, the better it suits me. If he got too smart it wouldn't be so easy for me to get my suppers." And now here comes Whippoorwill, and he seems in a lot of hurry. He was surprised, but glad, to see Jay Bird, and he asked all about Blackie and the rest of them. But he had something to tell Who-Who Owl. That afternoon he had come by Aunt Lindy's cabin, and he saw her put a nice young rooster in a little pen and give him lots of supper, and he heard her tell her boy that she was going to get him good and fat for his birthday dinner. "Well," said Who-Who, "if you will just stay here and talk to Jay Bird for a little while I will see if that little rooster won't make a good birthday supper for a hungry owl. I had almost forgot that this is my birthday.

Radio Waves and Ripples

RADIO is a weird thing. It is the most impossible, the wildest, the most unexpected, the screwiest, yet the most engaging and entertaining business in the world. We have unimpeachable evidence this morning.

For absolutely no reason at all a man sitting in Griffith Stadium this afternoon will play chimes in Chicago. He will play them by telegraph. Music by telegraph . . . and you once thought getting flowers that way was some stuff, eh?

The chimes—carillon to be exact—will be played with a sort of typewriter that is, after all, nothing more or less than a telegraph key. And at the same time (3 p. m.) that man in Washington is sitting down to his fantastic machine, other men— carilloneurs to be precise—will be sitting down to similar machines in London, Amsterdam, Vicksburg and Seattle—all for the purpose of playing chimes in Chicago.

So that the people in Griffith Stadium will be sure not to miss this latest projection of the original Morse idea—a milestone of scientific progress which, figuratively, might otherwise pass unseen beneath their noses—WJSV has arranged to broadcast this carillouing from the stadium public address amplifiers as well as from its own transmitter. It also will have its Arch McDonald on hand to explain things in a general sort of way.

Such long-distance gonging will be a daily Columbia function for the duration of the World's Fair. It also will provide the stations of the C. B. S. Western division with a brand-new 1934 sign-off signal.

N. B. C. and the sponsors of the Will Rogers Sunday night programs are to give us our first international commercial broadcast series.

The first show will originate in London, Sunday, July 15. Berlin, Paris and Vienna will be the points of origin on succeeding Sundays.

Names which are not so well known here, but names which have given European audiences their best entertainment for years have been signed for the series, giving American listeners their initial opportunity for easy comparison of European and native talent. Gertrude Lawrence, John Tilley, Lucienne Boyer, Rita Georg and Joseph Schmidt are some of these names.

European programs sent to the United States for rebroadcast on a sustaining program have become as commonplace as time signals. But never before has a series of programs been built for American consumption under commercial sponsorship.

Six years of research and experimentation by radio engineers have made possible nearly accurate prediction of transatlantic transmission quality on any given date. For six months N. B. C. engineers, production men and the sponsors have laid their secret plans for this broadcast.

Queen Elizabeth a broadcaster? Probably not, even had she at her command the magic of radio, though undoubtedly her chambers would have been equipped with at least one of the most up-to-date, all-wave receivers available. The lady is Helen Menken, "Queen Elizabeth" of the Theater Guild's "Mary of Scotland," as she came to the microphone in the final performance of Columbia's "The Big Show" last Monday night.

A group of Washington pilots have dates to play nine holes of golf Sunday at nine District courses.

They'll take their planes along and play a hole at each course.

To us it seems like a pretty good way of getting around lady foursomes, and we want to know more about these aerial golfers. Perhaps it only looks dangerous.

Bill Coyle is putting two of them—Earl Steinhaur and Edna Garden—on the air during his weekly sports program tonight, WMAL, 8:30.

When the Federal Radio Commission calls up for the application of KNBC, Kansas City, for increase of power to 2,500 watts, it will have before it a request of Washington's WRC to authorize a doubling of the daytime power of the local N. B. C. outlet to 1,000 watts.

KNBC is on the same wavelength as WRC, and the minds here mean to protect their daylight broadcast service area.

The commission, apparently, is in a mind to listen sympathetically to suggestions for daytime power increases here. WOL's morning and afternoon wattage was doubled last week.

"Now comes word that an unknown musician, John Lawrence Seymour, has written an opera called 'The Eunuch,' which will be performed next season. This is described as a one-act libretto in English. It was chosen from several scores that were submitted. What will excite most music lovers, however, is the announcement that Lawrence Tibbett will appear, not in the title role, but as sultan."

Alas, Mr. Post Editorial Writer, Mr. Tibbett is a barytone.

8 Sunday Schools Plan Joint Outing Tomorrow

Eight Sunday schools will hold their annual picnics at Glen Echo Amusement Park tomorrow.

These are Northminster Presbyterian, Fifteenth street Christian, Trinity Methodist, Western Presbyterian, Church of Our Saviour (Episcopal), Kenilworth Presbyterian and Calvary Methodist of Aurora Hills, Va. The affair will be a joint outing.

Don't say we didn't WARN you!

IF YOU WANT YOUR SHARE OF THE SLIM SUPPLY LEFT OF 16- AND 18-YEAR-OLD PRE-PROHIBITION VINTAGE WHISKEY, BETTER ACT RIGHT NOW!

THERE is a limited supply of pre-prohibition rye and bourbon still remaining in the nation's warehouses.

Several of the most famous brands of these whiskies belong to National Distillers and its subsidiaries.

When this diminishing supply of rare old whiskey is exhausted, you will never see any more, as the government customarily insists that whiskey be withdrawn at the end of 8 years from barrels and bottled for purposes of revenue.

You might, however, reasonably ask — won't this supply last some time? Is there any immediate need for haste in acquiring a stock?

It is not our purpose to sound a selfish alarm. You will always be able to get good whiskies—there is a good supply of aged-in-the-wood and bottled in bond four-year-old ryes and bourbons coming along. These will be available under the same brand names mentioned here. On the other hand, facts, based on sales, indicate clearly that every single case of this 16- to 18-year-old vintage whiskey will be sold within a relatively short time.

With the return of better times, people of means are again shopping for character and quality in the liquors they drink and serve.

This explains why our 16-year-old Old Taylor is now completely sold out—as are several other venerable National Distillers brands.

It also explains the swiftly mounting demand for our famous pre-prohibition bourbons — notably Sunny Brook and Old Grand Dad, both from 16 to 18 years in bond. And for Mount Vernon — our one remaining prohibition-aged rye — ranging in age from 12 to 13 years.

So if you wait too long, don't say we didn't warn you.

When liquors of this rare calibre, limited in supply, can be bought at moderate prices, it is obvious that they can't and won't last very long.

The famous brands OLD GRAND DAD, SUNNY BROOK and MOUNT VERNON make up the greater part of this special limited stock, but also there are small quantities remaining of OLD MCBRAYER, BOURBON de luxe, BLACK GOLD, BLUE GRASS and OLD RIPY

Whiskey so rare as this is really "occasion" whiskey — not for the everyday cocktail or highball, but for the unusual occasion

Red Sox, Chisox Split Twin Bill

Boston, June 21 (AP).—Whitlow Wyatt, Chicago right-hander, prevented the Boston Red Sox from ousting Washington from third place in the American League by hurling the White Sox to a 4-1 victory in the finale of today's double-header. The Yawkey-Collins entry captured the opener, 6-3, to extend their winning streak to five straight.

The home club settled the first game by pounding over five runs against Ted Lyons in the first two innings on singles by Cissell, Roy Johnson, Porter and Cooke, and doubles by Werber and Rick Ferrell. Henry Johnson worked for Boston and went the full distance for the first time this season.

Dusty Rhodes started against Wyatt in the second contest and gave Jimmy Dykes' hands nine hits for three runs before Johnny Welch relieved him in the ninth. The Chisox tallied in the second frame when Boken and Shea hit safely, and the second run resulted from a pair of singles in the fifth. Al Simmons belted out his eleventh homer of the season in the sixth, and the final Chicago tally was made in the ninth, off Welch, when Chamberlin doubled, went to third on Shea's sacrifice and scored on Wyatt's second clean single.

Johnson Hits Homer 21 As A's, Browns Divide

Philadelphia, June 21 (AP).—The Athletics broke their losing streak of four straight by winning the second game of today's double-header with the St. Louis Browns, 6 to 2, after dropping the first, 7 to 5.

The Browns flogged Mahaffey for four runs in the second inning of the opener and counted three more in the fourth when Burns hit Dietrich for a homer with two on.

The second game was a pitching duel between Knott and Marcum. The Mackmen tied the score at 2-to-2 in the fifth, and in the sixth forged two ahead when Bob Johnson cracked his twenty-first home run of the year and Jimmy Foxx his sixteenth. Johnson's homer was his seventh in seven straight games.

Perroni 8-5 Over Barry Tonight

Impresses His Backers in Final Workout of Strenuous Grind.

Furr to Fight Raymond in Semifinal Which May Steal Show.

On edge like a mouthful of sensitive teeth at a rasping sound and eager to punch holes in Donald (Reds) Barry, Patsy Perroni, the Boston strong boy transplanted from Cleveland, yesterday applied the final light touches to a strenuous training siege for his 10-round main event at Griffith Stadium tonight. Perroni flashed form in shadow boxing and bag workouts which reassured the local gabling gentry that has installed him an 8-to-5 favorite over Barry.

Barry, who concluded his training in New York and will arrive here just in time for the weighing-in process at 2 p. m. today, also is reported in the finest of fettle for the engagement.

Armed with every advantage but a weight advantage, Perroni impressed greatly in his finishing licks yesterday. Following four rounds of shadow boxing, he worked briefly on the light bag, then started making passes at one of his trainers sent here by Dan Carrol, his manager.

Sees Ball Game.

"Lookit him," moaned the trainer, rolling up a sleeve to disclose a black and blue arm. "He's on edge, and he'll have me black and blue all over before he gets in the ring with that Barry fellow." Perroni's pre-fight nervousness finally was assuaged by a trip to Griffith Stadium, where he witnessed the ball game between Detroit and Washington.

A better hitter than the powder-puff puncher Barry, Perroni's advent into local rings is made auspicious by wins over Unknown Winston, Maxie Rosenbloom, Joe Sekyra, Adolph Heuser and Johnny Risko. He also boasts a knockout over Larry Johnson, the angular colored heavyweight who is the only fighter with a clean knockout over Marty Gallagher.

Barry, who has been resurrected from the dust-laden shelf of fistic unpopularity for this contest, also boasts a number of good wins. He, too, has defeated Winston, but made a very poor showing against Rosenbloom and drew once and lost once to Joe Sekyra. At his best, or at his worst, Barry is capable of outfumbling the best the heavyweight division has to offer—and therein lies the contest.

Furr Frees Raymond.

Phil Furr, the heavy-punching young local welterweight, is matched with Lew Raymond, cagey Baltimore boxer, in an eight-round semifinal which may steal the show. In twin sixes, Young Raspi, the best of the Baltimore Raspis, is carded to engage rough, tough, rugged Billy Bullock, and Otto Kushmer will attempt to knock the head off Johnny Mays. Al Dintaman pairs with Kid Coster in a four-round curtain raiser.

Around the Ring's selections—Perroni to defeat Barry, Furr over Raymond, Raspi to beat Bullock, Kushmer over Mays, Dintaman to decision Coster.

LON WARNEKE, who yesterday added a 4-hit game to his many brilliant performances.

Warneke, Cubs Beats Hubbell In Box Duel

Holds Giants to Four Hits as Foe Is Pounded; Jurges Hits Homer.

CHICAGO, June 21 (AP).—Lonnie Warneke got his long-sought chance to hook up with Carl Hubbell before the home folks today and responded by dazzling the New York Giants with a shutout victory, 4 to 0.

Hubbell lasted only six innings against the "pride of the Ozarks," who blanked the enemy with four hits, struck out eight and was assured his triumph in the second inning as Billy Jurges hammered one of Hubbell's slants over the left-field wall with two on base.

Nine Hits Off Hubbell.

Hubbell was nicked for nine hits. Defeated for the fourth time this season, he was ejected for Pinch-hitter George Grantham, just another strikeout victim for Warneke in the seventh.

Warneke's performance was his best since he opened the campaign with one-hit games against the Cincinnati Reds and St. Louis Cardinals. He was only in one bad jam—the first inning when the Giants loaded the bases on a single by Travis Jackson and two errors.

From the fifth through the eighth innings he held the Giants hitless, surrendered his fourth hit to Mel Ott in the ninth and then calmly set Jackson, Watkins and Pinch-hitter Lefty O'Doul down in order to end the game in the fast time of 1 hour and 41 minutes. The shut-out was only the second experienced by the Giants this year.

Miss Faunce, Mrs. Pray In Finals

Triumph Over Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Mackenzie; to Clash Today.

Each Victor by 3 and 2; Other Flight Scores Are Completed.

THE District women's golf championship developed into an all-Manor finals at Columbia yesterday when Miss Wimifred Faunce, the medalist, defeated Mrs. Jack Scott, of Congressional, and Mrs. L. G. Pray turned back Mrs. Roland Mackenzie, also of Congressional.

Both Miss Faunce and Mrs. Pray triumphed by 3-and-2 scores. They will clash this morning over the 18-hole route for the title.

Miss Faunce snuffed out a 2-up lead amassed earlier in the match by her opponent, and set a winning pace down the stretch. After the first three holes had been halved in fives, Miss Faunce rolled into the lead on the 160-yard fourth. Here Mrs. Scott put her drive a few feet from the cup, and Miss Faunce, also on with her drive, was stymied by Mrs. Scott's ball and knocked it into the cup for a deuce.

Is Stymied Again.

Mrs. Scott won the fifth with a 5 to a 6, again stymieing Miss Faunce, but the medalist took the sixth with a 5. Mrs. Scott went 2 up again by scoring par 4 on the seventh. They halved the eighth in 3's, and Miss Faunce cut down her foe's advantage to 1 up by taking the ninth with a 5, to Mrs. Scott's 6.

Miss Faunce evened the match on the tenth with a 4 to a 5. She went into the lead for the first time on the short thirteenth by reaching the green with her drive and getting down in two putts. Mrs. Scott took a 4. Miss Faunce became 2 up by capturing the fourteenth with a snappy 4 to a 5. They halved the fifteenth. On the 112-yard sixteenth Miss Faunce ended the match by sinking a 6-footer for her par 3, and Mrs. Scott muffed her putt from 8 feet, taking a 4.

Mrs. Scott played the first nine in 41 and Miss Faunce in 42. Miss Faunce shot seven holes on the back nine in only two over par, and had par in for a 79.

Braves Nip Pirates Twice; In 4th Place

Triumph, 4-1 and 8-7, as Home Runs Help.

Pittsburgh, June 21 (AP).—Boston replaced Pittsburgh at the bottom of the first division today by taking two games from the Pirates, 4-1 and 8-7, making it 10 defeats in the past 12 games for the losers.

Two home runs by Wally Berger accounted for five tallies in the second game and more than off-set a 17-to-11 advantage Pittsburgh had in the hit column.

Frankhouse was master all the way in the first game and Randy Moore's homer with one on in the second clinched the contest.

Suspicious Gallops to Easy Victory in Feature Race at Charles Town Track

Mare Downs Veritas by Length

Dixie Bee Is Third in Sprint; Aldershot Sets New Mark.

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Correspondent).

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., June 21.—Suspicious, a well named 5-year-old daughter of Sir Greysteel, had her day in the feature race here in the mountains and galloped off with the 5-furlong contest, winning by a length margin over Veritas, which, in turn, had a half-length advantage over Dixie Bee. Suspicious ran just a bit better than usual, and several in the field ran just a bit worse than usual. This combaniation sufficed to bring the mare the major part of the purse.

F. Munoz had the mount on Suspicious, and he lost no time in hustling the mare to the front of the field. Veritas soon was disclosed as chaser No. 1 and Dixie Bee as chaser No. 2. They set out after the flying leader, but she was not to be caught. The further they went the more impressive became Suspicious. Munoz had only to guide in the stretch, and his charge appeared capable of drawing away any time a move of that sort might be necessary.

Suspicious, owned and operated by one L. Simon, was one of three well-played horses in the field, paying a $6.80 mutuel.

One track record was smashed on the lightning-fast track. Aldershot, a 7-year-old son of Man o' War, won the second race by seven lengths and broke the mark for 7 furlongs, being clocked in 1:28. Jockey T. Fowler gave the veteran a million-dollar ride.

Sam Palumbo, who has been under suspension, returned to the turf wars and rode a pair of winners, Easter Herald, in the first, and Lodors, in the third.

War Pledge, at $38.20, Wins Again at Latonia

Latonia Race Track, Latonia, Ky., June 21 (AP).—War Pledge, which O. A. Bianchi nominated for the Kentucky Derby only to see him fall a bit short of that class, showed another sparkling effort in the Frankfort Purse here this afternoon to account for his second victory in as many starts.

Despite his triumph of Tuesday, War Pledge was completely overlooked by the mutuel betters and rewarded his backers at $38.20 for $2 to add to the liberal sprinkling of longshots which have romped home in the last three days.

War Pledge came from far back to take the mile-and-70-yard decision by two lengths from J. Shakespeare's Red Basi, which also closed with a rush. Mrs. A. W. Willin's Amazement was third.

FIRST ACT	110	5	6	8	6	8	8	O'Malley	55.30

Two-dollar mutuels paid—EASTER HERALD, $7.60, $2.90, $2.60; DUTIFUL, $2.60, $2.40; BENDROMEL, $3.60.

EASTER HERALD, away well, and having good speed, was sent to the front at once, shook off THREE GRAND early and had enough left to hold DUTIFUL safe. Latter, a forward factor from the outset, moved up steadily, and was wearing the winner down. BENDROMEL slew to find her speed, closed with a rush.

SECOND RACE—About seven furlongs; purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:00. Off at 3:02½. Winner, J. McCarthy, jr.'s ch. g. (7), by Man o' War—Coronia. Trained by J. Rausch. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:28.

Horses	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight
ALDERSHOT	115	3	3	2½	2½	1½½	1h	1	Fowler	$1.30

FAIR JACK	115	5	2	3½	3½	8	7½	7	Gaither	30.50

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ALDERSHOT, $4.60, $2.60, $2.20; GRAND ROX, $2.80, $2.20; STEELTON, $2.40.

ALDERSHOT, close to the early pace, took command at will on the back stretch, was rated in front, and drew out at will. GRAND ROX, close up at all times, wore down TRUE JOHN, but could not menace the winner. STEELTON, reserved well back of the pace, made up ground quickly.

THIRD RACE—About seven furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:29. Off at 3:30½. Winner, C. G. Overcash's b. f. (3), by Stimulus—Ledora. Trained by E. Brining. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:28 2-5.

Horses	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight
LODORUS	107	5	5	1½	1½	1h	1½½	Palumbo	$2.40
TRANSCRIBE	115	1	1	2h	2h	2h	2½½	O'Malley	.80

HEDGE SON	113	6	7	7	7	7	7	Merrissey	53.70

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LODORUS, $6.80, $2.60, $2.60; TRANSCRIBE, $3.60, $2.20; BURLEIGH, $2.80.

LODORUS had speed to go to the front at once, was rated there throughout, saved ground on all turns and held TRANSCRIBE safe. Latter, slow to find his speed, was taken far out of it, but closed resolutely. BURLEIGH had too much taken out of him, but TRANSCRIBE was tiring at the end.

FOURTH RACE—About seven furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:52. Off at 3:53. Winner, J. Arthur's ch. g. (4), by Noah—Diana. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:28.

Horses	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight
HOLLAND	115	5	3	1h	1h	1½	1½	1½	Lauch	$6.10
NISIA	113	3	1	2½	2h	2½	2h	2½	O'Malley	4.40
FLAGEOLET	115	1	2	3h	3½	3h	3½	3½	Day	2.80
SAMBO	108	2	5	4½	4½	4½	4½	4h	Palumbo	15.70

COMPROMISING	112	3	1	6	6	6	6	6	Yingling	31.10

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOLLAND, $14.20, $5.80, $2.60; NISIA, $4.80, $2.80; FLAGEOLET, $2.20.

HOLLAND, away well and avoiding a jam after the start, took command at once, saved ground throughout, and drew out entering the stretch, but had to be hard ridden to hold NISIA safe. Latter swerved out after the start, causing a jam, moved up fast on far turn, and closed well. FLAGEOLET, bothered in the jam after start, weakened badly.

FIFTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:16. Off at 4:18½. Winner, L. Simon's ch. m. (5), by Sir Greysteel—Paradoxa, III. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:00 4-5.

Horses	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight
SUSPICIOUS	115	3	1	1½	1½	1½	1½	Munoz	$2.40
VERITAS	109	1	2	2½	2½½	2h	2h	Barr	7.10
DIXIE BEE	109	4	3	3h	3½	3½	3½	Gaither	2.30
WARHOUT	115	2	4	4½	4½½	4½	4½	Palumbo	2.10
JUSTA SUNBEAM	109	6	5	5h	5½	5½	5½	Hilley	14.40
CAMPHOR BALL	118	5	6	6	6	6	6	Lauch	41.60

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUSPICIOUS, $6.80, $4.20, $2.60; VERITAS, $5.60, $3.80; DIXIE BEE, $2.60.

SUSPICIOUS had speed to get to the front at once, was rated in front, and won with something in reserve. VERITAS, closest to the pace of leader at all times, attempted to go through on the inside, was forced to take up, but closed well. DIXIE BEE raced forwardly throughout.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:41½. Off at 4:43. Winner, G. L. Bern's br. or blk. f. (4), by Rusalas—Merry Land. Trained by H. C. Brummer. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 0:24 2-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:42 1-5, 1:50 3-5.

Horses	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight
MERRY MISS	105	1	3	3½	3½	3½	3½	1h	O'Malley	$1.80
DUNAIR	115	2	1	4½½	4h	1h	1h	2½	Holland	1.90

BAY WRACK	108	7	5	5h	6	6	5½	4½	Quattlebaum	9.20
LAMARIA	108	6	4	1½	2h	2h	2½½	5½	Steen	50.30
EVENING CHIMES	106	5	7	7	7	7	6	6	Bardales	18.10

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MERRY MISS, $5.80, $2.60, $2.20; DUNAIR, $3.40, $2.20; DARK STAR, $2.20.

MERRY MISS, under stout restraint for a half-mile, took command with ease, was rated in front under restraint for the balance of the race, and was never threatened. DUNAIR, second in the early going, moved up steadily when called upon, but was no match for the winner. DARK STAR, slow to find her best speed, closed well. BAY WRACK, a trailer in the early racing, made up some ground on the inside. LAMARIA had a flash of speed, but stopped. EVENING CHIMES had some speed, but stopped badly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $250; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:06½. Off at 5:12. Winner, J. Arthur's br. g. (5), by Polymelian—Sirita. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:50, 1:15 4-5, 1:42 1-5, 1:55 2-5.

Horses	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight
JAMBALAYA	108	8	2	3½	1½	1½	1h	1½	Prieto	$1.80

MISS CATALAN	108	7	7	6h	3½	3½	3½½	3½	Gaither	2.80
ARMAGEDDON	113	6	6	5h	4½	4½	4½½	4½	Tromberio	6.40
CONCORD	113	5	4	4½	5½	5½	5½	5½	Yingling	22.10
EASTER MEDAL	108	1	1	7	8	8	8	8	Steen	37.80
CHARLEY J. S	113	2	5	8	7	7	7	7	Williams	30.80

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JAMBALAYA, $5.20, $3.40, $2.60; LIGHT BREEZE, $4.20, $3.00; MISS CATALAN, $2.60.

JAMBALAYA, rated well up in the early part, took command when EASTER MEDAL quit, saved ground throughout, and held LIGHT BREEZE safe while under punishment. LIGHT BREEZE, under restraint for a half-mile, moved up stoutly on the final turn and finished well. MISS CATALAN raced evenly, and could not better position. ARMAGEDDON, fractious at the start, and breaking from the outside, was forced to race wide, and finished fast. EASTER MEDAL had some early speed, but stopped badly.

with Bill Bennings.

First race—Linnie turned in one sizzling effort here and that race repeated might allow him to escape the maiden ranks. Speedemup has a fighting chance to upset the top fellow. Kharaon appears the best cfthe others.

Second race—Wise Pete may draw Sam Palumbo for the saddle work and scamper home despite the assignment of top weight. Barnstormer and Foxtee will have some say in the money distribution.

Third race—Easter Herald, if sent back, might make it two wins in as many days. That was a pretty fair effort today. Jobs Dido has the speed when the word is given and the price is right. Unfair for the show end.

Fourth race — Handley's last stamps him as the best in this group. Rather honest for a cheap horse. Mordrom seems capabale of taking care of the place award. En Passant is due to awake and this may be the spot.

Fifth race—Justa Sunbeam was too stoutly opposed today. She will find this field more to her liking. Crossing Over and Pergola to account for the place and show.

Sixth race—Small Change is the figure horse here. That 116 opunds shouuld not bother this one. Jane Porter did not have the best of racing luck last out. Tulyries Wand deserves money mention.

Seventh race—Sand Bell, Hosain and Light Breese is the way I prefer them in the final. The first named is Mike's special.

Walters Leads League With 7 Stolen Bases

Cumberland, Md., June 21 (Spl.). Sherman Walters, shortstop of the F. O. Eagles, is the leading base pilferer of the Interstate League, according to the averages compiled to date. The Eagle star has seven bases to his credit. George Walters, Eagles' third sacker and captain, and Joe Buskey, of Potomac Edison, hold the runner-up position with six each, while Howard "Shorty" Radcliffe, of Corriganville, has five and Thompson, of Frostburg, four.

Stocks Retreat Fraction as Summer Opens

Doldrums Take Possession of Market; Sales Cut to 498,110 Shares.

New York, June 21 (AP).—The stock market greeted the official arrival of summer on the calendar today by sinking deeper into inertia while prices drifted slowly downward.

The "summer doldrums," as Wall street has been in the habit of calling the dull spells which often prevailed in the stock market in June and July, have been here for some time.

But speculation ebbed further as an atmosphere of summer inactivity settled over the financial district and accentuated the recent tendency to mark time until some new incentive to trading arrives.

Trading Volume Shrinks.

Volume on the stock exchange shrank to 498,110 shares, compared with 548,535 yesterday.

An early flurry of buying in metal shares on reports the Treasury had started to buy silver actively in carrying out provisions of the silver purchase bill helped to stiffen the general market but was not sustained.

Later the market eased off again and turned a little heavy toward the finish. Weakness cropped out in Standard Oil of New Jersey, which closed 1⅝ points lower, and other oil shares for no obvious reasons in the day's news.

Eight-tenths Lower.

The Standard Statistics Co. average price for 90 stocks closed eight-tenths of a point lower, at 79.3, the third session of decline.

Elsewhere in financial markets, quotations moved narrowly in listless trading. The British pound hung around $5.04 in foreign exchange dealings, little changed. German marks steadied.

Among stocks, U. S. Steel common, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, Anaconda Copper, J. I. Case, International Nickel, Westinghouse Electric and other prominent issues at the finish were either unchanged or only fractionally lower.

On Losing List.

American Can lost more than a point and International Shoe, Santa Fe, Allied Chemical, Air Reduction, Reading and Owens-Illinois Glass slipped 1 to 3 points lower in small trading.

Distillery and alcohol shares rallied a bit after their sell-off yesterday.

Speculative markets found little guidance to the future in the day's news. Brokers continued to ascribe the hesitation of markets in part to a desire to await announcements from Washington on the personnel of the commission which will administer the stock exchange control bill and for other moves by President Roosevelt that would throw light on his future policies.

Anticipation of a July let-down in industry, particularly in steel and automobile production, also was a check upon bullish activity, although some business observers insisted the steel slump would be less than predicted lately.

Foreign Markets.

London, June 21 (A.P.).—Inactivity predominated on the stock exchange today. Kaffirs and silver-related securities were firm, the latter on investment buying. German bonds improved, but Argentine rails and leading industrial shares were dull and transatlantic issues unsettled. The market closed irregular.

Paris—Quotations on the bourse were irregular in an inactive session today. Rentes declined, and Young loan bonds lost part of their recent advance. Gold mining shares, however, resisted the selling pressure. The closing was heavy.

Berlin—Selling pressure caused a weak opening on the bourse, but prices recovered slightly at the close.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Delay of the President in Signing the Farm Mortgage Repudiation Bill Leads One to Hope That It Will Get a Pocket Veto.

By Ralph West Robey.

Reports remain exceedingly vague on what the President probably will do with the farm mortgage repudiation bill passed in the closing hours of Congress. On the favorable side—that is, on the side of keeping it from becoming law—is the fact that the measure was not sponsored by the Administration. It is to be hoped, therefore, that the bill will receive a pocket veto. If it is signed, we are certain to have another period of bankruptcy among financial institutions whose portfolios consist of a large portion of farm mortgages.

The measure provides in broad terms that a farmer with a mortgage on his property may forestall foreclosure for six years by having himself adjudged bankrupt by a Federal court and thereafter making an insignificant annual payment. The amount of such payment is a percentage of the value of the property as determined by appraisers appointed by the court. In the first year it amounts to 1 per cent of this value; in the second and third years it is 2½ per cent, and in the fourth and fifth years it is 5 per cent. Within the sixth year the balance falls due and either the farmer must pay the balance or the holder of the mortgage may sell the property.

Arguments in Favor of The Bill Have Some Force.

In favor of the bill it is stated that it will enable the farmers to remain on their land while they gradually work themselves out of the economic difficulties arising from the depression. Further, that it will prevent the throwing of a large number of farms on the market at the present depressed price. Because of this, it is stated, the ultimate position of the creditor, the holder of the mortgage, will be better than if he foreclosed and tried to convert the farm into cash at once. All he does is to give up a bit of income for the relatively short period of five years. By doing this not only will he enhance his chances of being paid a larger amount—which may far more than offset any loss of interest he suffers in the intervening time—but as well, he will make a major contribution to recovery through removing the deflationary effect of wholesale foreclosures of farm mortgages.

In many respects this is a telling argument. Certainly it is as good, even better, than the one the Administration used to justify the repudiation of the Government's bonds. And as far as being high-handed in the interest of a particular group is concerned, it is no worse than the imposition of a tax that falls upon destitute factory workers for the purpose of raising money to hand out to farmers. Neither is it any more high-handed than the confiscation of the gold supply of the country at more than 30 per cent below the market price.

Bill Is Without Any Economic Justification.

Such analogies, however, do not provide an argument for the bill. Rather, it must rest upon its own merits. If it is approached from this point of view it quickly is apparent that it is without justification.

In the first place, an inherent part of the position of a creditor is to be able to take certain action in case the contract under which he loaned money is not fulfilled. He pays for this right by accepting a rate of interest lower than he could obtain were such protection not present. To remove or cancel these rights, therefore, is to repudiate and nullify an essential feature of a creditor position.

Secondly, and more important from a practical point of view, there are many holders of farm mortgages in this country that can not afford to go without interest for the next five years. In general all insurance companies, savings banks, and other institutional investors fall within this category. With them a regular income is necessary, not because they must make profits on their investment, but because the funds of their policy holders and depositors constantly are turning over and the companies must be in a position to meet withdrawals, they can do this only by having a continuous inflow of funds. If the income from their investments stops their only alternative is to realize on the investment through liquidation. If this right is abrogated they will go bankrupt.

If the Government decides to follow the principle of this farm mortgage bill, accordingly, it either must come to the rescue of a large portion of our institutional investors or be willing to face another period of widespread financial insolvencies.

Wool Market.

Boston, June 21 (A.P.) (U. S. Dept. Agr.). The Kerrville wool in Texas to the amount of about 1,000,000 pounds was reported to have been turned over to an Eastern mill through a Boston house. Estimates indicated that scoured basis equivalents to the price paid were in the range 70 to 75 cents delivered East. Despite the closing of this transaction at a price distinctively below recent quotations here, Boston holders of spot wools were asking around 80 cents scoured basis for average wool, and around 85 cents for choice ungraded 12 months Texas wool.

Bond Market Is Unchanged; At 86.7 Level

Prime Issues Maintain Steady Position as All Others Decline.

New York, June 21 (AP).—United States Government securities and secondary bonds drifted lower in today's loans while prime corporation investment issues continued to maintain a steady to firm position.

Due to a turnover of some $5,700,000 in Federal obligations, transfers stepped up to a total of $13,609,000, compared with $10,771,000 yesterday.

The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate bonds was unchanged at 86.7.

Profit-Taking Blamed.

Heaviness of Governments was attributed partly to profit-taking. Most of the Treasuries were down 3-32 to 16-32 of a point. The most active of the list were Home Owners Loan 4s, off 7-32, and Treasury 3¼s of 1941, down 8-32. Liberty 1st 4¼s and 3½s were slightly higher on small volumes.

Despite the spotty appearance of the market generally, various loans managed to establish new peaks for the past year or longer.

Among these were Chesapeake & Ohio consolidated 5s, Cleveland Union Terminal 4s and 5½s, Consolidated Gas 5s, Detroit Edison 4½s, International Cement 5s, Kansas City Power 4½s, Metropolitan Edison 5s, Northern Ohio Traction 6s, Ohio Public Service 7s, Shell Pipe Line 5s and Wheeling & Lake Erie 5s.

A firm tone was shown by the Standard Oils of New Jersey and New York, and some bonds of Sinclair Oil, Pennsylvania Railway, North American, Laclede Gas, Kresge Foundation, General Petroleum, Dodge Bros., Burlington, Atlantic Coast Line, Armour & Co., and American Telephone.

List of Losers.

Losers of fractions to around 2 points included liens of American Water Works, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Boston & Maine, Chicago Great Western, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Erie, Goodrich, Illinois Central, Lehigh Valley, Nickel Plate, Frisco, Southern Pacific, Southern and Wabash.

The foreign list was dull and mixed. Some of the Germans steadied, but the Australians, Cubans and Japanese sagged.

Curb's Prices Turn Mixed In Slow Sales

Oil Issues Close Lower as Transfers Rise to 145,000 Shares.

New York, June 21 (AP).—Curb exchange prices had a mixed trend today, with trading at a low volume. Oil shares were generally lower, while some mining issues scored small gains.

Transfers totaled about 145,000 shares, somewhat larger than Wednesday's 116,000 but still at a low ebb.

International Petroleum, with a loss of 2 points, led the oils to lower ground. Creole Petroleum, Imperial Oil, Standard Oil, Standard Oil of Indiana and Gulf Oil also lost fractions to more than a point. Fisk Rubber declined a point on moderate volume.

Teck Hughes, among the gold mining issues, advanced a point and a half, while Pioneer Gold, Wright Hargreaves and several others showed firmness. New Jersey Zinc dropped 1½ points.

Glen Alden Coal, Distillers Co., Ltd., Philip Morris and Swift & Co. rose slightly. Singer Manufacturing jumped 4 points. Aluminum Co. of America, on the other hand, lost 4. Electric Bond & Share declined a fraction.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Steel scrap—Trade expectations of improvement in quotations have been realized with an advance of 25 cents a ton in the Youngstown and Pittsburgh markets. This upturn follows several cuts in the price of No. 1 heavy melting material.

Cast iron pipe—An advance of $2 a ton has been put into effect in all selling districts following a similar advance in Birmingham earlier in the week.

Flour—Prices have been lowered 10 to 15 cents a barrel in the New York area as an adjustment to the recent decline in wheat prices. New buying continues light.

Flour Markets.

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—FLOUR—Weak; spring patents, 7.00@7.25; soft winter straights, 6.00@6.25; hard winter straights, 6.50@6.75.

RYE FLOUR—Easy; fancy patents, 4.80@5.00.

Minneapolis, June 21 (A.P.).—Flour, 15 lower. Carload lots, family patents, 7.00@7.20 a barrel in 98-lb. sacks. Shipments, 24,017. Bran, 21.50@22.00.

Small Business in Other Lands Complain of Neglect on Credits

By Anna P. Youngman.

Complaints that the banks have failed to provide adequate credit accommodation for small businesses and that practically no provision is made for systematically supplying them with permanent capital are not confined to the United States. Similar criticism is heard in England and other lands, and English bankers, like American bankers, try to defend themselves against charges of non-cooperation by maintaining that borrowers who are safe risks can always obtain needed funds. An official of the Midland Bank said, for instance, in a recent address that "the banker should not be influenced by the value of the security or the interest offered if liquidity be lacking, and it follows that an advance dependent for repayment on hypothetical profits should not be entertained." That brief statement succinctly expresses the orthodox banking point of view and goes far toward explaining the reason for the complaints about discrimination against small businesses. In periods of depression the small business is usually the hardest hit and therefore apt to be in pressing need of funds with which to replace depleted working capital. Banker after banker, both in England and in this country, has protested that the concerns most in need of money are the ones least able to use loans safely and profitably, while those that can operate to advantage often possess unused resources and need no additional accommodation.

Question at Issue.

The real question at issue is whether commercial banks are under any obligation to use their free resources to stimulate business and even to direct capital into new investment channels. Or ought they to follow a strictly "hands-off" policy, insisting upon safety and liquidity, and leaving to other financing agencies the task of furnishing intermediate credits and permanent capital.

The loans to industry bill which the President has just signed is the answer to criticism that the banks are not supplying the working capital requirements of small and medium sized concerns. At the same time, the mere fact that this legislation has been passed is equivalent to a tacit admission that the commercial bank which wishes to maintain its assets in liquid form is not the proper agency for satisfying relatively long-term capital needs.

Under the loans to industry measure both the Federal Reserve Banks and the RFC are authorized to make direct loans to industries up to a period of five years for provision of working capital, if it is impossible to obtain requisite financial aid on reasonable terms from the usual sources. In addition, the Reserve banks may assume 80 per cent of the loss on such loans if made directly by other financing agencies. These guaranty provisions and the admission of the chairman of the RFC that risks may be taken that ordinarily would not be assumed in making regular commercial loans reveal the opportunistic and emergency character of the legislation. It has not been devised to fill an alleged gap in the regular credit structure. It is merely a makeshift compromise designed to still political clamor for more liberal loans to small business men.

English Begin Experiments.

The English, on the other hand, are beginning to experiment in a conservative way with institutions designed to provide intermediate and long-term credits, principally to small and medium sized industrial units. A corporation known as Credit for Industry, Ltd., has been formed, for example, which will grant credits for periods of from 2 to 20 years to applying industries.

This financing agency will have access to the banks and will also obtain funds by sales of its debentures. The Charterhouse Trust has also set up a subsidiary company which intends to finance the long-time permanent capital needs of industrial concerns that are too small or too little known to obtain capital through public offerings of securities. However, as a rule capital will not be obtainable in smaller amounts than £5,000, and the borrowing concern must be established on a profitable basis.

Whether there is any great need for credit agencies of this type either in England or in the United States is open to question. The fact that so little was heard about the alleged "gaps" in the credit structure when times were good strongly suggests that the financial difficulties of small business will not be solved merely by creating new kinds of loan agencies, or in making special emergency provision for their needs. The major trouble is due to the inability of many small borrowers to qualify for loans, not to the admitted structural deficiencies of the American and English banking systems. However, no harm is done and some benefit may result from changes designed to relieve commercial banks of unsuitable kinds of loans and to systematize arrangements for meeting the needs of small businesses now dependent upon local and uncertain support to satisfy their requirements.

If the loans to industry act is regarded as a mere emergency device, however, to stimulate business and provide employment, it certainly will not fill a gap in the American credit structure. It will either afford an excuse for making loans to concerns that are poor credit risks, or, assuming that conservative policies are followed, it will disappoint the sanguine expectations of its advocates.

Leaf Tobacco Board Votes Extra Dividend

Great Lakes Power Lists $1.75 Return on No Par Preferred Stock.

New York, June 21 (AP).—Directors of the Universal Leaf Tobacco Co., Inc., declared an extra dividend of $1 on the common stock in addition to the regular quarterly of 50 cents, both payable August 1 to stock of record July 17. The regular quarterly disbursement of 2 per cent on the preferred stock was also declared, payable July 2 to stock of record June 28.

John A. McPhail, president of the Great Lakes Power Co., Ltd., reports that business conditions in the territory served by the company showed an upturn during the later months of 1933 and current earnings reflect this favorable trend. Directors declared a dividend of $1.75 on the no-par series A, $7 preferred stock, payable July 16 out of surplus earnings to stock of record June 30. Three months ago a similar payment was authorized, marking resumption of dividends.

Directors of the Fidelity Phoenix Fire Insurance Co. have declared the regular semiannual dividend of 60 cents a share, payable July 10, to stock of record June 30.

Week's Bank Clearings Up to $5,580,207,000

Cotton Prices Decline Under Liquidation

July Closes at 11.98 as General Market Falls 3 to 6 Points.

New York, June 21 (AP).—An early advance in cotton was followed by reactions under realizing or liquidations and scattered selling today which appeared to be influenced by the break in wheat. October contracts, after working up to 12.31, broke to 12.19 in the late afternoon and closed at 12.21.

The general market closed steady at an advance of 1 point on July, but generally 3 to 6 points net lower.

The opening was steady at an advance of 1 to 3 points, and active months sold about 5 to 7 points net higher during the early trading.

This advance carried July up to 12.04 and December to 12.42, but the demand was supplied by realizing or liquidation while Liverpool seemed to be selling the late positions here, and the market turned easier during the afternoon.

The indifferent showing of the stock market and the weakness in wheat, combined with the failure of buyers to follow up the advances more aggressively, increased the disposition to take profits on long cotton, and there were some foreign selling in the late trading.

July sold off to 11.94 and December to 12.30, making net losses of about 3 to 8 points in the lowest, but spot houses were buyers in the last half hour, and closing quotations were slightly up from the lowest with July relatively steady.

The report from Washington that the Federal Emergency Relief Administration would purchase at least 255,000 bales of cotton for relief purposes, came in for a good deal of comment, but evidently failed to stimulate the market.

Traders again found conflicting features in the weather news.

Exports today, 23,522, making 7,208,043 so far this season. Port receipts, 4,879. U. S. port stocks, 2,647,564.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was unsettled today, but after declining from 2 to 6 points under increased July liquidation and selling by commission houses, the market rallied on covering and buying by refining interests with the market closing unchanged to 5 points net lower. The strength of crude oil offset the easiness of grains and lard. Sales were 80 contracts, including 10 switches from July to later deliveries. Bleachable spot nominal; July closed 5.55, September 5.76 October 5.83, December 6.00, January 6.05.

The Dollar Abroad

(Associated Press.)

The dollar turned stronger against foreign gold currencies today and held steady against the pound sterling.

The dollar closed ⅛ cent higher in London at $5.03¾ to the pound, while sterling gained ⅛ cent in New York at $5.04.

In Paris the dollar advanced 2¼ centimes to close at the equivalent of 6.59½ cents to the franc. The French curreny dropped .01¼ cent in New York, to 6.59½ cents.

The price of gold in London rose 2 pence to 138 shillings 1½ pence a fine ounce (equivalent to $34.78). Undisclosed buyers purchased $1,652,710 at that price.

Production of Soft Coal Totals 6,175,000 Tons

The National Coal Association, from incomplete car loading reports from the railroads, estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended June 16 as approximately 6,175,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week, 1933, 5,674,000 tons; 1932, 4,102,000 tons.

The report of the Bureau of Mines shows production of 5,850,000 tons for the week ended June 2, and *6,217,000 for the week ended June 9, 1934.

Production calendar year to June 16, 1934, †170,287,000 tons; 1933, 133,497,000 tons.

Wall Street Is Hopeful on Fall Outlook

Business During Summer Expected to Be Fair as U. S. Spends More.

New York, June 21 (AP).—With mid-year almost at hand, Wall street business analysts are looking toward autumn with considerable optimism.

Little concern is evident over the expected mid-year lull in industry. Opinion is mixed as to whether it will be more pronounced than the normal seasonal trend would indicate.

A rather substantial recession in steel making during July is quite widely anticipated, in view of the fact that many steel users have been stocking up recently in order to beat expected third-quarter price increases.

Business in Summer.

But generally speaking, summer business is expected to be fair, and in making this forecast, most business analysts stress the program of active Government spending.

The chief recovery stimulus expected from the Administration for the next three months or so is heavy expenditure for public works, relief and other purposes.

Whether the works expenditures will reach any such proportions as the $400,000,000-a-month program suggested by John Maynard Keynes, British economist, during his recent visit to Washington, is regarded as somewhat doubtful.

Spending Millions to Aid.

But outlays of $300,000,000 a month for the next few months are regarded as probable, and a number of business analysts and economists say the bolstering effect upon general business should be substantial.

For three month or so, the Administration recovery program is understood in important quarters here to call for virtually nothing save the priming process of spending.

Business executives appear to be in for a respite from new legislation and new experiments.

No boost in the gold price is anticipated during the next few months. The Treasury is expected to continue its silver buying, perhaps expanding its accumulation of the white metal to a point, that might be viewed as somewhat inflationary.

Monetary Fears Allayed.

But on the whole, no monetary steps of a sort to impair confidence are expected.

In addition to Government spending, the home renovation drive may become a recovery stimulus of importance by autumn.

Direct loans to industry by the Federal Reserve banks and the RFC, as provided by the recent legislation, together with a little expansion of new security offering as result of the amendments to the securities act, may also help, but Wall street analysts are not counting heavily on these factors, for the next two or three months, at least.

New York Produce.

New York, June 21 (A.P.)—EGGS—Receipts, 18,589; irregular. Mixed colors, firsts, 16¼; mediums, 40 pounds, 14½; dirties, No. 1, 42 pounds, 15; other mixed colors unchanged. White eggs, resale or premium market, 24½@25; nearby special packs, including premiums, 23@24; nearby and Midwestern henneries, exclusive specials, 21@22; other whites and all browns unchanged.

BUTTER—Receipts, 14,107; steadier. Creamery, centralized (90 score), 24¼@24½; other grades unchanged.

COFFEE—Spot, steady; Rio No 7, 10; Santos No. 4, 11¼. Rio futures closed barely steady; sales, 11,000 bags. July, 8.27; September, 8.30; December, July, March, 8.40; May, 8.56. Santos futures, steady; sales, 21,000 bags. July, 10.46; September, 10.89; December, 11.06; March, 11.16; May, 11.24.

*Nominal.

SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today at 3.10 for spots. Refiners continued to show interest at this level, but most holders were asking 3.15 and only sale confirmed was 9,000 bags of Philippines at Philadelphia to an outport refiner at 3.15. It was also reported that late yesterday a Southern refiner bought 33,000 bags of Cuban for prompt shipment at 3.15.

Refined sugar was unchanged today at 4.65 for fine granulated, but it was announced by all local refiners that they would advance tomorrow to 4.75, a new high for the year. The announcement was followed by a much more active demand, and it was considered doubtful if refiners would accept all orders offered.

Baltimore Grain Prices.

Baltimore, June 21.—WHEAT—Shipments from elevators, 13,750 bushels. Stock in elevators, 300,347 bushels. Stock prices were: No. 2, red winter, spot, domestic, 92; June delivery, domestic, 92. Receipts of wheat from nearby sections running light. There is a demand for No. 2, red winter, garlicky. Off grades, however, are hard to move at a wider discount.

CORN—Receipts, 2,688 bushels by car. Shipments from elevators, 100 bushels. Stock in elevators, 7,331 bushels. Receipts of corn from the nearby sections only occasional. For yellow and high-colored mixed there is a fair domestic demand. Stock corn—Quoted at 3.75 in barrel for carloads prime nearby, yellow on spot. Offerings ample for present needs. Demand fair. No. 2, yellow and arriving here by car quoted at 73@78 per bushel with transit billing.

OATS—Shipments from elevators, 100 bushels. Stock in elevators, 20,739 bushels. Supplies of oats here are slowly decreasing. Demand is fair in a jobbing way. Choice, extra heavy oats command a good premium over the average run and lighter weights. No. 2, white oats, 55@60 per bushel, as to weight and location.

Note—On all sales of oats to arrive, trade, excepting those on track, there is an additional charge of 1½ cents per bushel for storage and elevation, which is paid by the buyer.

HAY—General hay market is quiet. Supply ample. On good timothy and clover mixed prices range from 12 to 14 per ton. The poorer grades of hay are hard to sell at any price. Market irregular on everything below 13 timothy.

STRAW—Market is quiet and steady. Wheat straw, No. 1, per ton, 9@9.50; oat straw, 9@9.50.

MILL FEED—Receipts, 241 tons, including 80 tons for shipment. Market firm on spot bran and middling. Spring bran, per ton, 100-pound sacks, 31; standard middling, per ton, 100-pound sacks, 32.

BARLEY—Stock in elevators, 743 bushels.

Treasury Receipts Top Three Billions

(Associated Press.)

Treasury receipts have passed the $3,000,000,000 mark, bringing the collections above the dollar line reached in recent fiscal years. A statement issued yesterday, including figures up to June 19, set the receipts total for the fiscal year at $3,027,915,576.09.

This included income tax collections of $1,430,862,640 as against $827,499,767 at the same time a year ago. Collections for the month of June so far also showed an increase, being $91,675,804 as against $75,788,388 in the same period last year.

Total collections maintained a position of slight surplus over ordinary expenditures for the year. With inclusion of emergency expenditures, however, outlays exceeded collections by nearly $4,000,000,000.

Transactions on N. Y. Curb Market

(Associated Press.)

Total stock sales yesterday, 154,000 shares; year ago, 753,712 shares; total bond sales today, $3,600,000; year ago, $4,208,000.

Miss L. W. Russell Rites Conducted

Active in Daughters of Confederacy Work.

Winchester, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held today for Miss Lucy W. Russell, one of the leading Daughters of the Confederacy in Virginia, who died here Tuesday, following a brief illness. The rites were conducted from Loudoun Street Presbyterian Church with the Rev. E. B. McGukin officiating.

Born and reared in Winchester, Miss Russell witnessed a great part of the Civil War. After the war, she was among the first to assist in the organization of Stonewall Memorial Association, which had as its purpose the collection of bodies of Southern dead in Winchester and vicinity for interment in Mount Hebron Cemetery here.

Surviving her are one sister, Mrs. Marshall Willis, of Winchester, and a number of nieces and nephews, including Harry K. Russell, Mrs. Jacob E. Baker and Mrs. Frank N. Hack, of Winchester; Dr. James I. Russell and Marshall H. Russell, of New York City; Mrs. John T. Roddey, of Rock Hill, S. C.; Mrs. Gardner W. Brown, of New York, and Mrs. Emma Estham and Mrs. James Gray McAllister, of Richmond, Va.

D. C. Militia to Camp At Shenandoah Caverns

Plans for the encampment of 300 members of the District of Columbia National Guard at Shenandoah Caverns, near Mount Jackson, Va., on July 6 and 7, were completed yesterday by Maj. Walter W. Burns, U. S. A., and Capt. Leroy S. Mann, of the 260th Company, Coast Guard Artillery, of the local National Guard.

The camp will be part of a practice march in which the guardsmen will be equipped with antiaircraft guns and searchlights. The camp will be the first of the District National Guardsmen in the Shenandoah Valley.

Virginia Seals Gap In Alcoholic Ruling

New Order Hits Spirits Not Properly Stamped.

Richmond, June 21 (Spl.).—Stopping a loophole through which bootleggers have escaped punishment, the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board today issued a revised regulation providing that the transportation of distilled spirits in containers of 1 gallon or less upon which there are no required Government stamps shall constitute prima facie evidence of illegal sale or purchase.

In substance, the new rule places the burden of proof as to legal acquisition of unstamped spirits on the accused rather than upon the Commonwealth. By the term "Government stamps" the rule means Federal as well as State stamps. The board today announced the resignation of J. E. Etheridge, director of the board's real estate and insurance division, who is returning to Norfolk to resume his private work in the firm of Etheridge & Taylor.

George M. Snead, Lynchburg, has been named to take Mr. Etheridge's place.

Augusta B. Y. P. U. Has Annual Parley

Broadway, Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Members of the Augusta B. Y. P. U., embracing the counties of Augusta, Rockingham, Bath, Alleghaney and Rockbridge, held their annual convention in the Broadway Baptist Church here today.

Practically all Baptist churches within the bounds of the counties named have young people's unions and several hundred delegates attended.

Sheriff's Ouster Sought.

Danville, Va., June 21 (AP).—Judge Henry C. Leigh of corporation court will go to Rustburg tomorrow to reopen the ouster proceedings against Sheriff R. L. Perrow of Campbell County, he indicated today.

Episcopal Rolls Show Large Gain

Albemarle Increase in 20 Years Is 276 Per Cent.

Charlottesville, Va., June 21 (Spl.). The membership of the Episcopal Church in Albermarle County increased 276.5 per cent from 1906 to 1926, according to a survey made by Dr. Wilson Gee, professor of sociology at the University of Virginia.

The next best showing was made by the Church of the Brethren with a 158.7 per cent increase.

The great factor in this growth, according to Dr. Gee, has been the work of the Archdeaconry of the Blue Ridge, in the Diocese of Virginia.

In Charlottesville, during the same period, the growth in the Episcopal Church's membership was 128.7 per cent. Only the Jewish congregations made a better record with a 348 per cent increase. The white Baptist Churches in Charlottesville came third with a 115 per cent increase.

Gun-Liquor Spree Jails Stephens City Man in $1,000 Bail

Stephens City, Va., June 21 (Spl.). Carrying a dangerous weapon, shooting in a public place, shouting murder to a group of colored people and making threats of murder, are the pranks which Russell Copeland admits he indulged in while on an alleged drunken, gun-toting spree here.

Frederick County officers arrested Copeland and took him before Magistrate A. J. Tavenner, who held him under $1,000 bail for action of the grand jury.

Danville, Va., Boys Will Sail to N. Y.

Trio Will Take Inland Waterways on Trip.

Danville, Va., June 21 (AP).—Three boys left here yesterday for a cruise to New York in an 18-foot motor boat. They are Maurice Flinn, jr., D. E. Graham, jr., and Walter Blair, all about 17.

The boys placed their boat on a truck and started for Richmond, whence they will sail down the James River into Chesapeake Bay, proceeding to New York by inland water routes.

D. C. Man With Broken Leg Found by Railway

Suffering from a broken right leg, a man giving his name as R. T. Maple, 35, of the 400 block of F street southwest, was found lying beside the tracks of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway between East and West Waynesboro, Va., early yesterday, according to information received here last night.

Maple was taken to University Hospital in Charlottesville. It was believed he was injured in jumping or falling from a train.

Clearing of Site Begun For New U. of Va. Hall

Charlottesville, Va., June 21 (AP).—Work has been started on the construction of Thornton Hall, new engineering building at the University of Virginia here.

Twenty men have begun clearing away topsoil from the building site and a steam shovel is ready to start excavating. Actual construction will not begin for another two months.

Man Is Restrained In Escape Attempt

Charles Town, W. Va., June 21 (Spl.).—Bert Harris, formerly of Texas and Baltimore, was arrested by Detective C. N. Campbell in Shenandoah Junction last night and charged with attempting to steal the car of J. J. Lyne, Jefferson County merchant, who operates a store in that community.

While taking the prisoner to the office of Justice T. C. Greene for a hearing, Harris broke away and attempted to jump from a second-story window of a building, but was restrained.

Justice Greene held the prisoner for the September term of the Jefferson County Circuit Court.

Walt Mason, Himself

The Law Library.

I visit the attorney's lair and see large volumes everywhere, all bound in costly yellow calf; some cost five dollars and a half, and some cost seven, six or nine, and at this price they should be fine. They treat of contract, tort and deed, and not a page is fit to read. They treat of this, they treat of that, the author writing through his hat. They're all inhuman, cold and raw, these volumes treating of the law. There is no humor to amuse the hapless gent who may peruse; and no dramatic kicks are there to raise the wearied reader's hair; there is no pathos that might bring a few hot tears to smart and sting; but everything is flat and dry as dusty deserts in July. These volumes stretch in endless rows, and lawyers stand upon their toes to pull down "Littleton on Coke" or some sad tome that has no joke; a book that treats of evidence concerning some one's backyard fence. Since such a fence is in dispute, the heartsick lawyer has to root through 47 shelves of books that treat of fierce fence-building crooks. And all these works are but a hint of all the law that is in print. The more you read about the law, the more there is on which to draw.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY Gold! By Harry J. Tuthill

MY WORD! OLD HARTFORD OAKDALE HIMSELF. THINK OF ME RUNNING INTO YOU ON THE STREET SO SOON AFTER YOU GOT IN TOWN. WHAT DID YOU SAY ABOUT GOLD?
MERELY THAT I CAME HERE DIRECTLY FROM THE MINES. HERE'S A SPECIMEN I HAPPENED TO PICK UP FROM THE GROUND AS I LEFT.
GOLD! SURE ENOUGH! I CAN SEE THE LITTLE YELLOW SPECKS SHINING. GOLD! MARVELOUS!
YES IT IS.....TO ONE OUTSIDE THE MINING GAME. HOWEVER, WE MINING FOLK SEE SO MUCH OF IT THAT THE BALLY STUFF SORT OF GETS ON ONE'S NERVES.
YOU MEAN THERE'S SO MUCH GOLD WHERE THIS CAME FROM THAT YOU GET TIRED OF LOOKING AT IT?
OH NOT EXACTLY, COLONEL. HAPPILY, I'VE SEEN ENOUGH LEAN DAYS.....WHEN VERY YOUNG.....SO THAT I'D THINK TWICE BEFORE ADMITTING I WAS ONLY BORED BY REACHING DOWN TO PICK UP FIVE OR TEN DOLLARS IN GOLD.
GOLD! AND SO THICK THAT YOU CAN PICK IT UP LIKE THOSE BABIES IN THE PARK WALK AROUND SPEARING WASTE PAPER.
BY JOVE, COLONEL, IF I KNEW YOU'D BE SO INTERESTED IN THE MATTER I WOULD HAVE HAD ONE OF MY BOYS THROW A FEW HANDFULS OF THE STUFF INTO MY LUGGAGE FOR YOU. HOWEVER, I'LL DO THAT NEXT TIME.

DIXIE DUGAN Inspiration Talk By J. P. McEvoy and J. H. Striebel

ISN'T IT A SCORCHER TODAY? — I'M MELTING AWAY — I FEEL LIKE A PORK-CHOP IN A FRYING PAN
YES — IT'S SO HOT I HAVEN'T BEEN ABLE TO DO A BIT OF WRITING — I'VE DECIDED TO GO OUT TO MY SUMMER PLACE AND WORK.
IT'S A LOG-CABIN SET IN A CLUMP OF COOL PINE TREES ON A SPARKLING LAKE — THE WATER IS COOL AND CRYSTAL CLEAR — GLORIOUS TO DIVE INTO AND GO CANOEING ON — NO MATTER HOW HOT IT IS — IT'S ALWAYS MARVELOUSLY COOL ON THE SOFT, COOL MOSS IN TH' SHADE OF THE TALL PINES — AND AT NIGHT THE COOL MOUNTAIN BREEZES SWEEP DOWN AND MAKE YOU SLEEP, UNDER SIX BLANKETS — YEH! THAT'S WHERE I'M BOUND FOR!
I HOPE YOU WORK WELL THERE — — AND EDSIE — THANKS FOR COOLING ME OFF!
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y.

THE GUMPS A Garden of Eden

OH, BOY! ISN'T THIS THE LIFE — WHAT A POOL A FELLOW IS TO LIVE IN THE CITY — PAYING HIS GOOD MONEY FOR RENT AND CLOTHES AND CARFARE — WORKS LIKE A HORSE FOR SIX DAYS — AND AT THE END OF THE WEEK, ALL HE'S GOT LEFT OF HIS PAY IS THE ENVELOPE IT CAME IN —
6-22
THE HARDEST WORK A FELLOW HAS TO DO OUT HERE IS TO BREATHE — AND NATURE'LL DO THE REST — WHEN HE WANTS A CHICKEN DINNER, HE WRINGS ITS NECK AND COOKS IT — IF HE LIKES FISH, ALL HE HAS TO DO IS TO PICK UP A WORM, TOSS IT IN THE LAKE, AND PULL IN A MEAL FOR THE FAMILY — AND ALL THE VEGETABLES HE CAN EAT ARE STANDING OUT IN THE BACK YARD, WAITING TO BE INVITED IN TO DINNER —
OUCH!
WHAT A LIFE! A DOZEN STEPS FROM YOUR FRONT DOOR IS A COMBINATION BATH-TUB AND DRINKING FOUNTAIN, AND THEY NEVER TURN THE WATER OFF FOR NON-PAYMENT OF TAXES — YOU CAN GIVE A BABY A DOLLAR THE DAY HE IS BORN OUT HERE, AND HE CAN LIVE ON THE INTEREST THE REST OF HIS LIFE —

LUCKY FOR US IT'S GETTING DARK! QUICK! PUT ON THIS COAT I BOUGHT YOU...
WHAT'LL I DO WITH THIS PENITENTIARY RAG I'VE GOT ON.
I'LL PUT IT IN THIS INCINERATOR. SOMEBODY'S BURNING PAPERS IN.
WHERE ARE WE GOING, LU?
THAT DEPENDS ON YOU, STEVE. FIRST ANSWER ONE QUESTION. ARE YOU WILLING TO DO ANYTHING I TELL YOU?
ANYTHING, LU, ANYTHING! YOU SAVED MY LIFE AND I'LL DO ANYTHING YOU TELL ME.
THEN YOU AND I ARE GOING TO CALL ON JERRY O'MARRA, HEAD OF THE AUTOMOBILE STEALING RING IN THIS TOWN. THAT RACKET USED TO BE MINE, BUT HE GRABBED IT WHEN I WAS SENT UP THE RIVER — AND HE DOESN'T LIKE ME — GET IT?
